Delay on Decision

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Chief Justice Hughes announced this afternoon that the Supreme court would suspend until noon Monday, which made it extremely improbable that a decision in the gold clause cases would be forthcoming tomorrow.

Unauthorized speculation emanating from the treasury department had been to the effect that the court might hand down its opinions on Saturday because most markets throughout the world would be closed by the time of the announcement.

The justices of the Supreme court always meet in secret conference for deliberations on Saturday and it would be within their discretion, but a most extraordinary procedure, to announce a decision on the gold cases. On the other hand, if the court makes no announcement at all respecting the cases, the opinions presumably will be handed down Monday.

The court itself is authority for such a presumption, for last Saturday the chief justice said there would be no announcement on the following Monday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Expansion of the nation's "money" in order to speed recovery was demanded by a responsible official of the Roosevelt administration for the first time today.

Gov. Marriner S. Eccles, head of the federal reserve board, declared the country's supply of "money" was 13 billion dollars below the 1929 level and that the existing supply must be increased to hasten recovery. He warned, however, that the country must not plunge into "undesirable inflation."

By "money," Gov. Eccles explained, he means bank credit as well as currency, but he admitted under questioning that "cash and deposit currency" is lower by 13 billion dollars than it was in 1929. Two methods, both of which would be made available to the reserve board by the pending New Deal bank bill, should be used to reëxpand the nation's supply of money, Eccles said.

Outlines Two Methods.

They are:

1. Control of the administration of the federal reserve open market operations whereby the reserve banks buy up government bonds, thus putting new money into circulation as they pay for the bonds.

2. Liberalization of the rules under which commercial banks may borrow new currency from the reserve banks on mortgages and other assets.

"Fluctuations in production and employment and in the national income are conditioned upon changes in the available supply of cash and deposit currency and upon the rate and character of monetary expenditures," Mr. Eccles declared, adding that there must be "conscious control" to expand the currency when depressions commence in order to check business declines.

Adequate "basis" now exists in bank reserves to issue 30 billions in currency and credit, he said, but, although that sum would be dangerously large, a part of it must be called into active play to accelerate recovery. Production and employment and national income depend in large part on such monetary expansion, he maintained.

Bill Contains Proposal.

Proposals in the pending banking bill are designed to stimulate that monetary expansion, Gov. Eccles said. The bill, he explained, will give the federal reserve board for the first time a central control over the nation's money and credit. The reserve itself will be dominated by the political administration in power.

A removal of restrictions so that banks can borrow money from the reserve banks on mortgages and similar long term assets, thus stimulating mortgage lending and private spending on a vast scale, is now the chief hope for achieving the desired expansion of money, Gov. Eccles said. This, too, would be accomplished by passage of the pending bank bill.

PRICES OF FOUR FOOD 'NECESSITIES' RISE TO 5 YEARS' HIGHEST PEAK

The spectacular rise in food prices which has been under way for months reached a new peak yesterday when prices of four important commodities touched the highest levels of the past four or five years in the Chicago markets. Beef, pork, butter, and eggs are now giving the highest prices to farmers since early in the depression, while city consumers stretch their pennies to make ends meet.

With butter extras, the principal grade which goes on the consumer's dinner table, quoted at 36 cents a pound that commodity was selling yesterday at the highest price since July, 1931. Cattle were quoted at a top price of $14 a hundred pounds, the highest since 1930. Hogs rose to $8.30 a hundred pounds, a price unequaled since July, 1931. At yesterday's high price of 26⅞ cents a dozen for February futures the egg market touched the highest price level since 1930.

The advances here yesterday coincided with announcement in Washington by officials of the Agricultural Adjustment administration that 14 basic farm commodities have advanced to pre-war prices, the goal of the administration program. The list includes wheat, cotton, field corn, hogs, rye, barley, cattle, and milk and milk products.

As Rosalynne Kesselman pursued her duties as masseuse in the Gold Coast Health studio at 57 East Chicago avenue she dreamed of a career far different. Indeed, the chronicle of Rosalynne is good enough for fiction and almost good enough for a press agent stunt.

"It is a shame for a girl like me to work here for $10 a week and tips," ran her thoughts. "I am 21 years old and the steam has made me so fat that I weigh 168 pounds. Besides that, the rubbing is making my hands too big and my shoulders are developing muscles like a stevedore's."

Then she pondered upon, and became dissatisfied with, her social position as the daughter of Hyman Kesselman, 1916 South Trumbull avenue, owner of a delicatessen store.

Acts, and Does It Nobly.

"As social positions go in Chicago, it is all right," she told herself, "but in England they do such things better. They're telling me around this shop that I act like royalty. Well, I'll show 'em I really can act."

So Rosalynne went to a printshop and got some letter heads that read "Department of Justice, Bureau of Investigation, Washington, D. C." On one of them she wrote to Lewis Bernays, British consul general in Chicago, as follows:

"This will introduce to you Lady Creighton of Nottingham, who is known in our organization as Operative 16. She has been assigned to capture the jewel thieves of Chicago and any courtesies you extend to her, as a British subject, will be appreciated."

Ah! The Life of a Lady!

The letter, signed with the fictional name D. A. Barrows, was held in reserve. Rosalynne, on Tuesday, appeared at the Drake hotel with three pieces of baggage, or luggage, as it is known in England, registered as Lady Creighton of Nottingham, and was properly bowed into a suite. She ate heartily and was convinced that the nobility led a gracious life.

Society writers learned of her presence and one from an afternoon paper interviewed her. Lady Creighton was vague about the old ancestral Creighton manor, but voluble in her views on America. For some reason the interview didn't see print.

Some time yesterday the management of the Drake decided that the lady's account was growing rather large. At the same time Rosalynne became aware of the insecurity of her position. So she took her letter to Mr. Bernays, who was polite, but so unimpressed with her accent that he called the department of justice.

In the afternoon Lady Creighton hastily packed her luggage, called a bellboy and gave him a $5 bill to carry the bags to a taxicab. But the boy took them to the desk and when Lady Creighton went down to the lobby three policemen seized her.

"I don't want to hear any more out of you," she said to Lieut. Edward Kelly, who attempted to question her. "If you do I'll smack your face."

"A lady in England wouldn't say such a thing," he retorted.

"All right, then," said the ex-Lady Creighton, "make it read that I will give you a poke in the nose."

The lieutenant ordered Miss Kesselman locked up while the department of justice and the hotel decide what to do about her masquerade.

SCHOONER SETH PARKER IN PERIL; ACTOR SEEKS AID

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Wireless messages from the schooner Seth Parker stating it was "in a dangerous position and in danger of capsizing" about 300 miles off Tahiti island in the South Seas were received tonight from Phillips Lord, radio and screen star, by the Radio Marine corporation. Lord, who set sail a year ago December from Portland, Me., on a voyage around the world, said the three masted schooner was being buffeted and tossed by a fierce gale. The message added:

"Desire all ships within 500 miles contact us immediately, giving their position, weather conditions, course, and destination."

The schooner has a crew of about fifteen men.

The Seth Parker is 136 feet long, has a 37 foot beam, and weighs 757 tons. It has two Diesel engines. Its original name was the Georgette and was rechristened the Seth Parker for this voyage.

MUNICIPAL COURT JUDGES TO DON FLOWING ROBES

On the theory that justice in the police courts of the city can be dispensed with more dignity in flowing black robes, the judges of the Municipal court voted yesterday to adopt that garb during working hours.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby explained that the cost of the robes—between $30 and $40 each—will be borne by the judges.

"A judge is a judge," he said, "no matter what his jurisdiction. Our judges deal with many people, and robes on them will increase respect for all courts." He pointed out that the judges of the federal, Circuit and Superior courts all wear robes while on the bench.

The hard job, however, is delegated to Judges Justin F. McCarthy, Jay A. Schiller and J. M. Braude, for they have to pick the style of the robes.

5 THRIFTY YEARS CUT CITY COSTS BY $89,000,000

Expenses Compared with 1930.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Consistent plugging at economy by Mayor Kelly and his predecessor, Mayor Cermak, has saved Chicago taxpayers a total of $89,317,210 in taxes levied for the city's operating departments alone in five years, it was shown yesterday.

The amount of the estimated saving was fixed by City Controler Robert B. Upham through comparison of the corporate [operating] fund tax levies of the city for the years 1931 to 1935, inclusive, with the corporate fund taxes levied for 1930, the last year in which the spendthrift administration of a former Republican mayor had complete control of the city budget. The average annual saving on the five levies since that of 1930 has been $17,863,442.

Spending Figures for Six Years.

The operating levy totals for six years, in which the amounts of the 1934 and 1935 levies are the estimates embodied in the city budgets for those years, are as follows:

1930	$51,061,825
1931	43,292,924
1932	33,504,960
1933	31,744,604
1934	30,929,714
1935	30,929,714

The four year struggle to restore the city to a sound financial basis has not been without its reverses and disappointments, but the cold figures on the city's account books show that while ultimate victory is still in the distance great improvements have been achieved.

Critical Situation in 1931.

When Mayor Cermak took office in the spring of 1931 the budget for that year had already been prepared, on the same swollen basis as that of the previous year. To keep pay rollers faithful during the election campaign, the city's credit had been strained to the limit.

The city had outstanding warants to be redeemed out of future collections of its corporate fund taxes totaling more than $80,000,000, an all time high figure for these short term securities. The warants were selling at heavy discounts, as the tax strike was in full sway and investors doubted that money would ever be available to redeem the warants.

The lavish scale on which they were sold in the free spending days is indicated by the fact that after four years' work on the problem, Mayor Kelly and Controler Upham still face the task of redeeming more than $12,000,000 of these obligations of the former Republican administration.

Tax Levy Cut $8,500,000.

Mayor Cermak proceeded at once to trim the 1931 tax levy by eight and a half millions. The next year he cut off nearly ten millions more.

Starting from this economy basis, Mayor Kelly made further reductions. The last two corporate fund levies are two and a half millions below that of 1932, the last which Mayor Cermak was active in preparing.

The strained credit situation which Mayor Cermak inherited manifested itself immediately in unpaid pay rolls. At one time city employés had five months' pay due them. Mayor Cermak gained some of this ground back before his assassination, and last year Mayor Kelly completed the task of bringing salary payments up to date.

Contrast Between 1930 and 1934.

Fortunately, because the city has other revenue sources than general taxes, it has not been necessary to cut corporate fund expenditures so deeply as tax levies were reduced. Nevertheless, last year under Mayor Kelly the city spent $44,185,323 to perform virtually the same essential services for its citizens which in 1930 cost $58,768,068.

The effects of the economy campaign are reflected in many other ways. The school situation, in which the influence of hangover trustees from the wild spending days was not completely abated until Mayor Kelly's appointees, under President James B. McCahey, instituted their economy campaign and brought pay rolls up to date, is a story of itself.

Lavish issue of bonds for public improvements was one of the characteristics of the old régime. The city's bonded debt reached its peak of $140,513,400 with the issuance early in 1931 of bonds authorized the previous year. Not only was the city's credit preserved by payment of interest on these bonds throughout the tax famine but the total of the principal has now been reduced, principally under Mayor Kelly, to $125,240,000.

'Healer' Lures Spirits with Buffet Lunch

BY BARBARA ADAMS.

Of all the quacks and fakers in Chicago who in the name of psychology or under the pretense of psychic powers prey on the credulous, no one is on more intimate terms with "the spirits" or "the forces" than Healer Frederick J. Harris, of 3014 Lake Park avenue.

"I don't use mesmeric power," said Healer Harris to a TRIBUNE reporter who went to him to be healed of neuritis in the left arm. "I use divine power. That old cosmic ray from above just shines down on me with all its power, and the forces enter me and go through me, right out of my hands and into you. They heal you of anything. I've healed many a person with cancer and tumors, or diabetes, or paralysis, after the doctors gave up hope for them."

One of Many Fakers.

Healer Harris, or "the Rev." Harris, as he calls himself, is one of many men and women who by means of hocus-pocus practices befuddle the minds of the ignorant and sick, the emotionally and physically upset individuals who are seeking "miraculous" cures, and thus make a shady living for themselves, as shown in a recent investigation by THE TRIBUNE.

Information obtained about Harris was referred to the department of registration and education, and he will be asked to appear at the department headquarters, 360 North Michigan avenue.

The reporter approached Harris' frame house, after making an appointment with him by telephone. An advertisment appearing in an afternoon newspaper had set forth that he was the president of the Fraternal Spiritualist church, 32 West Randolph street, which meets in a hall there on Sundays. His home telephone number was given: Victory 6094.

Drab Parlor and Metaphysics.

Harris, a little man of middle age with scant reddish hair and evasive eyes of a muddy blue, opened the door with an obsequious smile and ushered his "patient" into a living room, clean but dreary. On the wall was a certificates with the words "Academy of Metaphysics," prominently displayed.

The reporter said that she was suffering from pain in her left arm and shoulder, occasional pains in the legs, and wondered if she might have tuberculosis, too.

"I don't think you have tuberculosis," he said, "but 'the forces' will cure you of the pain, and if you do have chest trouble, of that, too. Sometimes they cure you right away, sometimes it takes longer. I will give you ten treatments for $15, or you can pay as we go along, $2 a treatment."

Abscess No Match for Spirits.

With a modest smile he then said that once he had been examined by a doctor and found to be a victim of an abscess in the stomach which would require surgery. Instead, he got the spirits to working on him that night, and by the time he was ready for bed the abscess "was gone."

"Sometimes," he said chattily, "'the forces' will operate on a patient. I had one who had an awful tumor. Well, sir, 'the forces' operated, and she never felt any pain at all."

The sales talk at an end, he lowered his voice mysteriously:

"We will now adjourn to the shrine and 'the forces' can work on you. I know you'll be cured."

Shrine a Buffet for Spirits.

He then led the reporter up an old fashioned staircase to the second floor. Several closed doors were in view. One of these, at the head of the stairway, he opened and then closed it after the reporter.

It was a small room, largely filled

ASSAILS STORY OF 4 WITNESSES WITH REBUTTAL

Jury May Get Case by Tuesday.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—For the first time since his trial for the murder of the Lindbergh baby began many weeks ago, fear flickered in the pale eyes of Bruno Richard Hauptmann today.

The stories of four of his witnesses were ripped to shreds in rebuttal testimony submitted by the state. The defense rested at noon and the prosecution immediately paraded thirteen rebuttal witnesses before the jury in rapid succession.

Jury May Get Case Tuesday.

The state will be finished by noon tomorrow. The summation by the attorneys will begin next Monday. Some time Tuesday the eight men and four women jurors will begin considering the guilt or innocence of the German alien charged with the slaying of the first born son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

All four defense witnesses whose testimony was attacked today will be indicted on charges of perjury after the trial, Attorney General David T. Wilentz announced.

The first story to be attacked was that of Benjamin Heier, young cabaret owner, who declared that on the night of April 2, 1932, when Dr. John F. Condon paid $50,000 ransom for the child, he saw Isador Fisch, dead partner of Hauptmann, jump over the wall of St. Raymond's cemetery, where the ransom was paid.

Upsets Defense Point.

Heier told the jury he was parked in his automobile with his girl friend, Judy Schwartz, now dead, from 9 to 11 o'clock that night outside the cemetery wall.

But Joseph J. Farber, an insurance broker, testified today that his automobile collided with Heier's in New York City at a place eight miles from the cemetery at 10 o'clock that same night.

Hauptmann hardly had recovered from this shock, which obviously also saddened his chief counsel, Edward J. Reilly, when an even more brutal blow was given him.

One of his chief alibi witnesses had been the young Swedish carpenter, Elvert Carlstrom, who said he saw Hauptmann in Fredricksen's bakery, the Bronx, on the night of the kidnaping. To the witness stand went Arthur Larson, another carpenter, to declare Carlstrom's story an utter falsehood.

Owner Backs Testimony.

He had slept in the same house with Carlstrom in Dunellen, N. J., that night, he said, and Carlstrom never went to New York, as he had testified. This testimony was corroborated by Hilbert Christenson, owner of the house.

The defendant also had taken some comfort in the testimony of Mrs. Harry Hoff, who declared that in October, 1933, Fisch came to her in the company of Alfred Budreau, a New Jersey farmer, and wanted to leave a mysterious package with her.

Up to the stand came Budreau to assert he never had known Fisch and had not seen Mrs. Hoff for many years.

Finally came Policeman William Konietzko, who had taken Lew Harding, defense witness, to the Lindbergh home after the kidnaping. Harding had sworn that he mentioned seeing the kidnap ladder in an automobile containing two men, neither of whom was Hauptmann.

Denies Defense Story.

"In his story that night Harding never mentioned a ladder at all," declared Konietzko.

Most of the other rebuttal witnesses were concerned with furnishing an alibi for Fisch, upon whom the defense has endeavored to lay the blame for the crime.

Elliott Levinson, a real estate dealer; Harry Jung, a machinist, and Mrs. Erna Jung, his good looking young wife, all testified that Fisch was present in the Jung home on the night of the kidnaping.

Another witness was Miss Hannah Fisch, sister of Fisch, who came from Leipzig, Germany, to testify.

"Isador came back to Leipzig in December, 1933," she testified through an interpreter, Prof. George Priest, head of the department of German literature at Princeton university.

"He was so sick and looked so bad that at first I hardly knew him. He stayed in my house until March 27, 1934, when he went to the hospital. He died two days later."

Fate of Hauptmann to Be Given to Jurors on Tuesday

Asked about his baggage, she said Fisch carried one large handbag and a smaller satchel. She had helped him unpack, she said, and described the contents of the bags.

"He had about 1,500 marks or $500 to $600 in American money with him," she said, "that was all."

Gave Her Papers to Destroy.

The cross-examination of Miss Fisch by Reilly brought out that on the day he went to the hospital Fisch gave his sister two slips of paper to destroy.

"But they only contained a list of sums of money he had sent us," the witness said. "Ten dollars here and $10 there."

"You didn't meet him at Hamburg where he landed?" Reilly asked.

"No."

"You have no way of knowing what he may have deposited in a Hamburg bank?"

"No."

Denies Claiming Estate.

Miss Fisch denied that she had sent a letter, through a German lawyer named Lowenheim, to a New York attorney in which she made a claim for Fisch's estate, listing furs, pelts, stocks, a restaurant company and "a bundle that was hidden."

There was an amusing little revelation at one time during her testimony. Prof. Priest, the interpreter, gave one of her replies and Wilentz interrupted, saying: "She didn't say exactly that."

"She said this," interposed Reilly, and gave his interpretation of the answer.

It developed that both attorneys had a knowledge of German and had been listening carefully to the witness' testimony, hiding their linguistic skill from each other.

Gen. O'Ryan Testifies.

Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan, police commissioner of New York City at the time of Hauptmann's arrest, was another witness. He testified that Hauptmann did not reveal the hiding place of the ransom money found in his garage, as the defendant had testified.

"Only after he was informed of the finding of the money did he admit he had hidden it there," O'Ryan declared.

Mrs. Selma Kohl, Fisch's landlady, added some details to the sketch of the little Jewish furrier given to the jury. Fisch, she said, occupied the smallest, cheapest room in her boarding house and paid her $3.50 a week. He had very little clothing and that was of a cheap nature, she declared.

Reilly cross-examined her about another boarder, a woman named Helvert.

"I put her out," said Mrs. Kohl with a shake of her head.

"Wasn't she Fisch's bookkeeeper?"

"I don't know."

A police photographer and Harold S. Betts, U. S. forestry expert, were other rebuttal witnesses. They asserted that there were four nail holes in the kidnap ladder rail at the time of the kidnaping.

Through Dr. Erastmus Hudson, fingerprint expert, the defense had asserted that there was only one nail hole and that the three other holes had been added so that they might match nail holes in joists in Hauptmann's attic.

"Going to Do Nursery Job."

Breevoort Bolmar was the most important witness for Hauptmann before the resting of the defense. He declared that on the morning of the kidnaping, a dark green coupé containing a man and a woman had stopped at his gasoline station near the Lindbergh estate.

There was a ladder strapped to the side of the car which he identified as the kidnap ladder. He quoted the man as making a remark which was almost grotesquely significant in the light of future events.

"I'm going to do a nursery job," said the driver of the car, according to Bolmar.

He said Hauptmann was not the man in the car. But he refused, when a picture of Fisch was shown him, to say that it was the dead furrier.

He admitted, under cross-examination, that he never reported this story to the authorities before.

SESSION OF AFTERNOON

Corporal George D. Wilton of the New Jersey state police was the first witness at the afternoon session. He testified he had taken photographs of the kidnap ladder on March 8, 1932, one week after the kidnaping. Enlargements of the photographs were offered in evidence.

"Got anything to prove the date when these photographs were taken?" Reilly demanded.

"Just my own record," was the reply.

The photographs showed four nail holes in the ladder rail. Dr. Hudson, defense witness, had testified he remembered seeing only one nail hole.

Photographs Are Admitted.

Reilly objected to the admission of the photographs.

"I think they're admissible," ruled the judge.

Wilton then pointed to the four nail holes as shown in the photographs. The pictures were passed around to the jurors.

In cross-examination, Reilly said:

"Did you scrape out these holes?"

"No."

"You don't know whether some one drove a nail in there to make those holes?"

"No, sir."

Harold S. Betts took the stand. He was questioned by Wilentz.

Q.—The kidnap ladder was submitted to you for examination? A.—Yes.

Q.—When? A.—May 23, 1932.

Q.—Did you observe any nail holes then? A.—I did, and made a record of them.

Q.—How many nail holes were there? A.—Four. They were made by old fashioned cut nails.

Reilly cross-examined.

Q.—Did Secretary Ickes give you permission to come here? A.—Yes.

Wilentz Enters Protest.

Q.—Do you know a wood expert named Arch W. Loney? A.—I've heard of him.

Q.—Do you know that Secretary Ickes wouldn't let him come here because his testimony would be favorable to the defense?

"O, Mr. Reilly has enough experience to know," protested Wilentz, "that that question is utterly unfair."

The judge sustained Wilentz's objections.

Then came Alfred Budreau, who fainted in court yesterday. He was the New Jersey farmer named by Mrs. Harry Hoff, defense witness, as having accompanied Isador Fisch one day in October, 1933, when Fisch wanted to leave a package with her.

"It is not true," he said, "that I came to Mrs. Hoff's. I never knew Isador Fisch and I haven't seen Mrs. Hoff in years."

"That's all," said the prosecutor.

"You are subject to epileptic fits?" Reilly cross-examined.

"I am not."

"Didn't you have a fit here in court yesterday?"

"No."

"It was too hot in court, and I fainted," Budreau explained. "I haven't been feeling well these last few years."

Real Estate Man Testifies.

Elliott Levinson, a real estate man, was next. On March 1, 1932, he was at the Bronx home of Harry Jung, he said. Fisch also was there during the evening from 7:30 to 10 o'clock, he declared. He, Jung, and Fisch transacted some real estate business.

Reilly protested. Fisch needed no alibi, he declared—no one had placed him near the scene of the kidnaping.

"The inference here from the defense regarding Fisch is unmistakable," said Wilentz. "We want to show where he was that night."

The judge permitted the testimony. Cross-examined by Reilly, Levinson described Fisch as a dark little man, five feet four inches in height.

Q.—How did you get in this case? A.—A detective came to my office.

Q.—You didn't tell any one this story? A.—No.

Q.—A strange man drops out of the clouds and tells you to come down here to Flemington and testify.

Wilentz objected to his phrasing and his objection was sustained.

Housewife Takes Stand.

Mrs. Erna Jung, a trim young German housewife, followed Levinson to the stand. She corroborated Levinson's testimony. She remembered Fisch's presence on the night in question. Fisch was there from 7:30 o'clock until midnight, she said.

"A detective came to your home and you told him about Fisch's visit that night?" Wilentz asked.

"Yes."

Reilly took up the cross-examination.

Q.—On March 1, 1932, how far did you live from the 42d street ferry? A.—About 25 minutes.

Q.—Did you write down something so that you could remember that night? A.—No.

Q.—Fisch didn't tell you he came there that night in order to have an alibi?

"Why I thought," remarked Wilentz in mock surprise, "that Mr. Reilly said Fisch needed no alibi."

Saw Picture in Paper.

"When did you suddenly remember that night?" Reilly asked, disregarding the remark.

"I remembered it when I saw Fisch's picture in the papers," said Mrs. Jung.

Q.—Did you meet Fisch's brother at the hotel in Trenton? A.—Yes, last night.

Q.—Have quite a kaffee-klatch with him? A.—I talked to him.

Q.—And after talking with him you decided to come over here and tell this story. A.—No.

On redirect examination Wilentz asked the same question, which obviously is so infuriating to the defense attorney.

"You've never been convicted of any crime?"

"O, no, sir."

"Nor confined in an insane asylum?"

"No."

Husband Tells of Visit.

Harry Jung, her husband, was next and also testified that Fisch was in his home on the night of March 1, 1932. According to his recollections, the furrier was there from 7:30 to 11 o'clock that night.

He remembered the date, he said, because some promissory notes had been signed that night by a man named Albert Boehn. He produced the notes.

Cross-examining, Reilly thundered:

"Look at those notes! The ink is almost still wet on them!"

"O, no," said Jung, calmly.

"You're sure they were made out nearly three years ago?"

"Positive."

"You know these notes were made out in the last two weeks, don't you?"

"Absolutely, no."

And Wilentz asked his usual final question, "You've never been convicted of a crime?"

OPENING OF SESSION

Charles de Bisschop, the verbose nurseryman from Waterbury, Conn., brought a few more pine boughs and even a stout young sapling into court at the opening of the morning session. He wanted to use these for illustratory purposes in elaborating his testimony, but Wilentz objected and Judge Trenchard sustained the objection.

De Bisschop repeated his assertion that the attic board and the ladder rail were not the same. He went into a long dissertation on lumber and the growth of trees.

The jurors, who had been very attentive yesterday to this witness, grew weary as he rambled on. They have listened since the trial began to lengthy lectures on handwriting, fingerprinting, and the science of wood markings.

Weakens Under Quiz.

De Bisschop even went so far as to testify that the board from Hauptmann's attic apparently never was a part of the attic floor at all.

"I see no nail marks or joist marks indicating it was part of a floor," he said.

But he weakened in this testimony when under cross-examination.

"Well, I see no joist marks on it," he insisted. "I won't say it wasn't part of a floor."

Wilentz handed him a nail.

"That nail never was used at all," declared De Bisschop.

"You are swearing to that?" asked Wilentz.

"Let me look at it again," said the witness.

"O, do you want to change your testimony?"

"Maybe."

Sticks to Testimony.

But De Bisschop, after looking again at the nail, announced:

"It's too straight and shiny. It was never used."

"Would you be surprised to know," barked Wilentz, "that this is one of the nails taken from the attic board?"

De Bisschop hesitated.

"I'd be awful surprised," he admitted.

"Isn't it a fact," demanded Wilentz suddenly, "that these two boards which you say came from different mills are in reality the same board cut in two?"

"No, sir!" answered De Bisschop, indignantly.

The jury was given the two boards to examine and determine for itself the similarity between the two boards.

Tells of "Dark Green Car."

De Bisschop was excused and Breevoort Bolmar was called to the stand. In March, 1932, he ran a service station "on the Hopewell road where it hits the road to Princeton," he said. The Princeton airport, he testified, is near his station.

"On three or four occasions," he said, "a dark green car with a man and a woman in it got gas at my station. The last time was 1:15 a. m. on March 1, 1932. There was a ladder strapped on the car."

Q.—Get a good look at the ladder? A.—Yes. I never saw one like it before. The man said he was going to do a nursery job.

This latter remark was ordered stricken from the record.

Q.—Is this the ladder? [indicating the kidnap ladder]. A.—Yes.

Hauptmann was ordered to stand up.

"Is that the man you saw in the car?" Bolmar was asked.

"Hauptmann Not the Man."

"Positively not."

He described the man in the car as 5 feet 10 inches tall, very thin, weighing approximately 140 pounds.

"He had dark hair and a smooth face," said Bolmar.

"Have you since seen pictures that resemble that man?"

"Yes."

He was shown a picture of Fisch. Bolmar shook his head.

"No, that's not the man," he said.

Defense Attorney Frederick Pope tried to bring out that the witness had seen other pictures in the newspapers which had resembled Fisch.

Ewald Mielke was the next defense witness. He said he was a carpenter and millwright, who had become acquainted with the markings made on lumber by tools, especially those with nicked edges.

He was shown the board from the Hauptmann attic and the kidnap ladder rail.

"Have you an opinion as to whether these two boards were originally the same board?" Pope asked.

Wilentz objected. Mielke was not qualified as an expert on the identification of wood, he asserted.

"He's not offered as a wood technician," Pope declared, "but as a practical man, experienced with lumber."

Examined Boards Briefly.

When Mielke admitted he had given the boards only a superficial examination, Judge Trenchard sustained the objection.

"There is more 'life' in the attic board," declared the witness. "It was cut from a young tree which has more knots in it."

"As a practical millman, can you tell this jury whether these boards are one and the same board?"

"No."

Attorney Pope was taken aback.

"I think I answered that wrong," Mielke remarked, noting the lawyer's expression.

"I meant they are not the same board."

This remark was ordered stricken from the record.

Mielke was shown the wooden plane found in Hauptmann's garage.

"Would it be possible to identify from marks on lumber that this plane was used on that lumber?" Pope asked.

"No."

THE DEFENSE RESTS

After a recess, with the proper sense of the dramatic which is his, Attorney Reilly announced: "The defense rests!"

The hands of the courtroom clock pointed to 8 minutes after 12 o'clock, noon.

In the next 25 minutes, before adjournment for the noon recess, Wilentz fired three rebuttal witnesses at the defense. The attorney general questioned them in snappy fashion.

The first was Joseph J. Farber, an insurance broker from the Bronx, a man with a tendency to indulge in a little oratory, a tendency curbed by Wilentz.

He was asked if he ever had been a candidate for public office, but Reilly objected and the objection was sustained.

Tells of Auto Crash.

At 10 p. m., on the night of April 2, 1932, his automobile and that of Benjamin Heier, defense witness, had collided, he declared.

Q.—How far is the place of the accident from St. Raymond's cemetery? A.—Eight and one-half miles.

Between 9 and 11 o'clock on that night, Heier had testified, he was parked with a girl, Judy Schwartz, now dead, outside the cemetery, and he had seen Isador Fisch jumping over the cemetery wall.

Reilly attacked the witness savagely, but Farber was positive about the time and place of the accident. He admitted that the state was paying his hotel expenses at Trenton, N. J., but that he was paying for his own meals.

Then came Arthur Larson, acquaintance of Elvert Carlstrom, the defense witness who had testified that he saw Hauptmann in Fredericksen's bakery in the Bronx on the night of March 1, 1932, when the child was kidnaped.

Contradicts Defense Point.

"Carlstrom did not leave Dunellen, N. J., that night," Larson said. "I slept with him that night in the house there where he was caretaker. I was painting the interior of the house. I saw him between 9 and 10 o'clock and he did not leave the house at all that evening."

Q.—Did either of you ever leave the house during February or March, 1932? A.—Never on week days. Only week ends.

"That's all," said Wilentz, and Larson started to leave the stand.

"Stay where you are!" shouted the angry Reilly. Larson, startled, resumed his seat.

Q.—Who brought you down here? A.—Detectives from the Bronx.

Q.—What country did you come from? A.—Sweden.

Q.—Taken out your first papers? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you know that March 1 was Carlstrom's birthday? A.—No.

Q.—Where were you on Feb. 28? A.—In the house.

Q.—Feb. 29? A.—The same.

"Sat Around" in House.

Q.—What were you doing at 9 o'clock that evening? A.—Sitting around, I guess.

Wilentz had one more question.

"Have you ever been convicted of a crime?" he asked.

"No."

The same question had been asked of Farber and also was asked of the next witness, with negative answers received. Thus, the prosecutor slyly reminded the jurors of the records of many of the defense witnesses.

Hilbert Christenson, owner of the house at Dunellen, was called and told of employing Carlstrom to care for the house in February and March, 1932, and to keep the furnace going. His records showed that both Carlstrom and Larson were employed by him March 1, 1932. Reilly made many objections to his testimony, which were overruled. He asked one question on cross-examination.

"You didn't see either Carlstrom or Larson on March 1?"

"No."

Prevent Rudy Vallee From Punching His Wife's Lawyer

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Rudy Vallee, who croons into a radio microphone and directs jax orchestras for a living, essayed the role of a rough and tumble fighter this afternoon in the Supreme court by lashing out with his fists at Benjamin Hartstein, one of the battery of lawyers representing Mrs. Vallee in her suit to set aside a separation agreement under which she is paid $100 a week.

Vallee's attempt to punch Hartstein, prevented by other lawyers, came as the climax of a day of noisy squabbles, and it was followed by an oral bout between Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo, who is presiding at the trial, and another of Mrs. Vallee's lawyers, Benjamin Cohn of California, with the result that Justice Cotillo became so angry that he invited the lawyer to meet him "in New Jersey."

Sinister Influence Charged.

The whole noisy business started while Thomas I. Sheridan, of counsel to Mrs. Vallee, was arguing against a motion made by Vallee's counsel for a dismissal of the wife's action. In the course of his argument Sheridan intimated that Hyman Bushel, Vallee's counsel, was a rather powerful and sinister influence in the case.

This made Mr. Bushel angry. He listened in silence for a moment, though shaking his head violently. Finally, he leaped to his feet and accused Sheridan of being the "Abe Hummel of New York," referring to the late Abraham Hummel, who was sent to prison for subornation of perjury.

"You should be telling me these things," Bushel shouted at the top of his voice. "You, the Abe Hummel of New York!"

It was Sheridan's turn to get angry and he did. He became so angry that he couldn't talk much more. He did talk enough to demand that the court force Bushel to apologize for calling him names.

Decision Is Reserved.

Before Justice Cotillo could do anything about this demand, Sheridan sat down, and then Justice Cotillo adjourned the case to next Wednesday, reserving decision on the motion to dismiss.

That's when the real fireworks of the day started.

Lawyers, attendants, and supernumeraries in the big show rushed forward and grabbed battling Rudy. Others grabbed Hartstein. Justice Cotillo was banging with his gavel, banging for all he was worth.

The two would-be fighters were separated and not a blow had been struck. Just attempted.

Mrs. Vallee was not in court today. Her attorneys explained that she was ill, under the care of a doctor and a nurse.

The plaintiff's case was rested after two accountants, one for each side, had testified concerning Vallee's income for 1932, 1933 and 1934. The average net annual income for the three year period was $120,000, after all business expenses and taxes were paid. The accountant for Vallee insisted on the $120,000 average, while the wife's accountant held out for a $133,000 average. The plaintiff then conceded the $120,000 figure.

Vallee's income, it was brought out, is from two sources—his earnings as an individual and his earnings as a corporation, the Rudy Vallee Orchestra Units, Inc.

The accountants who testified were William Jacobs, for the plaintiff, and Kenneth Montgomery, for the defendant.

During the cross-examination of Mr. Montgomery Bushel asked:

"Mr. Montgomery, isn't it a fact that if Vallee were to die today he would owe the government between $60,000 and $80,000 in taxes?"

"Yes," Montgomery replied.

A telephone conversation which Mrs. Vallee allegedly had with Garry Leon, an adagio dancer, after she had emerged from a shower bath, was the subject of cross-examination and argument earlier in the session today.

GEORGE DRYDEN FREED IN BEATING OF CABARET GIRL

Admits Dunking Her in Tub at Gay Party.

George Eastman Dryden, grandnephew of the late George Eastman of camera millions, yesterday was found not guilty of charges of battery and assault growing out of an all night party in his apartment at 815 Rush street on Jan. 15. High point of the charges was that Dryden gave a forcible bath, in hot water, to Miss Vera [Billy] Read, 21 years old, a night club hostess, and didn't even bother to remove her clothes.

The case was heard without a jury in Judge Gibson E. Gorman's South State street court. A similar case, with Hazel [Sunny] Read, sister of the bathtub girl as plaintif is pending. It will be assigned to a different judge.

Admit Bathtub "Incident."

Two widely varying stories were told from the witness stand by the plaintif and defendant in yesterday's hearing. Both sides, however, stipulated that there had been a bathtub incident, and that Billy was the girl who got wet.

Testifying in her own behalf, with occasional prompting from Attorney David Branower, cting as a special assistant state's attorney, Billy Read said that she was a hostess, was 21 years old, and came to Chicago from Tulsa, Okla.

She said that on the night in question she went to Dryden's apartment from the Club Alabam, 747 Rush street, where she was then employed.

"I didn't want to go," she added, "but my sister, also a hostess at the club, had gone. Then later she and Mr. Dryden returned for me. I was getting ready to leave the club, anyway, so I went with them."

Bedroom Scene Told.

She was questioned about what took place in the apartment. She said that she was left alone in a bedroom with Dryden.

Miss Read smiled waveringly. "He," she said, flashing a glance at Dryden, "grabbed me and threw me down on the bed. 'You stay with me,' he said. I tried to fight him off. He hit me a couple of times, and my nose began to bleed. I ran into the bathroom, and he fought with me again in there. My sister came to my aid, and he struggled with both of us. It was then that he threw me into the water."

Hazel Read then took the stand and corroborated her sister's story. It was brought out that the warants were taken out by Hazel.

Dryden testified in his own defense. He answered the questions of his attorneys, William H. Murphy and William B. Gemmill Jr., in a low voice.

"Did you attempt to attack the girls?" he was asked.

"I did not," he said.

"Were you drunk?"

"I was not," Dryden replied firmly. "I only had seven drinks all night."

The evening began, Dryden said, with a dinner party, attended by four others in his apartment. He left the apartment three times to take girls to street cars, to work, and finally to escort Vera Read to his apartment.

Vera Quite Difficult.

"I went after her with Hazel," Dryden said, "and we brought her out of the club. She was intoxicated and was screaming, kicking, and cursing."

Attorney Branower objected that the witness had not been qualified as an expert on intoxication.

"O, but he is," Attorney Murphy said. "In fact, he is quite expert."

The girls went into the bedroom to take off their wraps, Dryden said, and he went into the kitchen to mix a drink.

"Hazel screamed for me to come and help her," he said, "and when I entered the bedroom she was holding Billy. I held her, and William Abbott [one of the dinner guests] got her a glass of water. She threw it against the radiator, and then tried to cut her wrists with it."

It was then, Dryden said, that Hazel suggested that they give Billy a bath.

Dryden said the water was turned on by Hazel and that it wasn't hot, "because we can never get hot water at that hour in the morning." He added that Billy's clothes were not removed for fear she might rush out of the apartment in the nude.

After the bathtub incident, he said, Billy was dried out in the kitchen and she and her sister went home in a cab.

FOUND DEAD BY WIFE.

Thomas Dalton, 62 years old, 911 Belden avenue, died yesterday in his home of a heart attack. He was found dead in his room by his wife, Irene.

BANDIT SUSPECT SLAIN, 2 POLICE SHOT IN BATTLE

Companion Flees in Car After Gun Fight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Burlington, Wis., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Reinholt Fleuker, 35, former tavernkeeper here, was shot and killed tonight and two Burlington policemen were wounded in a gun fight on a lonely road three miles north of here.

The fight occurred when the two policemen, on the lookout for an automobile that had sped from a nearby village after a holdup, overtook a car containing Fleuker and another man after a three mile chase.

Police Veteran Wounded.

The wounded policemen were Hubert Schenning, a veteran of the force, who suffered a shotgun wound in the stomach and is in a serious condition at Burlington Memorial hospital, and Arthur Rein, a former deputy sherif and semi-pro baseball player, who was shot through the left hand.

Two occupants were in the automobile which police suspected was that containing the holdup men. The other man escaped in the machine under a hail of bullets fired by Rein.

Fleuker's body was thrown from the car a mile from the scene of the shooting. Deputy sherifs and police of several counties were seeking the dead man's companion tonight.

Seized in Bank Robbery.

Fleuker, who made his home here, operated the Log Cabin tavern for several years. Several years ago he was arrested and charged with participation in the holdup of the Meinhardt bank here, in which Frank Kamin, one of the bandits, was wounded as the robbers fled the town in an automobile. Patrolman Schenning fired the shot which wounded Kamin. Fleuker was acquitted when tried in the robbery.

The shooting occurred after Burlington police were notified that the Wallace Drummond general store in Honey Creek, three miles northwest of here, had been robbed by two bandits.

Schenning and Rein started in search of the bandits. They were just inside the Burlington city limits on the Honey Creek road when they saw an automobile coming toward them. Rein, who was driving, stopped the police car.

Crowd Car to Ditch.

The driver of the other automobile saw the police car and swerved off the dirt road and headed north toward Rochester, Wis., on highway 36. The police gave chase.

When the pursued automobile swerved off on the Bellewood road the police car overtook it and crowded it close to the ditch. Schenning jumped out and walked toward the automobile. The driver of the machine was armed with a sawed off shotgun.

Rein does not know definitly whether the driver was the man who wounded Schenning. The latter was in too weak a condition at the hospital tonight to tell. Rein said he heard a shot, saw Schenning fall, and heard him say, "They got me!"

Shot Kills Suspect.

Rein leaped out and ran for the rear door of the bandit car. Rein jerked open the door and he and the occupant of the rear seat fired simultaneously. The bandit's bullet went through Rein's left hand. The shotgun charge fired by Rein killed the man in the back seat.

When the driver of the bandit car started away Rein ran toward Schenning to assist him, he said, and then fired several shots at the fleeing automobile.

He then brought Schenning to the Burlington Memorial hospital.

ACT TO CUT TOLL AT HALSTED ST. GRADE CROSSING

A tentative agreement on improvements to reduce the hazard of automobile train collisions at the Halsted street crossing of the Grand Trunk and the Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal railroads, near 154th place, between Harvey and Phoenix, was reached yesterday at a conference conducted by the Illinois commerce commission. Officials of the railroads and the municipalities attended.

The plan, which is to be studied by the railroads' representatives, provides for the establishment of a safety zone, out of which vehicular and pedestrain trafic would be kept when trains went by.

Several weeks ago seven social workers in an automobile were killed by a train at the crossing.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 20; recovered, 21; stripped, 2 [from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Thursday].

BLAME LACK OF CROSSING SIGNAL FOR BOY'S DEATH

An ice-clogged windshield and an unprotected railroad crossing were blamed yesterday for the death of Charles Spinner, 13 years old, 624 Park avenue, Wilmette. The boy was fatally injured and five other members of the basketball team of Howard school, Wilmette, were hurt Thursday night.

The automobile in which they were returning from a game at Des Plaines crashed into the side of a Milwaukee railroad train near Glenview.

The deaths of Spinner and of two pedestrians who were struck by automobiles brought the Cook county motor toll to 92 for the year. The other victims:

Joseph Messino, 45 years old, 735 Taylor street. Died in the County hospital of injuries suffered Thursday when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Morgan street at Taylor street.

Mrs. Rose Dhier, 56 years old, 5156 South Laflin street. Died in the County hospital of injuries incurred when she was struck by a truck as she alighted from a street car at 45th street and Wentworth avenue.

Albert Sierzput, 27 years old, 4430 South Francisco avenue, was arrested last night by the Englewood police as the driver whose car struck and seriously injured Fred Robertson, 41 years old, 534 West 60th street, at 63d street and Parnell avenue late Thursday.

Sierzput took Robertson to St. Bernard hospital and then reported to the police he had found the victim injured and lying unconscious in the street. Later police learned from a witness that Robertson was carried away in the car which struck him. Sierzput admitted after his arrest that his car had struck Robertson.

At 4 p. m. yesterday the number of trafic deaths within the Chicago city limits was 77 for the year, and the number of injured 1,518.

SOCIETY BRIDE QUITS CHAUFFEUR AFTER 2 WEEKS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—A fortnight of wedded bliss apparently had ended today for George Scarlett, a chauffeur, and his society bride, the former Jane Cooke of fashionable Chevy Chase, Md., whose strange disappearance climaxed a series of turbulent developments.

Relatives of the bride say that when she left she headed for a haven at Belfast, Me., home of an aunt.

CHARGE PILOT OF PLANE IN WHICH 7 DIED WAS SHOT

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Charges that a revolver battle took place aboard the "Flying Hotel," the famous Dutch airliner which crashed in the Syrian desert in December, killing seven men, are being made in Sourabaya, Dutch East Indies, a dispatch to the London Daily Herald tonight said.

"It is alleged that one of the seven men in the airplane ordered the pilot to stop at an unscheduled spot after receiving a radio message," the dispatch asserted.

"Pilot Beekman refused and a quarrel began, in which he [Beekman] was shot. The gunman then tried to fly the machine back to Cairo, an attempt which resulted in its crash, it is declared. It is also widely rumored here [in Sourabaya] that investigators found a bullet wound in the pilot's body."

The air liner became popularly known as the "Flying Hotel" when it finished second in the England to Melbourne air derby last October. It was of American make.

PRESIDENT ASKS AID OF GLASS TO SAVE WORK BILL

Senate Changes Worry New Dealers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt has appealed to Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], chairman of the senate appropriations committee and one of the bitterest critics of the New Deal, in an effort to save the 5 billion dollar work relief bill from a rout in the senate.

The appeal, it was learned today, was made by telephone call to the senator's hotel last night, after the appropriations committee had voted 12 to 8 to adopt an amendment providing for the payment of the prevailing wage on federal works projects.

Glass Previously Ignored.

Up until last night the President had held frequent conferences on the gigantic spending measure with administration leaders in both houses of congress, but had never spoken a word about it to the chairman of the senate appropriations committee. This was the subject of scornful comment by Senator Glass, who made such remarks as "the President has not seen fit to consult with the chairman of the senate appropriations committee."

Mr. Roosevelt had relied upon Senator James F. Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], "the real chairman of the committee," in the caustic words of Senator Glass, to pilot the bill through in its original form to the floor of the senate.

But yesterday, over a warning from Chairman Glass, Senator Byrnes put his leadership to a test on the prevailing wage amendment and lost 12 to 8, with seven Democrats voting with 5 Republicans in favor of the measure.

McAdoo Will Move Reconsideration.

No action to change that amendment, submitted by Senator Pat McCarran [Dem., Nev.], was taken in the committee meeting today, although Senator William G. McAdoo [Dem., Cal.], a good New Dealer who voted for it yesterday, served notice that on Monday he would move for a reconsideration.

Mr. McAdoo explained that he had voted under a misapprehension, that the bureau of the budget told him the cost of putting 3,500,000 men to work at prevailing wages would be between 6 and 7 billion dollars instead of 4 billion, the amount carried in the bill for public works.

Senator McCarran expressed confidence that his amendment would stand, despite the arrival today of two members of the Philippines commission who are on the committee. These are Senators Millard Tydings [Dem., Md.] and Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.]. McKellar is against the amendment and Tydings is doubtful.

Tie Vote Foreseen.

There are two other votes to be taken, Senator Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.] and Senator John H. Overton [Dem., La.] having been absent. But Senator McCarran pointed out that even if all four of these members voted for reconsideration the motion would lose in a tie.

Senator Alva B. Adams [Dem., Colo.] is just as confident that his amendment, lopping off 2 billion dollars from the appropriation and leaving nothing but the dole, will carry before the bill is reported out, although it lost, 10 to 10, Wednesday.

Thus, the administration's spending bill, which came virtually unimpaired through the gag-ruled house, is floundering between the Charybdis of the 6 billion dollar prevailing wage and the Scylla of the 2 billion dollar dole, which the administration abhors with impartiality.

Fear Action on Floor.

What the committee does with respect to the prevailing wage amendment is of major importance, for if the bill gets out on the floor in that form the senators will have to confront a roll call, and many of them, it is believed, would vote against their best judgment rather than antagonize the labor and relief vote.

Labor is for the amendment, the argument being that $50 a month wages as proposed by the President would drag down the scale in private employment.

President Roosevelt is said to have talked at some length with the vituperative Virginian, cajoling him and even discussing in conciliatory tones the administration's banking bill. This bill has been designated by Senator Glass as "a subterfuge to create a central bank."

Administration leaders on Capitol hill are worried about the banking bill, because Senator Glass has vowed to fight it with all his fury.

ATTACKS RELIEF POLICY AND NEW DEAL THEORIES

Relief policies of the New Deal and the proposed thirty hour week constitute threats to the continued peace and economic security of the United States. This was the assertion made by Col. Frederick Palmer, war correspondent and lecturer, at a luncheon of the Executives' club yesterday in the Hotel Sherman.

"The visionary theories of the 'nuts' at Washington are making of Americans a people that waits to be given something," Col. Palmer said. "Unless we forget this thirty hour week and develop ambition, we can never hope to compete with foreign nations. Our only guarantee of continued peace is an economic stability created by a restoration of ambition in the people—plus a navy adequate for our needs."

Maj. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, retiring commander of the 12th brigade with headquarters at Fort Sheridan, was notified yesterday by the war department that he has been transferred to Fort Sam Houston, Tex. He will take command of the Second division headquarters there on March 1.

Gen. Bolles will be accompanied to his new command by his aids, Lieut. John L. Hines and Lieut. Robert A. Hewitt, a son-in-law of Gen. Bolles. Brig. Gen. Dana T. Merrill, former commander of the army post at Fort Thomas, Ky., will replace Gen. Bolles at Fort Sheridan.

"I have enjoyed my work in the Fort Sheridan command," Maj. Gen. Bolles said yesterday. "I wish to extend my thanks to the people of Chicago and the north shore for the cooperation which has made my stay so pleasant."

URGES DANIELS BE RECALLED AS MEXICAN ENVOY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Lively debate rocked back and forth in the house of representatives today on the Higgins resolution calling for intervention in Mexico or withdrawal of American recognition unless conditions are bettered in that country.

The debate began when Representative William P. Connery Jr. [Dem., Mass.], condemned the Mexican government as "using its military forces in age old efforts of paganism and atheism." He advocated withdrawal of recognition unless "religious persecutions cease" and charged Josephus Daniels, ambassador to Mexico, with "coöperating with the tyrants of Mexico to enslave its people."

As he concluded North Carolina representatives leaped to their feet to defend Ambassador Daniels, whose home is in that state.

Leading the opposition against Connery, Representative Tom Blanton [Dem., Tex.] said he did not believe it was the business of the United States to interfere with the internal policies of any country. He invited Connery to visit Mexico so that he would get "a different idea of the situation."

The house passed the 99 million dollar state, justice, commerce and labor department appropriation bill without a record vote, and also voted $50,000 for the Sabath committee investigation into mortgage foreclosure receiverships. The house adjourned until Tuesday noon.

HOWE DEMOTED; NEW ATTORNEY NAMED FOR AAA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Following through his purge of New Deal radicals from the Agricultural Adjustment administration, Administrator Chester C. Davis tonight announced appointment of Dr. Calvin B. Hoover as consumers' counsel. Dr. Hoover will succeed Dr. Frederic C. Howe, one of the left wing group involved in the shakeup.

Dr. Howe is not to be fired as were Jerome N. Frank, AAA chief counsel, and three of his aids, but is demoted, Davis said. Howe will assist Dr. Hoover until he is given another assignment. Dr. Hoover, who is said to be a conservative New Dealer, is a member of the AAA staff on leave of absence from Duke university, where he is a professor of economics.

Undersecretary of Agriculture and No. 1 Brain Truster Rexford Guy Tugwell, who sponsored the group of radicals discharged or demoted in the AAA housecleaning, returned from Florida during the day.

Automobile Dealer Pleads Guilty to Tax Evasion

Harry J. Felz, head of the Felz Motor Sales company, 1143 Diversey parkway, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan to evading income tax payments of approximately $2,000 for the years 1927 and 1928. Edwin T. Peiffer, attorney for Felz, said his client had been mislead by accountants and had no intention of violating the law. Judge Sullivan continued the case for disposition on Feb. 15.

CALIFORNIA ASKS 170 MILLION FOR FLOOD CONTROL

Members of Committee Are Amused.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A request for favorable consideration of a 170 million dollar appropriation for improvement of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers in California today found the house flood control committee in a merry mood. For more than an hour committee members hurled pointed questions at Edward Hyatt, California state engineer, who appeared as spokesman for the project.

Hyatt declared that the improvement, known as the Central valley project, was vital to preserve the fertility of the area involved and prevent floods. He said it was proposed to build a dam at the head of the Sacramento river which would prevent sea water from flowing into the head waters of the rivers during the summer months when the streams dried.

Dam Would Restore Land.

The dam would preserve the fertility in areas injured by the salt water, he said, and would also aid in irrigating the San Joaquin river area. He said water could be piped from the dam to where it might be needed. In response to a question he said the San Joaquin area is 152 feet higher than the proposed dam area, but the water could easily be piped up.

"When did you have your last flood in the area?" Chairman Wilson asked.

"In 1916," Hyatt answered after some hesitation. "But we did have a flood in 1929."

"Were any lives lost," he was asked.

"No, but some property was damaged," Hyatt replied.

Asked if the flood was in the Sacramento or San Joaquin areas, Hyatt replied that it was in the Feather river area. He confessed the 1929 flood had no relation to the project, as committee members laughed.

Wants 52 Million Grant.

Hyatt was asked if the project would be self-liquidating. With a serious mein he explained that it would be if the government were to make an outright grant of 52 of the asked 170 millions. Members of the committee smiled.

Representative Glenn Griswold [Dem., Ind.] followed with a question as to other loans and grants by the federal government in the state of California. Other committee members put in further questions.

Hyatt recalled that the RFC had loaned 52 million dollars for the Bay bridge, linking San Francisco and Oakland. He also recalled that the state was loaned 200 million dollars for the aqueduct, linking California with Boulder dam.

Asked if he remembered whether the state had not promised to build this aqueduct with its own funds if the government built the dam, Hyatt explained that the state intended to do so at the time it made the promise.

Quizzed About Other Aid.

"And the state has received its share of PWA, relief, and other federal funds?" a committee member asked.

"I suppose so," was Hyatt's reply. "But the central valley project is distinct and has no relation to other matters."

"It sounds screwy to me," one of the committee members said dryly.

After the laugh which followed this remark, Engineer Hyatt was excused. Two days ago Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, who swung the California delegation to Roosevelt in the critical hour last Democratic convention, appeared before the committee to declare "the economic lives of a million people depend on your decision."

CARY T. GRAYSON NEW CHAIRMAN OF RED CROSS

Roosevelt Honors Wilson's Close Friend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, retired, White House physician during the administration of Woodrow Wilson, was chosen by President Roosevelt today to become chairman of the American Red Cross.

Admiral Grayson succeeds the late Judge John Barton Payne of Chicago, former secretary of the interior, who headed the Red Cross until his death on Jan. 23. The President of the United States, as president of the Red Cross, appoints the chairman, who is the active head and who serves without compensation.

By selecting Admiral Grayson to head the Red Cross, President Roosevelt brought back into public life a man who 15 years ago appeared to govern the country for a short time as regent for an ailing President.

Wilson's Only Visitor.

After President Wilson's physical collapse during his fight with the senate over the league of nations, Admiral Grayson, as physician and intimate friend of the President, became the only person except Mrs. Wilson to see the stricken chief executive and to handle his affairs of state.

When Mr. Wilson left the White House, Admiral Grayson returned to his duties as naval surgeon. He retired from the service in 1928.

An accident which occurred on President Wilson's first inaugural day threw Cary Grayson, then physician on the presidential yacht Mayflower, into his position of future prestige and power. At the height of the inaugural festivities President Wilson's sister cut a gash in her forehead and a doctor had to be called.

Remained as Friend.

The President had not designated an official White House physician. White House attachés summoned Dr. Grayson. He remained to become the White House doctor and one of Wilson's few intimate friends.

Through Dr. Grayson, Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt, who became the second Mrs. Wilson, was first introduced to the widowed President. The romance between Wilson and Mrs. Galt coincided with Grayson's courtship of Alice Gertrude Gordon.

Wilson appointed Dr. Grayson, now raised to the rank of rear admiral, as medical member of the Council of National Defense. Admiral Grayson's period of greatest power came, however, after the President's collapse, when he alone, except Mrs. Wilson, saw the chief executive.

EXPECT NEW U. S. CASH TO FILL GAP IN STATE RELIEF

Coffers to Be Empty by Feb. 13, Says Chief.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, expressed certainty last night that federal funds will be forthcoming soon to replenish this state's relief coffers, which are expected to be drained by Feb. 13.

His assurance was based on a dispatch from Washington which said that the Federal Emergency Relief administration had borrowed $50,000,000 from the Public Works administration to bridge the gap between Feb. 10 and the time when congress passes new relief appropriations.

When the new federal funds will arrive could not be determined, although Mr. Reynolds telephoned the FERA headquarters at Washington in an effort to find out.

Funds Almost Gone.

He was reminded that the FERA had approved Illinois' request for $10,225,000 for February requirements, subject to availability of the money. Illinois thus far has received about one-third, $3,422,000. This amount, with balances from last months and $3,000,000 state funds, is almost exhausted.

Meanwhile alarm spread through a number of counties. Work relief projects in St. Clair and Macoupin counties were ordered suspended last night to enable the continuance of the less expensive direct relief for a little longer.

Instructions were sent to all counties to refrain from issuing any relief orders to families beyond the limits of their present funds, which in most cases will last until Feb. 13. Mr. Reynolds said that no relief client was in danger of starvation because the relief orders will buy supplies for at least several days ahead.

State Money Ready.

Aside from the expected aid from Washington the state treasury has about $3,000,000 in funds to be used next month as Illinois' contribution to the total expenditures. Should any real emergency arise this could be employed to advantage, it was said.

At its meeting yesterday the relief commission revealed that Charles Boeschenstein, Edwardsville banker, had resigned as a member because of the press of other duties.

The commission rejected two proposals under which relief clients would have been employed in competition with private industry. One was a request for federal funds to bolster the cash assets of Independent Products, Inc., a self-help cooperative engaged in the production of food and clothing.

The other proposal defeated was a plan to operate three idle factories to manufacture blankets, lether coats, and stoves. This was to be only preliminary to the manufacture of relief goods on a larger scale.

"This tends too much toward state control," said State Treasurer John Martin. "It's communistic in tendency."

INJURIES IN FALL FATAL.

Injuries incurred in a fall at his home Thursday caused the death yesterday of John Ball, 66 years old, 815 East 61st street.

SCOUTS PRAISED BY ROOSEVELT ON ANNIVERSARY

Speech Is Broadcast to Many Meetings.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The Boy Scouts of America were commended for their public service as a vital factor in American life tonight by President Roosevelt in a nationally broadcast speech made as part of the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the organization.

Mr. Roosevelt has been active in the Scout movement for many years as President of the Boy Scout Foundation of New York City. In August he expects to greet between 25,000 and 30,000 Boy Scouts, who will hold a "jamboree" here, camping at the base of the Washington monument.

The President was introduced to the radio audience and to Scouts meeting tonight in many cities by Walter W. Head, president of the Scouts, who spoke from the Auditorium in St. Louis, where 10,000 Scouts were gathered for ceremonies.

Mr. Roosevelt in turn introduced Dr. James E. West, chief Scout executive, who led the nation-wide Scout audience in repeating the Scout oath and law.

Marks 25th Anniversary.

The text of the President's speech in part follows:

"The year 1935 marks the 25th birthday celebration of the Boy Scouts of America. During these years the value of our organization in building character and in training for citizenship has made itself a vital factor in the life of America. That is why not only the Boy Scouts of today but the millions of men and boys who have graduated through scouting will be joined by millions of other Americans in the proper marking and celebration of our anniversary.

"As I review the record of these 25 years of scouting in America I am impressed with the extent of the volunteer service we have rendered. We as a nation are proud of the fact that in addition to our splendid system of education and of other services made available through funds secured by taxation there are in each community so many well organized and efficiently administered agencies which supplement the work of government and make available additional opportunities which strengthen the best objectives of the home, the church, and the school.

Plan Good Turn Daily.

"Every Scout seeks to do a good turn daily—every troop seeks to accomplish some community benefit; and occasionally, as last year, Scouts everywhere unite to do a good turn nationally. A year ago, as your honorary president, I started the national Scout effort to collect household furnishings and clothing and other supplies for those in need; and the results were truly amazing. Hundreds of thousands of families were helped by the Boy Scouts.

"The program for this year, embracing as it does over one million boys, lasts throughout the year. In May there will be a gathering of the leaders of scouting at the 25th annual meeting of the national council.

"But the outstanding event will be America's first national jamboree, to be held here in the city of Washington from Aug. 21 to Aug. 30. I hope to attend it in person. Since I extended the invitation a year ago, definite plans have crystalized. With the coöperation of various officials here in Washington a fine camp site has been made available and will be all ready to receive thirty thousand boys when the meeting starts.

"We hope, too, that other countries will send at least small delegations to meet with us on this occasion. Because scouting is now in active operation in almost every civilized nation of the world, this will give us a splendid opportunity to enlarge our basis of mutual respect, of understanding and of friendship among the people of the world regardless of race or creed."

ICKES DISMISSES ENGINEER; GRAFT INQUIRY STARTED

Maj. C.R. Oldberg, Expert on Irrigation, Fired.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Maj. Charles Real Oldberg, chief irrigation investigating engineer for the Public Works administration, was dismissed today by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes as a special federal grand jury began investigation into charges of graft in connection with a $4,853,000 PWA irrigation project in Willacy county, Tex.

Beyond stating that Oldberg had been suspended about a month ago as the PWA launched an inqury into the project, which resulted in the summoning of the grand jury, PWA officials were silent. The dismissal was announced by Milton W. King, attorney for Oldberg, who said that another engineer has also been discharged. PWA officials would not give the name of the second engineer.

Oldberg Denies Wrong Doing.

King said Oldberg had been associated with the Texas project although he has not been subpenaed to appear at the investigation. It was reported a subpena may be issued shortly.

King said that Oldberg not only denied any wrong doing but had been denied a personal hearing by Ickes.

Oldberg was reported to have answered charges against him by stating to PWA officials that conduct in the Willacy county project was actuated only by a desire to serve the best interests of the government. King said Oldberg is prepared to defend his conduct before the grand jury.

Irrigation Engineer.

Maj. Oldberg, who is 59 years old, is a Washingtonian. As an engineer he has been engaged in irrigation projects in the west and was consulted by the Mexican and Russian governments. He served in the Indian bureau, war department, geological survey, and reclamation service before joining the PWA staf in 1933.

He had personal charge of the Coolidge dam, the Ashurst-Hayden dam in Arizona, the Sacaton dam, the Roosevelt dam, Salt River, and other projects. During the war he served 14 months overseas with the engineer corps.

VERDICT IN POLICE SLAYING.

A verdict of murder by persons unknown was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Policeman Alfred Stokke of Town Hall police, who was shot by two robbers when he interrupted a holdup at the Meisel Tire company, 4465 Broadway, on Jan. 24.

FREE TWO MORE WOMEN IN CLUB MURDER INQUIRY

Assistant State's Attorneys Charles S. Dougherty and Morris Meyers yesterday questioned several witnesses in the hope of finding a clew to the identity of the blonde woman who visited the Saddle and Cycle club early last Sunday only a short time before the body of Louis K. Straub, bartender, was found there. Straub had been shot to death.

This woman remained as the central figure of the investigation. Kenneth Colling, a taxicab driver, told of taking her to the club, of her remaining there about fifteen minutes and then returning to the cab. She dismissed the cab after being driven to a drug store at 1100 Argyle street where she purchased a pint of whisky.

Colling, who had already viewed Mrs. Straub and her close friend, Mrs. Ellen Edlin, and asserted neither was the mystery woman, yesterday viewed several other women. Among them were Mrs. Mae Serlin and Mrs. Billy Van, who were playing cards Saturday evening in the flat of Miss Josephine Daniels at 2347 Geneva terrace, as were Mrs. Edlin and Mrs. Straub. The prosecutors, convinced that Mrs. Van and Mrs. Serlin had nothing to do with the death, released them. An inquest into the Straub death will be resumed today.

INJURED IN FREIGHT TUNNEL.

Arthur Edelstein, 40 years old, 2210 Division street, was critically injured yesterday when he was struck by a car in a freight tunnel at Wabash avenue and Kinzie street.

LAUNCH BOY SCOUT WEEK; LEADERS OPEN DRIVE FOR $65,000

Boy Scout week opened officially in Chicago yesterday with a luncheon in the University club which marked the launching of a drive for $65,000 to carry on the program of the Chicago Scout council during the coming year. Fifty business men, headed by R. Douglas Stuart, president of the council, and Mason Phelps, chairman of the executive board, attended the meeting.

Th $65,000 fund will continue the character building program for 14,000 Boy Scouts, 750 Sea Scouts, and 2,000 Cubs. Committees in every neighborhood will call upon business men to seek contributions.

YOUTH ADMITS SLAYING WOMAN DURING ROBBERY

Sigmund Dryganski, 20 years old, of 1338 West 49th street, confessed last night to Capt. John Prendergast of the Stockyards police that he killed Mrs. Anna Urbanek, 52 years old, of 5136 South Throop street, during a robbery on Jan. 27.

Dryganski in his first statement declared that two other youths arrested with him in a general roundup of suspects had participated in the murder, but later retracted this story and said that he had done the killing alone.

The other two, both of whom Dryganski said had been with him in another robbery earlier that night, are Fred Theel, 18 years old, of 1118 West 51st street, and Henry Zdanowicz, 16 years old, of 5039 South Racine avenue. They are held for robbery.

Mrs. Urbanek's body was found in the rear of St. John's Catholic church, 5115 Throop street. She had been killed by a blow on the head and there were evidences she had been raped. Dryganski denied the rape, although admitting the robbery and murder.

4 BILLS TO END MARRIAGE LAW ABUSES READY

Directed at Unfair Suits and Gin Weddings.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

The last of four bills intended to modernize Illinois laws governing the adjustment of social relationships between man and woman through equity and law courts, has just been completed by Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort one of Cook county's four divorce judges.

Each of the bills was written to remedy injustices and abuses now possible under the state's archaic marriage, divorce, separate maintenance, and alimony laws. One of the measures would amend also the present law on litigation for monetary damages over breach of promise and alienation of affections.

Wide and Strong Support.

Judge Desort's program enjoys the support of his colleagues, of civic organizations such as the state League of Women Voters, and of lawmakers in the general assembly. Two of his bills, written several months ago, already have been introduced in the senate by Senator Richey V. Graham of Chicago, president pro tem and Democratic leader.

The second pair of bills will be introduced by Senator Graham within a few days. At the moment they are in the hands of experts in the legislative reference bureau at Springfield, where they are being put into final form. Senator Graham, it may be recalled, sponsored the reciprocal alimony bill passed during the 1933 session, which equalized a situation long held by judges to be unfair.

Changes Contemplated in Laws.

In brief the four proposed measures provide, respectively:

1. Application for a marriage license must be made by both parties to the marriage at least three days and not more than 30 days before the license is to be issued.

2. Defendants in breach of promise or alienation of affection suits may not be named in the original filing of such cases. Proceedings may be amended to include defendant's names only after the justice to whom the case has been assigned, has heard a summary of the evidence and has determined that there are reasonable grounds for the action.

3. Separate maintenance decrees may remain in force for only two years. At the expiration of that period it is mandatory for the parties either to reunite or obtain a divorce decree. The law would include a provision enabling either party to obtain a divorce on grounds of desertion after living apart for two years under the separation decree. Neither party loses property rights.

Fairness to Co-Respondents.

4. Co-respondents in divorce suits in which adultery is charged become parties to the suit and must receive notice of the proceedings so that they may appear if they choose to do so. No co-respondent in such a case may be named in the original bill, and the co-respondent may be identified only after a justice before whom a preliminary hearing has been held, has given approval of this act.

There are cogent reasons for immediate passage of each of these bills, Judge Desort asserted yesterday during a discussion of his program.

"The divorce, marriage, alimony, and heart balm laws of this state were made half a century ago," said he. "Since their passage the structure of society has completely changed. Consequently there is need for change in the law and I believe the major needs at least are met in the bills I've written."

Qualifies as Authority.

Although Judge Desort, who is 37 years old, is the youngest of the judges on either the Circuit or Superior benches, he has been hearing divorce cases for more than three years during which time he has signed more than 15,000 decrees. He is married and the father of four children, the youngest just four months old and the eldest seven years old.

"I think," he said, "that my experience on the bench qualifies me to pick the flaws in the divorce laws of the state."

Bill No. 1 which proposes that all couples be compelled to give three days notice of intention to wed is aimed, the judge explained, at the "rum marriages" which have been prevalent. Nine other states have similar laws.

Marrying parsons and justices of the peace in Crown Point and Valparaiso, Ind., and in Waukegan probably will suffer a business slump if the bill is passed, the judge said. Comity between the states would demand that Illinois laws be invoked for Illinois residents regardless of the state in which they proposed to obtain the license.

The second bill, prohibiting the naming of defendants in breach of promise or alienation of affection suits without court sanction, would be an effective bar to the blackmail often practiced in the courts today, Judge Desort asserted.

He admitted that damages are assessed and collected with full justification in many cases, but commented that all too often the threat of unpleasant publicity attendant upon the filing of such a suit is used as a club to bludgeon settlements out of defendants in instances in which a judge would have thrown the cases out of court.

How Measure Would Work.

If this measure became law, the good faith of the plaintif and the reasonable legal basis of his suit would be determined by the Circuit or Superior judge assigned to hear the case. Only after this the judge's ruling would the plaintif be empowered to complete the filing of his suit.

Prevention of "gold digging" by unscrupulous or spiteful women is sought in bill No. 3 which would limit separate maintenance to two years. Judge Desort explained that this measure would prevent husbands or wives—as the case might be—from paying alimony over a long period of years without obtaining freedom to remarry.

Such a law, he asserted, would remove also the potency of the threat: "I'll never give you your freedom," which is so often used by one or the other of the marriage partners who seeks to "chisel" an unjustifiably large property settlement.

The Statutes and Religion.

Many persons may raise the point that this law ignores religious scruples, Judge Desort remarked.

"For that very reason I believe the law a good one," he said. "It will lead women to reflect before they come running into the law courts to have a judge adjust their problems. Maybe they will do the adjusting themselves.

"Anyway it's unnatural to force a man and a woman to live apart under a separation decree. They can ruin their whole lives. Two years of it is enough to prove this to the most stubborn."

Would Rule Out Old Abuse.

It is simple justice to allow co-respondents named in divorce suits in which adultery is charged, to appear and have an opportunity to clear their names, the judge believes. Present law presumes such a co-respondent is a stranger without interest in the proceedings, and bars him from appearing to offer proof of innocence.

Many times co-respondents in divorce suits are afterward named in alienation of affection cases, the judge stated, and if a divorce decree has been granted their chances are jeopardized.

"The law as it stands today leaves the gate open to one version of the old badger game," Judge Desort complained. "What's to prevent a husband and wife from conspiring against a wealthy person. The proposed bill would make it difficult to entrap an innocent individual, and a judge would not allow a co-respondent to be identified unless real weight of evidence was there.

IMPORTER FINDS NRA WRECKS HIS ISLAND BUSINESS

Cancels $130,000 Orders in Porto Rico.

P. J. Tracy, head of the Portorican Linens company, 1431 Fargo avenue, charged yesterday that the NRA has handicapped Porto Rico's clothing trade with the United States and has wrecked his importing business.

Mr. Tracy told how he had been compelled to cancel $130,000 in orders for linen suits because of the NRA code for the clothing industry. He exhibited a letter from the Porto Rican manufacturing concern of Miranda Hermanos, which reads:

"We are sorry to let you know that our situation is worse than it was some months ago in respect to the codes. This means that it will be impossible to send a single suit to the United States this year whether paid for in cash or not."

Must Operate Under Code.

The NRA, Mr. Tracy said, has imposed the requirement that Porto Rican firms pay their help in accordance with the code during the time they are engaged in production for the United States.

The outcome is that the Porto Rican plant is expected to operate under the code one week, and a different way the next week, when goods are produced for the island and South American trade. When attempted, this resulted in strikes and general dissatisfaction, making it impossible for the manufacturer to continue his business with this country, Mr. Tracy said.

"It must be borne in mind that Porto Rican linen suits do not offer any unfair competition to local producers, since they sell at equal or higher wholesale prices," Mr. Tracy said. "Also that Porto Rico is essentially a part of the United States and is the sixth largest customer of this country, and that the government is spending $600,000 a month to feed the unemployed there."

Lower Wage Scale on Island.

Bertram J. Cahn, chairman of the enforcement division of the clothing code authority, declared that Porto Rico has been granted a wage scale much lower than that in the United States but that it still is higher than prevailing rates on the island. He admitted it would be difficult for the manufacturer to use one wage scale for a while and then revert to a lower scale.

"Tracy is about the only importer of linen suits from Porto Rico," Mr. Cahn said. "His orders are such a small proportion of the manufacturer's total business that he simply does not want to be bothered by code regulations for the sake of it. The manufacturer could have the business under the code but he just doesn't want it."

DE GRAZIA ON WAY TO U. S. PRISON; CAPONE HOODLUM

Rocco De Grazia, alleged Capone hoodlum, surrendered yesterday to United States Marshal William H. McDonnell and was taken with 15 other prisoners to Leavenworth penitentiary to begin serving a sentence of 18 months imposed recently by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward for income tax evasion.

Among the others taken to prison was Paul Leo Gorski, 31 years old, alias "Dr." Paul Wagner. Gorski was sentenced yesterday to two years in Leavenworth by Federal Judge William H. Holly on charges of violating the Harrison narcotic law and impersonating a government officer. He pleaded guilty.

Gorski was arrested in January, 1934, at 6205 Ravenswood avenue after the state department of registration and education had complained that he had practiced medicine without a license. He was convicted in state court and sentenced to six months in the county jail in this case.

Assistant United States Attorney Mary Bailey told Judge Holly yesterday that Gorski forged the names of legitimate doctors to prescriptions in order to get narcotics which he sold to "patients." The federal impersonation charge grew out of Gorski's representation that he was a member of the army medical reserve.

ENZO "CLEARS UP" MARITAL MIXUP; ALL IS CONFUSION

Wife and Former Wife Grieve for Him.

ROME, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Enzo Fiermonte, handsome young boxer, whose return to his homeland created some confusion as to his marital plans, issued a brief communique tonight designed to clear the atmosphere.

"I returned to Italy principally to embrace my son [by his first wife] and my relations with my wife [the present one, the former Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick] are unchanged," Enzo said.

He dined with his mother tonight, and it was the turn of the first Mrs. Fiermonte to be distrait as there were other indications that Enzo might return to Mrs. Fiermonte No. 2.

Plans Another Honeymoon.

In Rome, the mother of Enzo said her son's conferences with his first wife, Tosca, were "satisfactorily concluded," and that he probably would go to Naples tonight or tomorrow, from which port he and the present Mrs. Fiermonte would embark on another honeymoon along the French riviera.

While the present wife was disturbed by the reports of Enzo's conferences at Genoa and Florence with wife No. 1, the fighter himself made a triumphant entry into Rome.

Despite the fact that the Genoa authorities said the young man arrived with documents to the effect that he was returning to Italy without means, he registered at an expensive hotel here and spent the afternoon lavishly entertaining his friends.

First Mate Is Angry.

Enzo talked at length with his first wife and met his son both in Florence and Genoa. He returned to the capital alone.

In the same city the first Mrs. Enzo angrily refused to discuss the matter and appeared as disconsolate as had the second Mrs. Fiermonte when she learned of the Florence-Genoa incidents.

Earlier Tosca had declared herself hopeful of a reconciliation, saying "I am still his wife under Italian law."

The confusing situation developed after Enzo boarded the Roma in the United States and found that his estranged wife also was aboard. He left the ship at Algiers after several arguments. Mrs. Fiermonte went on to Naples alone, while Enzo took another boat to Genoa.

WIFE MUST KEEP HUSBAND WHILE HE PAYS EX-MATE

Mrs. Phyllis Wanzer Carr, 8148 Ellis avenue, daughter of the late W. B. Wanzer, dairy company executive, must support her husband, Richard, while he pays money he owes his divorced wife, Mrs. Beatrice E. Carr, 5004 St. Paul avenue. This was the decision of Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday.

Carr was cited by his former wife for being $355 in arrears in the $15 a week he was ordered to pay for the support of his daughter Nancy, 3 years old, when he was divorced last July. He testified he is an automobile salesman with a $15 a week drawing account.

Attorney Milton H. Sachsel, for the divorced Mrs. Carr, drew from the husband the admission that his present wife, whom he married in Waukegan soon after his divorce, is getting $233 a month income from her father's estate.

"You live on your wife's money, then," Judge Desort told Carr. "Meanwhile pay $10 of your drawing account for your child's support, and the other $5, plus whatever else you make, toward the arrears."

PLANNING GROUP SEES ILLINOIS AS U. S. CROSSROADS

State of Future Pictured by Commission.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The Illinois of the future, with all its private and public agencies coöperating on sound economic grounds to maintain the state as the "crossroads of the nation," was pictured graphically today as the state planning commission began preparation of its report to Gov. Horner and the Fifty-ninth general assembly.

In its report the commission will take a long range view of the state's needs for future growth, according to its members. It will give prominence to the need of encouraging private industry, but will not recognize conditions existing during a temporary depression as a basis for a future program.

Must Help Private Industry.

"The commission," said Chairman Robert Kingery, director of the state department of public works and building, "recognizes that prosperity and employment is brought about by the success of private industry, and it is our conclusion that every thought, effort and encouragement possible should be given private industry to assure its continuation and growth."

Recommendations in the report seek to establish conditions for the welfare of a possible population of nine million people by 1960. These persons, the commission believes, will be distributed 80 per cent in urban centers, of which more than 65 per cent will be concentrated in cities of more than 10,000 population.

List Nine Recommendations

Nine of these recommendations look toward the future of the following:

1. Employment, through the encouragement of agriculture and industry.
2. Education.
3. Public recreational facilities.
4. Dwelling modernization.
5. Public sanitation.
6. Restoration of good soil and economic crop production.
7. Land utilization.
8. Waterways extension and improvement.
9. Aviation advancement.

Service Industries Luckier.

The commission has found that when widespread unemployment exists it is much more acute in the production than in the service industries. With this in mind the commission has agreed that all possible encouragement be given agriculture and the production industries so that maximum employment opportunities may exist. The commission further agreed that no economic equilibrium can be obtained in the state without the existence of normal conditions in the manufacturing and general industrial field. For this reason it will recommend that by favorable legislation, loans, credit guarantees, and other measures encouragement be given present industries in order to increase employment and attract new industries to the state.

FAMILY GREETS COLLIE AS DOG MISSING 12 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Byron T. Hunter, 62 Grand street, Crystal Lake, were convinced yesterday that their lost collie, Lad, had returned after an absence of 12 years.

Seventeen years ago the Hunters lived on a ranch 38 miles south of Pueblo, Colo. They were given a week old collie puppy and it grew up on the ranch.

In 1922 the Hunters decided to move to Cary, Ill., and made the trip by automobile.

After several months in the new home in Cary the dog again disappeared. Before the disappearance it had visited several times with the Hunters at the home of Mrs. Hunter's sister, Mrs. Benjamin Raue, in Crystal Lake.

The Hunters later moved to their Crystal Lake home, where Mr. Hunter operates a watch repairing service. On Jan. 30, a collie, hungry and footsore, appeared at the Raue home. By means of a peculiarly shaped scar beneath the eye of the dog and by remembered habits the Hunters identified the dog as their lost Lad. Dog fanciers were skeptical, pointing out that Lad, now 17 years old, would be equal in age to a man 119.

CONVICT TO CLAIM SELF-DEFENSE IN TRUNK SLAYING

Nevada City, Cal., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Determination to fight a charge of murder was expressed tonight by Clarence Frechette, 25 year old former Michigan convict, whose 2,000 mile cross-country flight with the body of Charles Brown was interrupted at the California border Wednesday.

The stocky, blond prisoner, caught near the end of a transcontinental automobile dash with the body of the man he admittedly killed near Howell, Mich., Jan. 29, said he would seek to win his freedom on grounds that he shot in self-defense.

Brown was slain during a fight over his asserted attentions to a girl, Grace Curran of Kalamazoo, Frechette told officers, but the prisoner said Brown had threatened him with an automatic pistol. Frechette asserted that in a struggle for possession of the weapon it was discharged twice, the bullets piercing Brown's head.

In fright, Frechette said he put the body in an automobile trunk and started out for California, hoping to abandon the machine in San Francisco and catch a boat for China.

SIMPSON RESIGNS AS CHAIRMAN OF CITY PLAN BOARD

Expect A. A. Sprague to Succeed Him.

James Simpson, chairman of the Chicago plan commission since 1926, resigned from that post yesterday because of the press of other duties. He is chairman of the boards of the Commonwealth Edison company, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and the People's Gas Light and Coke company. He is a director in the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and is active in numerous other business and civic organizations.

Mayor Kelly, who expressed regret at the resignation, announced that he will ask the city council at its next meeting to appoint Col. A. A. Sprague, former commissioner of public works, as Mr. Simpson's successor.

Mr. Simpson has been a member of the commission since 1911, joining two years after the group was established in 1909. The late Charles H. Wacker, the commission's first chairman, served until Dec. 8, 1926, when the late Mayor Dever named Mr. Simpson chairman to succeed Mr. Wacker.

Tells Reluctance to Resign.

Mr. Simpson, terming his 24 years of continuous service on the commission as "a labor of love," pointed out in his letter of resignation that he relinquishes the reins only with the greatest reluctance. He praised Mayor Kelly's coöperation with the commission and urged him to continue his valuable support.

"First as president of the south park board," he wrote to Mr. Kelly, "and later as mayor of Chicago and honorary president ex-officio of the commission, you have been one of our outstanding supporters."

Matters now commanding the commission's serious attention were listed by Mr. Simpson. These include superhighways to the northwest and southwest; a centrally located airport; a consolidated railway terminal; and rehabilitation of several blighted slum areas.

"Much to Be Done," He Says.

"Many important public improvements," Mr. Simpson said, "have been instituted by the plan commission, and many more are in the course of completion. Notwithstanding that much has been done, much still remains to be done.

"With the emphasis of the federal and state governments being unmistakably placed on planning, Chicago must not lag behind. The things that have been done during the last 25 years are a credit and benefit to Chicago and all its people, but more can be done in the next 25 years."

Aids In Many Projects.

Projects completed under Mr. Simpson's chairmanship include the straightening of the south branch of the Chicago river, the development of the Chicago airport, and the extension and improvement of the city's large parks. He also helped bring about the widening of such streets as North La Salle, 95th, Cermak road, and Western, Ogden, Damen, Ashland, and Indiana avenues.

Under Mr. Simpson's guidance, the commission also made the housing study which aided the federal slum clearance site selection, the waterway study, and was identified with the planning of public buildings such as the Shedd aquarium, the Chicago Historical society's home, and the Chicago Zoölogical gardens.

GROCER GUILTY AS RECEIVER OF STOLEN GOODS

Samuel Cherry, 3717 Chicago avenue, a wholesale grocer, was found guilty by a federal jury last night of a charge of receiving merchandise stolen from an interstate shipment.

The jury, which heard the case in the court of Judge Charles E. Woodward, returned its verdict after 3½ hours of deliberation. Cherry was accused of having had in his possession 635 cans of vegetables stolen from a truck near Aurora. A motion for a new trial will be heard Monday.

In connection with other recent cases of such robberies, United States Attorney Dwight H. Green announced that he will start an investigation to determine why so many convicted hijackers have been granted probation.

DESPERADO WHO ESCAPED AGENTS IS VOLNEY DAVIS

The "desperate character" whom police of the central west have been seeking with orders to shoot to kill since his escape from two federal department of justice agents at Yorkville, Ill., on Wednesday night, was finally identified yesterday as Volney Davis, fugitive convict, a suspect in the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, wealthy St. Paul banker.

Until witnesses to the escape at Yorkville identified pictures of Davis yesterday, the police had nothing to work on except the request of government agents to arrest a dangerous character driving a car which was found Thursday morning near Wheaton and a circular describing Davis as one of the Alvin Karpis gang indicted in the Bremer kidnaping.

Yorkville Escape Not Mentioned.

The circular on Davis did not mention the escape at Yorkville, although copies were mailed to police of northern Illinois cities at 10 p. m. Wednesday, three hours after Davis flung a stein of beer into the face of one of his captors and fled from a Yorkville tavern.

Davis and his two captors were flying from Kansas City to Chicago when their plane was forced down on a farm near Yorkville. William Ford, a farmer, who drove them to the town in his car, identified the circular picture of Davis as that of the agents' prisoner.

The party went to the Hotel Nading in Yorkville, and Davis leaped through a window of the taproom while one of the agents was telephoning his Chicago office for instructions. Norman Peasley, who was standing in the taproom at the time, also identified the picture of Davis as the man who fled.

Seen Later in Aurora Tavern.

Ten minutes after his escape from the agents at Yorkville Davis was seen in the tavern of Ted Smith at Aurora. Davis, who was known to Smith as "Curly" Hansen, wore no overcoat and had a cut on his hand. The fugitive had dropped his overcoat after diving through the window.

"Hansen asked me for $10," Smith said. "I gave him 50 cents and some sandwiches. He asked me for a gun, but I didn't have one. Then he ran out and drove away. Hansen was in here from time to time last summer. He is the man called Davis in the circular."

Davis was 34 years old and of slight build, weighing only 125 pounds. He was sentenced to the Oklahoma state prison in 1923 for murder and escaped two years later, only to be recaptured. On Nov. 3, 1932, he was granted a "leave of absence" until July 1, 1933. This was extended an additional year and since that time he has been listed as a fugitive.

HARTZ, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; STEPHEN PHILLIPS, FRANK PREST, WALTER KAROSKI, WALTER ARAKAS, and THEODORE WROBELSKI, rape, sentenced to 1 year each in the penitentiary; CECIL PRIDE and WILLIAM BONNER, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary; WILLIAM SEARCY, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary, by Judge John C. Lewe.

CHARLES W. TODD, receiving stolen property, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; ROMAN PIECKOWSKI, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary, by Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

SLAYER OF WIFE GETS SENTENCE OF 1 TO 14 YEARS

Walter Joseph Hartz, 32 years old, 2500 Orchard street, was sentenced yesterday to a term of 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary for the slaying of his wife, Isabelle, on Dec. 29 in their home. Hartz was allowed to plead guilty on a charge of manslaughter before Judge John C. Lewe of the Criminal court.

Hartz told the court that he killed his wife because he could not stand her suffering. His wife had been told, Hartz said, that she could not live if she had any more children. She was the mother of a son, Walter, 14 years old, and a daughter, Anne, 12.

When his wife told him that she was to have another child, Hartz testified, he decided to kill her. He told the court that he beat her with a flat iron and went to the lake to commit suicide, but lost his nerve. Three days after the slaying Hartz surrendered to Kankakee police.

HAWAII AIR BASE, 800 NEW PLANES ARE CONSIDERED

Stronger Coast Defenses Part of Program.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—A proposal for the construction of an $11,000,000 air base in Hawaii, the United States' first point of defense in the Pacific, and plans for strengthening coast defenses were discussed today at a secret meeting of the army high command and the house military affairs committee.

The conference was the first of its kind between congressional leaders and members of the general staf since Japan denounced the Washington naval treaty. It was held on Capitol hill.

Precaution was taken by Chairman McSwain [Dem., S. C.] of the military affairs committee to emphasize that any action taken would be for "defensive purposes," and that the proposition would have been considered even if Japan had not scrapped the treaty.

90 Million for Planes.

At the same time Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staf, recommended to the committee the purchase of 800 new armored and equipped airplanes, at a cost of $90,000,000, to give the army the aerial armada of 2,320 modern aircraft recommended by the Baker aviation committee.

These additional aircraft are necessary, MacArthur said in a memorandum, to expand the new general headquarters air force to give it 900 fighting units for its Pacific, Atlantic, and gulf coast divisions.

After the conference McSwain stressed that "nothing offensive" should be implied. "It is so easy for some people to misinterpret," he said. "Purely defensive measures were under consideration."

More Guns for Alaska.

In addition to the $11,000,000 Hawaiian airdrome project, the discussions embraced a $2,000,000 program for new coast defenses including guns in Hawaii, Alaska, and elsewhere, and $8,000,000 for army posts.

Representative Rogers [Dem., N. H.], chairman of the military affairs subcommittee for aviation, said he thought the request "is reasonable."

Gen. MacArthur, in discussing aircraft procurement, said that the 1936 appropriations will permit purchase of 488 planes, which, with an annual depreciation and loss of around 400 to 500, would allow little progress on the air expansion program.

A study revealed, he said, that the army needs immediately 175 pursuit, 200 bombardment, 130 attack, 140 observation, 100 training, and 65 cargo planes.

More Tanks Included.

In addition, he emphasized need for $16,000,000 for mechanization of the army to equip one regiment with medium weight tanks, one with light tanks, mechanize a brigade of cavalry, a battery of field artillery, seven troops with armored cars, and seven infantry companies with light tanks.

The army is still using the 1903 model Springfield rifles. MacArthur contended regular army and National Guard units should be equipped as quickly as possible with the newly developed rapid fire semi-automatic rifles.

There were hints that the entire program would be woven into a bill designed to put a congressional "O.K." on a $405,000,000 army modernization plan.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

FIGHTS IN INDIA

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

Winston Churchill in uniform when a young man. In today's instalment of his autobiography, which is appearing in The Tribune, he describes action with his troops in India.

It is a point of honor on the Indian frontier not to leave wounded men behind. Death by inches and hideous mutilation are the invariable measures meted out to all enemies who fall into the hands of the Pathan tribesmen. Back came the adjutant, with another British officer of subaltern rank, a Sikh sergeant major and two or three soldiers. We all laid hands on the wounded and began to carry and drag them away down the hill. We got through the few houses, ten or twelve men carrying four, and emerged upon a bare strip of ground. Here stood the captain commanding the company with half a dozen men. Beyond and below, one hundred and fifty yards away, was the knoll on which a supporting party should have been posted. No sign of them!

Perhaps it was the knoll lower down. We hustled the wounded along, regardless of their protests. We had no rear guard of any kind. All were carrying the wounded. I was therefore sure that worse was close at our heels. We were not halfway across the open space when twenty or thirty furious figures appeared among the houses, firing frantically or waving their swords.

Golliwog Captured.

I could only follow by fragments what happened after that. One of the two Sikhs helping to carry my wounded man was shot through the calf. He shouted with pain; his turban fell off; and his long black hair streamed over his shoulders—a tragic golliwog. Two more men came from below and seized hold of our men. The new subaltern and I got the golliwog by the collar and dragged him along the ground. Luckily it was all down hill. Apparently we hurt him so much on the sharp rocks that he asked to be let go alone. He hopped and crawled and staggered and stumbled, but made a good pace. Thus he escaped.

I looked round to my left. The adjutant had been shot. Four of his soldiers were carrying him. He was a heavy man, and they all clutched at him. Out from the edge of the houses rushed half a dozen Pathan swordsmen. The bearers of the poor adjutant let him fall and fled at their approach. The leading tribesman rushed upon the prostrate figure and slashed it three or four times with his sword.

I forgot everything else at this moment except a desire to kill this man. I wore my long cavalry sword well sharpened. After all, I had won the public schools' fencing medal. I resolved on personal combat a l'arme blanche.

The savage saw me coming. I was not more than twenty yards away. He picked up a big stone and hurled it at me with his left hand, and then awaited me, brandishing his sword. There were others waiting not far behind him. I changed my mind about the cold steel. I pulled out my revolver, took, as I thought, most careful aim, and fired. No result. I fired again.

Whether I hit him or not I cannot tell. At any rate he ran back two or three yards and plumped down behind a rock. The fusillade was continuous. I looked around. I was all alone with the enemy. Not a friend was to be seen. I ran as fast as I could. There were bullets everywhere. I got to the first knoll. Hurrah, there were the Sikhs holding the lower one! They made vehement gestures, and in a few moments I was among them.

Survivors Drawn Up.

We fetched up at the bottom of the spur little better than a mob, but still with our wounded. There was the company reserve and the lieutenant colonel commanding the battalion and a few orderlies. The wounded were set down, and all the survivors of the whole company were drawn up two deep, shoulder to shoulder, while the tribesmen, who must have now numbered two or three hundred, gathered in a wide and spreading half moon around our flanks.

I saw that the white officers were doing everything in their power to keep the Sikhs in close order. Although this formation presented a tremendous target, anything was better than being scattered. The tribesmen were all bunched together in clumps, and they, too, seemed frenzied with excitement.

The colonel said to me, "The Buffs are not more than half a mile away. Go and tell them to hurry or we shall all be wiped out."

Wants Order in Writing.

I had half turned to go on this errand when a happy thought struck me. I saw in imagination the company overwhelmed and wiped out, and myself, an orderly officer to the divisional general, arriving, the sole survivor, breathless, at top speed, with tidings of disaster and appeals for help.

"I must have that order in writing, sir," I said.

The colonel looked surprised, fumbled in his tunic, produced his pocketbook and began to write.

But meanwhile the captain had made his commands heard above the din and confusion. He had forced the company to cease their wild and ragged fusillade. I heard an order, "Volley firing. Ready. Present." Crash! At least a dozen tribesmen fell. Another volley and they wavered. A third and they began to withdraw up the hillside. The bugler began to sound the "charge." Every one shouted. The crisis was over, and here, praise be to God, were the leading files of the Buffs.

Gets New Appointment.

When Sir Bindon Blood's expedition came to an end I made great efforts to join a much larger force which was to march into Tirah, the home of the Afridis in the very heart of the mountains. It was not, however, till the spring of the new year and the main operations were over that I succeeded in getting myself appointed to the staf of Sir William Lockhart, the commander in chief. The late campaign had been by no means successful. Although we had marched in and out of the mountains and driven the wild tribesmen up to the summits of their peaks in the grim winter weather, we had during the process lost a good many more men than they. The expense had been enormous, and there was a very strong feeling in England that the game had not been worth the candle.

Going into the mountains to fight the Afridis is like going into the water to fight a shark. Negotiations were set on foot with the tribesmen which led to a satisfactory settlement. Silver is a better weapon than steel in these cases, and our late foes were very glad to be formed into levies, handsomely paid to keep order for the Indian government along the Khyber and other dangerous roads.

Returns to South India.

I had no sooner established myself in a fresh advantageous position on the headquarters staf than the whole Tirah expeditionary force was dispersed, and I had to return to southern India.

But now a new prospect opened to my youthful eyes. No sooner had the fighting on the Indian frontier come to an end than Sir Herbert Kitchener began to organize his final advance on Khartoum for the reconquest of the Soudan. I now set myself by every means in my power to procure permission to join the Anglo-Egyptian army. But the obstacles I encountered, the means by which I circumvented them, and the adventure which followed must be reserved for another article.

CHICAGO ZOO'S BEASTS, BIRDS TO HAVE HOSPITAL

To Be Finest and Largest in the World.

BY AL CHASE.

Animals and birds in the Chicago zoo, at Brookfield, are to have the world's finest and largest hospital for their exclusive use. A $35,000 fireproof structure, which will give the zoo residents practically all of the comforts and luxuries that the wealthy human gets when sick, is to be erected on the south part of the zoo grounds, about 500 feet east of the administration building.

Private cubicles are to be provided with individual air conditioning, so that an invalid elephant from Africa won't get a whiff of air from the nearby quarters of an ailing mouse from Australia, and suffer a severe nervous shock.

Maternity Ward Provided.

For the feminine residents who are expecting a "blessed event," a maternity ward is to be provided, also with private quarters for each patient.

"You know, big members of the cat family—the lions, tigers, leopards and others—are just as reticent about strangers seeing their new born kittens as the family tabby, and would hide them if they could," explained Edwin H. Clark, architect of the new animal hospital.

"So, when it's time, animals will be taken to the maternity ward where they'll have the absolute privacy they would have had in the jungle."

The hospital will not only be for ailing animals but it will be a sort of Ellis island quarantine station for new mammal immigrants.

"A lion is captured in the jungle and is crated here," explained Mr. Clark. "He is banged around on shipboard and arrives at the zoo in a scared, nervous state. Instead of turning him in with other animals we'll put him in the isolation ward and keep him until we're sure he has no ailments and has fully recovered from his case of nerves. Isolation is now insisted on by the federal government for animals brought in from foreign countries."

A separate unit will be provided for sick birds. An autopsy room, a laboratory, and an office for a vetinary also are to be included in the plans. Bids for the new hospital will be opened next Monday. It is hoped to have the building completed in four or five months.

YOUNG MOTHER ASKS JAIL; TELLS OF 2 BAD CHECKS

Accompanied by her 4 year old son, James, Mrs. Louise Grace Freeman, 22 years old, 3513 Sheffield avenue, went to the Town Hall police station yesterday and asked to be locked up.

"A year ago," she said, "I cashed two worthless checks for $8 each in Niles, Mich. I needed the money to get to Chicago. Since then I have never been happy. My conscience tells me I ought to go back and face the people I swindled. I think my mother, who lives at Jackson, Mich., will take care of James if I have to go to prison."

After learning that her husband was estranged from her and that the young mother and her son had been on the relief rolls here, Capt. Patrick O'Connell said the woman would be held for Niles authorities.

38 ARE RESCUED AS RIVER FERRY AND SHIP CRASH

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A Philadelphia-Camden ferryboat, carrying a crew of eight and about thirty passengers, was rammed amidships today by the British freighter London Corporation when the ferry moved out from its slip into the path of the larger vessel. The freighter is owned by the Furness-Withy company, Ltd.

Although a 20 foot hole was stove in the side of the ferry, which runs between Philadelphia and Camden on the Delaware river, no one was thrown into the water and all were taken off in midstream by a third ship, the City of Wilmington, which quickly came alongside. Thirteen persons were hurt, but none seriously.

After the impact the freighter's engines were put ahead and lines passed between the freighter and the ferryboat, thus preventing the latter from sinking in the 40 foot channel

The freighter pushed her to shallow water on the Camden side while a third vessel, the City of Wilmington, a river passenger boat, came alongside and took the passengers and ferry crew off by means of a gangplank.

Those injured and taken to hospitals in Philadelphia are:

William Dalton, Ben Levine, Samuel Pearl, Henry Leuters, William Munis, James Gavstkie, all of Philadelphia, and Ostasie Uadino, Westville, N. J.; John Vinci, Sea Island City, N. J.; William Finger, Lester Jones and Edward Snyder, all of Camden, and Hermann Goodman.

Fahrney Baby Permitted to Remain with Father

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude ruled yesterday that Nancy Fahrney Saemann, 5 year old heiress, whose divorced parents have battled several times in court over her custody, may remain temporarily with her father, Franklin I. Saemann, in New York. The judge gave his decision after Attorney Frank Cantwell for Saemann and Attorney Ira Westbrook, representing the child's mother, Mrs. Myrtle Fahrney Saemann of Oak Park, reported they were unable to agree on the terms of the child's visits with the mother. Mrs. Saemann is a granddaughter of the late Peter Fahrney, patent medicine millionaire.

HOOVER STILL FAVORS RUGGED INDIVIDUALISM

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 8.—(AP)—The words "rugged individualism," still appeal to Herbert Hoover.

During a train stop here today Thomas Thain, a Republican state senator, was introduced to the former President as "a typical western stockman."

"I've often thought about that resolution you stockmen passed at one of your conventions here a while back," Mr. Hoover said. "I admired your stand for rugged individualism typified by you westerners."

The resolution referred to was passed at the annual meeting of the Wyoming Stock Growers association in 1933. It advocated a "return to the rugged individualism which has played such an important part in the development of the west," and condemned Roosevelt administration farm policies as they affect the live stock industry.

Two Fined for Delivering Short Weight Coal Load

After two continuances Theodore Rissman, owner of the Triple A Coal company, 4007 Wallace street, and his driver, Edward Conlon, were fined $25 each yesterday by Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland on charges of making short weight delivery.

TWO PLEAD GUILT IN STORMY BUS MURDER SESSION

Prejudice Laid to Judge by Prosecution.

Edward Nacki and Joseph White, two of the confessed members of the slugging gang indicted for the murder of James J. Kelly, a dispatcher for the Chicago Motor Coach company, pleaded guilty yesterday in their trial in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers.

The pleas of guilty came during a stormy session climaxed by the prosecution's charge that Judge Brothers was "too prejudiced" to hear the remainder of the cases growing out of the violence and vandalism during the strike called against the bus company last August an September.

The dispatcher, Kelly, was assaulted and mortally wounded on a street car at Cicero and Grand avenues on Sept. 26.

Recess Halts Stormy Scene.

The morning session of the trial was brought to an abrupt halt and a recess until 2 o'clock called by Judge Brothers while Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley was in the midst of a heated speech. The judge announced the recess "so that nothing might be said for which they (the prosecution) might be sorry later."

The stormy court scene arose out of Judge Brothers' announcement that he intended to dispose of the cases of the remaining defendants named in the Kelly murder indictment before proceeding with the trial of conspiracy indictments growing out of the violence in the strike. Ralph Stoltzmann, president of the local bus union which called the strike; Albert Semple, confessed slayer of Kelly; his brother, William; Earl Renner, confessed leader of the slugger gang; John [Red] Le Fevour, and John Bretschneider, also named in the Kelly indictment, have been granted separate trials, all of which are on call in Judge Brothers' court.

State Pleads to Delay Trials.

The prosecutors, Crowley and Mal Coghlan, contended that Judge Brothers should not try the other defendants under the murder indictment until after disposition of cases under the conspiracy indictment. Judge Brothers, however, said that all murder case defendants should be forced to stand trial and, if found guilty, sentenced before trial of other cases should proceed.

He pointed out that state's witnesses could be forced to testify in later cases even if convicted and sentenced in the murder case.

Several of the defendants testified for the prosecution in the trial of William Taber and Joseph Kehoe, union officials acquitted on charges of abetting the murder of Kelly, and are relied on by the prosecution for further testimony. It was this factor which brought about the skirmish aimed at delaying these defendants' pleadings under the murder indictment so that their testimony might not be that of defendants already, possibly, under sentence.

Although asking immediate sentencing of Nacki and White, the prosecution refused to reveal what sentence they intended to recommend for other defendant witnesses in the murder case in case of conviction. In view of this attitude the judge said he would hold the sentencing of Nacki and White in abeyance until after the disposition of the other murder cases, scheduled for hearing trial next Monday.

Judge Tells of Juror's Visit.

The statement charging Judge Brothers with prejudice in the pending trials arose after the judge, discussing the state's plea of leniency for defendants who testified as state's witnesses, revealed that a juror had visited his chambers Thursday evening and implied that the jury as a whole was inclined to disbelieve the testimony of certain state's witnesses.

Judge Brothers stated emphatically that this merely was the repeated statement of a juror, not his own opinion, but Prosecutor Coghlan charged that in view of the fact that the judge had talked with a juror he had disqualified himself from hearing the remainder of the cases.

20 SEEK POSTS OF MISSIONARIES SLAIN IN CHINA

Twelve young women and eight men, graduates of the Moody Bible institute, last night volunteered to go to China and take the places of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stam, Moody graduates, who were recently slain by Chinese bandits. Their offer was made at graduation exercises held in the auditorium of the school at La Salle street and Chicago avenue. More than 100 missionaries of experience attended the exercises and many of them related the hardships that might be expected abroad.

Arraign Chemist Accused of Practicing Medicine

Frank J. Vicek, 38 years old, 2118 South Central Park avenue, a chemist, charged with practicing medicine without a license, was arraigned yesterday before Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland in the License court at the City hall. The hearing was continued to next Friday. The complaint against Vicek, signed by A. W. Nimmer, inspector of the state department of registration and education, alleges that Vicek diagnosed and treated Mrs. Helen G. Hlad, 1707 South Racine avenue, for blood poisoning over a period of a year.

Judge Friend Appointed to State Appellate Court

Chief Justice Norman L. Jones of the Illinois Supreme court yesterday announced the appointment of Circuit Judge Hugo M. Friend to the Appellate court to the First district, composed of Cook county. Judge Friend will succeed Judge Martin M. Gridley, who requested that he be relieved of his duties on the Appellate bench and returned to the Superior court. It was said that Judge Gridley desired a rest. He has served as an Appellate judge for twenty-four years, and Chief Justice Jones expressed appreciation of his services during the period.

To Mark 72d Wedding Anniversary

MR. AND MRS. NICHOLAS HEINTZ.

42 Descendants

Quincy, Ill., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Married longer than the average lifetime, Nicholas Heintz, 96, and his wife, 89, will celebrate their 72d wedding anniversary Tuesday.

For 66 continuous years they have lived in the home they built here, now a rambling landmark with its numerous wings which were added as the family increased. They have eight surviving children, 20 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

The Main street shoe store which Heintz founded 57 years ago is still one of the leading businesses in Quincy. It is now operated by Heintz's three sons.

Heintz was born in Saarbruecken and removed to Milwaukee with his parents when he was 15 years old. Within a week both his mother and father died of cholera. Forced to shift for himself, Heintz came here a few years later and worked his way up in the shoe business.

"HEALER" LURES SPIRITS WITH BUFFET LUNCH

Food Put on Altar by Thoughtful Quack.

with a series of graduated shelves jutting out from the wall, tier on tier, three sided. Numerous images and photographs and little plates of sugar and shriveled apples were placed at intervals on the tiers. The foods were for the unseen forces, he said in a soft voice. The shades were drawn and the room was lighted by tiny red candles and a low burning gas lamp in a corner.

"These appear to be religious pictures," the reporter said.

"Yes," he said. "The altar was designed after one in India. The high priests of India showed me how to make it."

How to Magnetize a Reporter.

"Now sit here," he said, indicating a straight chair which was placed over an oblong of glass set in the floor. "That glass is to help magnetize you. Just relax."

The reporter sat mutely staring at the weird "shrine" and the spluttering little red candles, which are sometimes used to help create a hypnotic impression. Healer Harris busied himself in a corner of the room, taking a large bottle from a cupboard.

"Hold out your hands," he said, and poured a quantity of nauseous pink liquid, violently perfumed, over the reporter's hands, after which he anointed and rubbed his own with it.

In Her Shoes, Too!

"Now then," he commanded, "open your hands, one on each knee, and when I place these magnets in them close the fingers." He stooped and placed another magnet against each of the reporter's insteps, inside her shoes. "These four magnets will help you get the currents, they'll make 'the forces' powerful in you.

"Lean back and relax," he said persuasively, moving stealthily behind the reporter's chair so that he was out of sight. "If you feel sleepy, just go to sleep. 'The forces' often make you want to go to sleep. When they begin to work, you probably will feel sleepy. 'The forces' will now take charge of you."

He placed his perfumed hands lightly on the reporter's head. He had had her remove her coat and hat downstairs.

Spirits Silent—or Absent.

From that time on it was a matter of an endurance contest between the reporter on the one hand and Healer Harris and his unseen forces on the other. It was conducted in absolute silence.

During the better part of an hour, the only sound to be heard in the darkened, chilly little room was the occasional jarring rumble of a passing train and the consequent rattle of the statues, dishes and bric-a-brac on the "shrine."

Nothing else broke the silence—except the adenoidal breathing of the spirits' chum, Mr. Harris, and once, when the spirits were hard at work and Healer Harris' hands were "magnetizing" the reporter's neuritic arm, another emphatic sound. The reporter started, suspecting the spirits. But on reflection the mysterious noise proved to be no voice from the other world, but a prolonged belch from deep in the interior of Healer Harris.

She Gets a Real Pain.

For a seemingly interminable interval, Harris' hands rested motionless on the reporter's head and during this time the rigid position maintained caused a real onset of pains in shoulders and back. At last the hands were removed.

But the spirits weren't through their work. They had only begun. One hand softly descended on the patient's chest, just below the collarbone, while another hand was placed on her back, between the shoulder blades. This position lasted about ten minutes.

Next came the aching arm, pressed between the old magnetic hands for a good ten minutes. Healer Harris then shifted his position and placed a hand on the back of his patient's neck, sending the cosmic ray down the spine.

Silence; Perfume—Then "Burp!"

Suddenly and noiselessly he crouched at the right of the reporter's chair, still out of her line of vision. A wave of perfume rose from his hands.

In his crouching or kneeling position Healer Harris then quietly but firmly placed one hand over the reporter's abdomen, and one in the small of her back. This was the point at which he burped. Apparently it broke the current of the spirit forces, for just as the spirits were whispering to the reporter that maybe she should get out in a hurry Mr. Harris stood up.

"You just rest there a minute, while 'the forces' finish their work," he said, breaking the silence and sitting in a nearby chair. "Do you feel them working in you?"

"Mercy, yes, like anything," the reporter agreed.

"They come from above, you know," he said. "I'll keep them working on you all the time, night and day, 24 hours. You'd better come back tomorrow. I have my folks come every day for a while, then every other day. That way the connection isn't broken."

He led the reporter downstairs, collected $2, suggested that she was most psychic and probably could become a "trance medium and go under control."

That meant that the medium did and said things she couldn't remember later.

Magnetic—That's Harris.

"And do you go under control?" he was asked.

"No," he said. "I used to, when I was a boy in England, but I work consciously always now. I'm naturally magnetic, always have been, and very psychic.

"Now, I'm sure you'll be cured. You respond well. I'll keep you in touch with 'the forces,' and meanwhile I want you to go into the silence every day when you're alone. You must sit in silence, absolutely quiet, for half an hour at least, once or twice a day. Do you have a clothes closet? A clothes closet would do very well for a place—just sit in your clothes closet until you feel something come over you. That will be 'the forces' sent out by me."

5 YEAR OLD BOY'S CRIES ROUSE 13 AS FIRE PERILS HOME

Alexander Francis Horn, 5 years old, spread the alarm for a fire that broke out in his home early yesterday, and thereby became a hero in the eyes of the 13 other persons who live under the same roof in the two flat building at 1649 South Homan avenue.

ALEXANDER HORN.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Maurice C. Horn, wife of an electrical salesman, got up at 4:30 a. m. to take some medicine. Alexander was asleep in her bed. In other rooms on the same floor, the second, slept Leon and Tillie Spak, owners of the building, their three grown children, Ann, Ruth, and Al, as well as Mr. and Mrs. L. Rottenberg, who, like the Horns, are roomers.

A match Mrs. Horn had lighted set fire to the bed clothing while Mrs. Horn was locked in the bathroom. Alexander awoke and began shouting. His cries brought Mrs. Spak, who roused the others. Together they put out the fire after it had caused damage estimated at $200.

In the first floor flat below were Marvin Spak, his wife, their daughter, Phyllis, 11 years old, and two out of town friends.

Release Woman Jailed for False Testimony

Mrs. Margaret Radcliffe, 27 years old, 5144 Altgeld street, was released yesterday by Judge Donald S. McKinley of the Criminal court after she had spent one day in the county jail. She was sentenced by the judge Thursday after it developed that she gave a fictitious name and address while appearing as a volunteer defense witness for William J. Herbster, part owner of a tavern at 3227 Madison street, who was acquitted by a jury Thursday night of the charge of slaying Lawrence Howard, a patron.

Bundesen Urges Frequent Eye Tests for Children

Between 15 and 30 per cent of the pupils in the Chicago public schools have defective eyesight, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health, declared last night at a meeting of the Chicago Optometric society in the Palmer house. He advised periodic optical examinations for pupils and also for all automobile drivers in connection with Mayor Kelly's safety campaign.

PERIL OF CHURCH TAXATION VIEWED BY METHODISTS

Council Meeting Here; Fears for Colleges.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The prospect of taxation of tangible properties and capital of American churches and what it will do to organized religion is being considered here by leaders of Methodist enterprises.

These leaders, who make up the secretarial council of the Methodist world service agencies, have been in session the last two days at the Morrison hotel and in the Chicago temple. They consider such taxation imminent.

Although they have concluded that America has little to fear from communism, the secretaries hold the opinion that there is grave danger of an unconscious drift into some form of Fascism, according to Dr. Ralph E. Diffendorfer of New York, spokesman for the group. It was at this point that taxation of churches and private educational and social institutions entered the discussion, he stated.

New Deal a Puzzle.

But along with the problem of taxation of such institutions, he said, the secretaries faced the equally puzzling New Deal situation which has made federal "easy money" available for many of the objectives of those institutions. For instance, it was pointed out that at least one hospital has been built for Methodist control through federal easy money. Although Protestantism was cited as "always shying away from state support," yet beneath the question of some form of government subsidy for church institutions which threatened taxation "may make necessary" the question of control—state or church—the Methodist leaders argued, is bound to arise.

In the well defined higher educational field, the secretaries' discussion was directed toward an even more specific conclusion. It was agreed that any considerable tax would wipe out "a good many" of the thirty-six colleges in the United States the Methodist church is running. Already, with no tax, "some are running heavy deficits." But even the possibility of direct taxation on college properties is not the only threat, it was asserted.

New Dangers Seen.

Reports from the recent meeting in Atlanta, Ga., of the Association of American Colleges brought discussions of dangers to college and university endowments and the possibility of drying up sources of future endowments through administration proposals to levy taxes on capital wealth and to increase heavily the taxes on incomes and inheritances.

Also if the proposal to levy on securities which now are tax-free should be made a law, the secretaries asserted, added complications would face all endowed institutions. It was stated that taxation on securities would seriously jeopardize Methodism's pension plans for clergy and workers. It was added that this situation faces practically all organized religion in America.

The discussions pointed to an inevitable strangulation of church and privately endowed institutions devoted to human welfare, and to the equally inevitable expansion of government to embrace this field if present tendencies are continued and current proposals carried out. The general prediction, based on the trends cited, is the probability of an American Fascism. A minority of the council contested this view.

SUIT FOR MILLION NAMES FATHER OF QUINTUPLETS

Suit for $1,000,000 damages was filed yesterday in the United States District court here against Oliva Dionne of Callander, Ont., father of the Dionne quintuplets, and 15 other defendants by Ivan I. Spear, head of A Century of Progress Tour bureau. The suit charges breach of contract and conspiracy to bring about a breach of contract.

The bill of complaint says that Spear entered into a contract with Oliva Dionne on May 31, 1934, for exclusive rights to exhibit and publicize the quintuplets and other members of the family at A Century of Progress and thereafter until Jan. 1, 1935. Spear was to organize a $10,000 corporation under the name of Scientific Exhibitions, Inc., according to the suit.

The bill charges that Dionne was induced to break the contract after the corporation was formed. The Spear company was to get 70 per cent of profits, Dionne 23 per cent, and his personal manager, Father Daniel Routhier, 7 per cent, according to the suit.

The other defendants besides Dionne and Father Routhier are Dr. Allen R. Dafoe; three guardians of the babies, W. H. Alderson, Kenneth Morrison, and Oliver Dionne; Arthur W. Roebuck, attorney general of the province of Ontario; H. R. Valin; A. Grant Walker, Erie, Pa., promoter; National Enterprise association; Pathe News Weekly; King Features, Inc.; Paramount Productions, Inc., and three newspapers.

Dionne and his wife, Elzire, are now visiting in Chicago.

Ellen Woodhead Dougherty Wins Marriage Annulment

The marriage last Aug. 20 of Ellen Woodhead, 19 years old, of Barrington, to Frank Irving Dougherty Jr., 26 years old, 1223 Astor street, was annulled yesterday by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude. Mrs. Dougherty, the daughter of Daniel Woodhead, a railway supply manufacturer, testified she met Dougherty in Miami, Fla., and that he induced hr to marry him secretly to seal a promise that she would no longer accept the attentions of another man.

$15,000 Judgment Entered Against Yellow Kid Weil

Judgment for $15,000 against Joseph [Yellow Kid] Weil, confidence man, and his bondsman, John J. Purcell, was entered yesterday by Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland. Weil defaulted his bond of $15,000 Nov. 19 when he failed to appear in the Felony court on a charge of defrauding Mrs. Agnes Harper, 6544 Newgard avenue, out of $32,000.

County Debts Total $66,000,000, Report Shows

The county government at the close of its last fiscal year had total debts outstanding amounting to $66,199,189, it was shown yesterday in a statement made public by Clayton Smith, president of the county board, and Michael J. Flynn, county controler. The statement is the first of a series to be issued quarterly.

Analysis of the report shows that the most pressing problem of the county commissioners at present is not that of meeting their debts but of obtaining funds for current operations, particularly for the added relief burden which they will be asked to assume when the federal relief administration carries out its announced intention of turning the unemployable idle back to local communities for support.

The bulk of the county's obligations consists of funded debt, totaling $47,860,174. Retirement of this is spaced over a long period of years, except for a little more than nine millions in defaults, which a refunding plan is expected to clear up this year. Another large debt item consists of tax warrants, which will be retired automatically as tax collections come in.

The county's floating debts total $4,561,003, and these include no unpaid salaries. An exceptionally large payment of tax penalties last year enabled the county not only to catch up on back pay rolls but to decrease bills payable and other obligations by several millions.

Mr. Smith said yesterday that at a later date he intends to institute a system of periodic financial reports for the forest preserve district, of which the county commissioners are ex-officio commissioners.

The detailed county debt statement, as of Dec. 1, 1934, follows:

FUNDED DEBT.

SCHOOLS OF 44 DISTRICTS FACE SHUTDOWN SOON

Demand for State Aid Is Pushed.

Schools in forty-four country districts in Cook county will have to close soon unless funds can be obtained for the part payment of the teachers' back salaries, State Representative Frank E. Foster of Harvey and Otto F. Aken, county superintendent of schools, declared yesterday. Closing of these schools would affect 14,492 pupils.

There are 409 teachers in the schools and the total monthly payroll is $53,261. Many of the instructors have not received more than $50 in cash in the last three years and, when given tax anticipation warants, have had to cash them at discounts which in some cases have been more than 40 per cent, Foster declared.

Will Demand Hearing on Bill.

Foster said that he would demand a hearing in the house of representatives at Springfield next Thursday on his bill in which he asks for an appropriation to relieve the financially distressed rural schools of the state. The bill, which has gone to third reading and was tabled Feb. 5, provides that $153,000 of the appropriation shall be allotted to 44 out of the 197 school districts in Cook county. If the bill were passed the 409 teachers in these districts would receive slightly less than $400 each.

The other 153 school districts in the county are not in a similar financial plight.

Gov. Horner declared at Springfield last night that he did not believe Foster's bill would be fair to the 12,000 school districts throughout the state. He said that it would not be proper to tax the entire state mainly for the relief of the Cook county schools.

The governor pointed out that any other financial aid would have to come through the proposed federal emergency relief appropriation of $4,800,000,000.

Aken Warns of Delays.

Superintendent Aken pointed out that the federal money would not be available until President Roosevelt signed the appropriation bill and that there would be further delays in the actual allocations.

Many of the impoverished school districts have become belligerent at the state legislature's attitude in delaying Foster's bill, Aken asserted, and have threatened to send delegations to Springfield. He estimated that more than 400 automobile loads of parents and teachers may make the trip to Springfield when Foster demands his hearing. Many pupils have petitioned the governor for payment of their teachers.

Aken Favors Consolidation.

As an alternative solution for the situation, Aken said that he has long been in favor of consolidation of many of the school districts. In this manner, he said, wealthier districts could take care of the less fortunate localities. The objection to the consolidation, Aken stated, would come from districts themselves, which insist on their unity and home rule.

The school districts in financial distress are Bartlett, Brookfield, Calumet City, Cleveland, College Hill, Derby, Elmwood Park, Franklin Park, Hazel Crest, Hillside, Hodgkins, Homewood, James Giles, Justice Park, Lakeside, Lyons, Maple, Maple Lake, McCord, Midlothian-Robbins, Morton Grove, Niles, Northbrook, North Northfield, Orland Park, Palatine, Palos Park, Pleasant Dale, Rhodes, River Grove, River View, Schiller Park, Sharp Corner, Spring Forest, Summit-Argo, Sunset Ridge, Steger, Stehl, Tinley Park, Union Ridge, Town Line, Weir, West Harvey and Western Springs.

Wallace Clark Named Rent Appraiser for School Board

Probate Judge John F. O'Connell yesterday announced the appointment of Wallace G. Clark, member of the realty concern of Clark & Trainor, as the third member of a committee of appraisers who will determine the rent which tenants of the board of education loop properties will pay from 1935 to 1945. The other two members of the committee are former Federal Judge George A. Carpenter, who was chosen by the board, and Paul Steinbrecher, real estate dealer, who was appointed by the federal court.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must get at the cause—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Highland Park Gets Grocers' Low Price War—and Cheers

Highland Park is in the throes of a battle over its victuals and who shall furnish them.

Aligned on one side are the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad and two ruggedly individualistic entrepreneurs, Jack Behn and Solomon Shapiro. On the other are sixteen grocers who feel that the city would be better served if it purchased its provender from them rather than from Messrs. Behn and Shapiro.

A Freight Station Blossoms.

The North Shore has a freight station at 228 North St. John's road, upon which the entrepreneurs some months ago cast their keen business eyes. After pondering a little, they went to the railroad with a proposition: They would lease the station and use it for their grocery business if the railroad would appoint them freight agents.

Business is business, and the proposal was accepted. The Deerfield Produce company started up. At first its operations were solely in the wholesale field. Then, three weeks ago, the freight station blossomed into a retail grocery.

Success, and More of It.

The retail grocery blossomed into success. Wealth North Shore residents in town cars and station wagons drove up, looked at the Behn & Shapiro prices, liked them, and bought heavily. The proprietors rubbed their palms, grinned, ordered two truckloads of green stuff a day and other eatables in proportion—and sold them.

Rival grocerymen were pained. They signed a petition, directed to the North Shore railroad, protesting that the road's lessees were selling at preposterous prices and asking that some influence be used to get Messrs. Behn & Shapiro to sell at least as high as the wholesale prices the rivals had to pay.

"We did not ask that the lease be terminated," said Sidney Jacobs, manager of the Community Service grocery and market, 390 Central avenue. "All we want this concern to do is to raise its prices until they are within reason."

Satisfied with Small Profits.

Mr. Behn, interviewed yesterday, said the prices were reasonable.

"We sell at a gross profit of from 8 to 15 per cent," he asserted. "We aim at volume and we are getting it. We are making a profit and the people are getting their food at prices that are reasonable. A large number of our patrons, including some of the most prominent people on the north shore, have signed a petition stating that we are public benefactors."

The Highland Park chamber of commerce, through Secretary Ernest Belmont, stated that it would take no part in the controversy and so notified the North Shore line, which has given no indication of being dissatisfied with its station agent tenants.

MAYOR'S CANDIDACY GETS INDORSEMENT OF BERNARD E. SUNNY

Bernard E. Sunny, director of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, a former South Park commissioner, yesterday indorsed Mayor Kelly's candidacy for reëlection.

"I am sure," Mr. Sunny wrote the mayor, "that every one appreciates the able and energetic way you have handled the difficult problems that have arisen since you took office, and your great achievement in restoring the credit of the city, which for many months was at the breaking point.

"No mayor of Chicago within my recollection has had a more difficult financial task put upon him, and it certainly could not have been handled more successfully."

Hundreds of such endorsements are being received daily at the mayor's office in the city hall.

SUBMACHINE GUN IS STOLEN FROM HIGHWAY POLICE

A Thompson submachine gun has been stolen from the state highway police station at 123d street and Cicero avenue, and L. M. Taylor, chief of the state force, has launched an investigation, it was revealed yesterday.

The gun, one of several such weapons in the station, was taken from a cabinet some time during last Friday night or Saturday morning, according to Sergt. Ted Svoboda, who is in charge of the district. Finger prints found on the cabinet were taken and are being investigated.

Four policemen assigned to the station have been discharged during the last three days, it was admitted, but both Chief Taylor and Sergt Svoboda were emphatic in declaring that these dismissals had no connection with the gun theft.

The names of the policemen dismissed could not be learned.

BLIND OBEDIENCE INJURES CHILD, EXPERT WARNS

Education Groups to End Convention Today.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Parents who discipline their children by the punishment and "blind obedience" methods were told yesterday that their tactics are all wrong if they wish to rear highly civilized families. Such methods, it was declared, rob children of initiative and self-control.

Even the word "discipline" is barred from the modern educational vocabulary for children, according to Mrs. Mary Hill Arbuthnot of Western Reserve university, a pioneer in the nursery school movement. Now it is proper, she said, to use the words "guidance," "development," or "training."

Conferences to End Today.

Mrs. Arbuthnot addressed a sectional meeting at the regional conference of the Progressive Education association and the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education at the Palmer house. The conference, which will close today, has under discussion modern education as it is being put to use in the home, church, schools, and colleges.

"Many a mother has bragged about how obedient her child always is," Mrs. Arbuthnot began. "That may be true at home, but just let the child be on his own in a group of other children and he won't know what to do. He will wait to be told."

This, Mrs. Arbuthnot said, is due to too much regimentation in the home.

Stresses Home's Responsibility.

The home was charged with the responsibility of educating its children to rebuild a disintegrated social order by Dr. A. Eustace Hayden of the department of comparative religion of the University of Chicago, who spoke before another section of the conference.

"If you want to make the young people capable of establishing this new order you must teach them to work together in the common task," he said. "The trouble with the present method of child teaching is that it comes from every place but the home."

At the general session of the conference last night Mark A. May, executive secretary of the Institute of Human Relations, Yale university, declared that many educational institutions are in the rear rank of progress. Education is conservative, he said, where it should be critical and creative.

WATCH LIQUOR, WARNING GIVEN TO THE PUBLIC

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the city board of health, today issued a warning to the public to be on watch against poisonous liquor in Chicago and asked that any place serving liquor that appears bad be reported to the police so samples may be analyzed.

During January, his bulletin stated, samples taken by police and analyzed by his chemists showed that a third were fair grades of drinkables. Eight samples were raw moonshine, containing fusel oil and other poisonous substances, although not in deadly quantity. Of these eight samples some were diluted with water to reduce alcoholic Actual clippings from recent Chicago newspapers!

Where does the DANGER LIE?

In December the Walgreen Company published a message to the readers of this newspaper entitled "12 Months of Repeal"—on the subject of illegal liquors. That page gave rise to several questions. Here are the answers to them—

1. "Are illegal liquors really dangerous?"

They may be merely sickening—bringing violent headaches or nausea, with no disastrous or permanent after effects. Or, at their best, they may be no worse than unpleasant to the taste.

They may be deadly. They may kill or blind you and your friends. The newspaper clippings pictured here tell how some thirty-seven people died in agony from drinking illegal liquors—of how wood alcohol and other poisons were found in moonshine whiskies in Chicago.

The unescapable point is this: Every bottle of illegal liquor involves a serious risk—one that no man has the right to take.

2. "Is the quantity of illegal liquors exaggerated?"

We have said that "it is estimated that 50% of the liquors consumed today are bootleg liquors—made from unknown ingredients at some unknown source." That estimate comes from one of the outstanding figures in the liquor industry, a high executive of one of the foremost distilleries and an officer of a national dealers' association (name on request). It is based upon unique sources of accurate information. We believe it to be true.

Leading distillers and organizations of reputable wholesalers and retailers agree emphatically that the quantity of spurious liquors foisted upon the unsuspecting public has grown to alarming proportions.

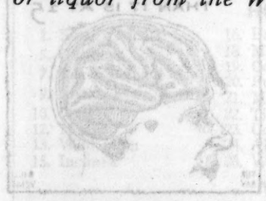
3. "Where are these spurious liquors sold?"

We have no specific answer to this question. If we had, it would be a simple matter to give the facts to the proper authorities so they could stamp out the present traffic overnight.

Illegal liquors MAY be sold by any one willing to be tempted by odd-lot merchandise at bargain prices. They may be sold by any one who does not investigate his sources of supply—and check the quality and purity of his purchases.

They may be sold by a man who is greedy for extra profit—or by a man who is merely careless—or by a man who lacks the resources and facilities to test his merchandise in the laboratory.

WE DO KNOW THIS! The faintest shadow of a doubt is enough to shut out any wine or liquor from the Walgreen Drug Stores.



4. "Does the Walgreen Company aid the authorities in fighting bootleg liquors?"

WE DO! We have reported all the cases where suspicious lots of questionable liquors have been offered to us. The agents of both Federal and State governments have thanked us many times for information that has made it possible to uncover vendors of illegal liquors and to stop the flow from their stills and processing tanks. Our reputation in this matter is so widely known that such salesmen no longer risk calling on us.

Let us state very clearly the purpose of this page.

We have no desire to alarm the public. This is no attempt to frighten people into making all their purchases at Walgreen Drug Stores.

Once more we state that there are many other reputable retailers, large and small, who are careful of the quality and character of the wines and liquors they offer.

Such retailers join with us in pointing out the foolishness of "taking chances." To buy questionable liquors—for the sake of a microscopic saving in time, money, or convenience—is silly, and far worse. For even if you are willing to assume the risk yourself, you have no right to ask your friends to do so.

When you buy at Walgreen Drug Stores you take no risk at all.

Every bottle on our shelves must be able to meet four tests.

1. It comes direct from a strictly reputable source.
2. The distiller's description of the product has met our own rigid requirements.
3. Laboratory tests prove that it does not fall short of the original specifications.
4. A consumer or market test has shown it pleasant to the taste.

Finally, the accepted brands are offered with a scrupulously accurate description of their quality and character.

To this vigilant protection you can comfortably entrust yourself and your friends.

BUILDING FOUNDATIONS OF PROSPERITY.

In his series on THE TRIBUNE platform plank, Make Chicago the First City in the World, Arthur Evans dealt the other day with oil refining in the Chicago area, discussing facts that are of much more than local importance. The picture he presented, it seems to us, suggests forcibly the rôle of invention and the enterprise that supports and applies it may play not only for early recovery but for the continuous support of the nation. In the laboratories of the great companies—the Standard, Pure Oil, Shell Petroleum, and independent nonmanufacturing organizations like the Universal Oil Products company—the prime object of which is research and the perfecting of products and methods, we have a revelation of what applied science is accomplishing throughout American industry for the material benefit of our people in innumerable ways, making better dwellings, better roads and transport facilities, better food and clothing.

It is in this ceaseless searching and achievement of applied science, organized for practical use under private enterprise, that lies our chief hope of being able to bear the crushing load the New Deal is piling upon the shoulders of this and coming generations. If our civilization contrives to survive the wastes and exactions of half-baked economic and social experimentation it will be largely because of this powerful force which is constantly increasing the command of civilized man over the forces of nature, directing them to his service and building a structure of general material well-being beyond the dreams of past ages. It is this force which is constantly creating new wealth which, notwithstanding the demagog and the doctrinaire, cannot be monopolized by any individual or class. Ignorance, malevolence, and folly may repress or even strangle it, but if it is protected it will continue to raise the material foundations upon which civilization rests.

THE HONEST MAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

The Iowa legislature is preparing to extend the moratorium law. The emergency which justified the moratorium has already continued for five years, and in the view of the legislature will continue for several more. The question when an emergency becomes a chronic condition will have to be answered some time or other. Meanwhile it may be pointed out that the effect, and no doubt the purpose as well, of the moratoria is simply to enable debtors to cheat their creditors with the blessings of the courts.

That being so, the temptation to debtors to take advantage of the opportunity will be considerable, and weak men will yield to it. In consequence, the ordinary premium on honesty will be considerably increased. That has happened on more than one occasion in the past in this country, notably after the Jacksonian panic of 1837. When avoidance of honest debt becomes a commonplace, the man who persists in fulfilling his obligation becomes a marked man who towers above the welshers and cheaters.

He and his family can take a justified pride in their integrity. Such men become known in their communities as good credit risks. No matter how tight money may become, their requirements will always be given first consideration.

THE DIONNE SISTERS.

Mr. Dionne, the father of the Callander, Ont., quintuplets, has a manager who is not, in this instance, Mrs. Dionne. Any father of ten children, the total to which the quints raised the Dionne family, might at times think he needed a manager. Mr. Dionne is involved in most complicated domestic arrangements, including the Canadian government, a board of trustees, a hospital, news syndicate and news reel affiliates and, incidentally, his five other children and his own manager.

Part of his family is a government institution under a trust agreement which provides for their care for five years. Mr. Dionne's manager seeks to have the trust period reduced to two years. The birth of the five sisters made a measurable improvement in the home economics. The father gets an allowance of $75 a month from the trustees, and inasmuch as the five sisters are not only paying their own way at a remarkably early age but have built a hospital and given Callander seasonal prosperity as a tourist town, it might seem that the event was already more than biologically blessed.

Triplets would have been only three more mouths to feed. The stork would have brought them. Santa Claus brought the quintuplets who immediately went to work for the family and who will as they grow older be able to establish the Dionne fortune. Five Shirley Temples are within the possibilities. One little girl might grow up and grow out of her artistic qualifications. Five little girls can go from one stage to another. As five old ladies with their knitting they will be still the attraction for all eyes.

A nation has been their guardian. Before long they may be able to assume the national debt, but Mr. Dionne's manager must have patience.

THE SPREAD OF COLOR.

Today there are 300 American newspapers which are prepared to publish color pages in their ordinary daily editions. This is a matter of considerable satisfaction to the management of THE TRIBUNE, which pioneered the field only a few years ago, in the midst of the depression. The improvement was undertaken in the belief that business would improve for those institutions which improved their product. The results have fully justified the outlay for new equipment, additional labor and material, and experimental development.

No doubt the newspapers which have followed THE TRIBUNE'S lead in this matter can offer testimony to the same effect, for the more alert advertisers everywhere have been quick to take advantage of the opportunity to present their wares more attractively. The idea spread rapidly through the central states and to the west, northwest and southwest. It has been widely adopted in the south. Only in the east, with its customary lag in accepting improvements, has the new art failed to make much progress.

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION.

Never has an investment in the callow hopes which are so influential in recent American diplomacy run so quickly upon the rocks as Russian recognition. Although this fiasco was foretold by THE TRIBUNE and by every one who had knowledge and respect for the realities, the President preferred to listen to the sentimentalists, pinks, and ingenuous commercialists who clamored for establishment of diplomatic relations with the bolshevik régime, welcomed its adroit and plausible emissary with open arms, selected an ambassador supposed to be in high favor at the Kremlin because of his admiration for the communist experiment, and provided him with the largest staf of any maintained by the department of state.

Against all that ingenuous proceeding we protested, reminding the President that experience had repeatedly demonstrated that soviet diplomacy is as hard boiled as any in the records of government and would either trade our overstuffed ambassador out of his shirt or at best present him with a situation which, whatever his own inclinations, neither the President nor Secretary Hull could stomach.

Happily for this country, the latter and lesser evil has resulted. The juicy plum of Russian trade so confidently promised by the more material minded proponents of recognition has not fallen into our lap. Our government has been humiliated by a failure it ought to have foreseen and placed in the light of a dupe. Moscow, as predicted, got what it chiefly wanted, the increased prestige in domestic and foreign politics produced by the formal recognition of the greatest capitalistic nation, and has paid not a kopek for it.

If the American people can hope for any profit from this fiasco it must be in some possible, if not probable, instruction of our present government, and perhaps our future governments, in the conduct of our foreign affairs. If it mitigates the sappy partisanism which was influential in this instance and others and induces a little more respect for the realities of international intercourse, it will produce some profit to offset against a demonstration of incompetence painful to our self-respect and injurious to our prestige.

REVENUES FROM NEW TAXES.

[Minneapolis Tribune.]

The study of possible revenues from a gross income tax in Minnesota, just published by the Minnesota Institute of Governmental Research, should receive the careful consideration of the legislature. Bills proposing that this tax be added to Minnesota's present system have been introduced in the legislature and are being strongly supported. Members of the legislature interested in tax reform, and special groups outside it demanding that real property be granted relief, are among its strongest advocates.

Its advocates are making extravagant claims for the ability of the gross income tax to produce revenue in Minnesota. They are predicting that such a tax could be expected to raise $60,000,000 annually were gross incomes taxed on the basis of one-half of 1 per cent. Were this true a very large part of the revenue now derived from the taxation of real property could be replaced.

After a careful analysis of incomes and earnings in Minnesota the research institute has reached the conclusion that under this rate the tax would produce only $12,390,000 annually. This estimate is based on a taxable total of over $2,400,000,000 of gross income in Minnesota. This radical difference in the estimates of the productiveness of this tax should suggest to the legislature the importance of determining accurately the revenue that would be forthcoming under it.

Under ordinary circumstances the exaggeration of the ability of a tax to produce revenue would not be so serious. But since the legislature also proposes to eliminate revenues now drawn from other sources on the basis of this tax its productivity becomes of major importance. If its revenues are grossly overestimated, and other taxes are limited accordingly, the chaotic condition in which local governments would be left should be obvious to any one. The institute does not make its plea for accurate estimates any too emphatic when it says that "the state government must know with a fair degree of accuracy the amount of revenue which a proposed tax can be relied upon to produce if any sensible plan is to be worked out."

NEW USE FOR BABY.

Ikey and Rachel took little Moses to the pictures. The attendant warned them that unless the child kept quiet they would have to leave and get their money back.

Half way through the principal film Ikey turned to Rachel and whispered: "Vell, vot do you think of it?"

"Rotten," replied Rachel.

"Yes," answered Ikey. "Pinch de baby."

EXTRA FARE.

"I presume—ah—every one heah dresses for dinner?"

"I charge extra for meals served in bed," said the boarding house keeper.—Montreal Star.

Absent-Minded Professor—I put something out. Ye gods! It must have been the baby.—Border Cities Star.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WE'VE GOT SO USED TO IT that nowadays when we happen to see a photograph of a pretty, dashing looking woman in the newsprints we involuntarily exclaim, "Goodness, such a sweet girl! Did she poison her husband or just kill her sweetheart?" And then we feel so ashamed when we read the text under the picture and it says, "Model Displays Smart Tweed Suit for Spring Sports Wear."

CULTURAL THOUGHTS for the Day. Feb. 9: Dr. Rowland Taylor burned at Hadleigh, 1555; Bishop Hooper burned at Gloucester, 1555; David Rizzio murdered, 1566; Henry, Lord Darnley, murdered, 1567. What a cheery old day, to be sure! But from it we gather that this dear old world hasn't changed much in five hundred years or so except in method. If the unfortunate gentlemen just named had died, say yesterday, instead of in the fifteen hundreds they would probably have been mentioned in the newspapers as having passed away through the following causes: Dr. Rowland Taylor, automobile collision; Bishop Hooper, struck by hit-and-run driver; David Rizzio, killed by gangsters with machine guns; Henry, Lord Darnley, killed by holdup men. So 1935 isn't so different from 1555 except in method. The cultural discussion which concerns us on this day, Feb. 9, is whether the old fashioned ways of dying were better than the ones we have today. Being burned at the stake had its discomforts, of course, but personally I would prefer it to being struck down by a hit-and-run driver. When it comes to murder we find that the most approved style in the middle fifteen hundreds was the knife, but with the advance in science and the bewildering advance in machinery our best killers today use the machine gun. The great lesson to be drawn from today then is not that the world has grown so much better, but that it has changed its customs owing to the marvelous influence of invention and progress.

MIRACLE.

Two that I love walk somewhere on the earth
Breathing this air I breathe, sharing this moon
Tonight; and if the stars propound new birth
Of wonder to the heart, or waft new tune
Across the fathoms of the skies, all this
Is for two people I love and for me.
To be so honored, though it be to miss
Much else the world bestows, among these three
To share the universe, makes me more proud
Than if the ages had conspired to give Me milieu with time's chosen, had allowed
This body threescore centuries to live.
For I was born within that sovereign space
Which, since they live, all time shall not erase.

I DON'T THINK congress ought to pass that bill giving the four billion eight hundred million work relief fund to the President next Tuesday, because that would be Mr. Lincoln's birthday and Lincoln might hear about it at the same time he listened to the birthday orators repeat his famous words, "You can fool some of the people part of the time and part of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all the people all the time." Which I think would cause Mr. Lincoln to turn right over in his grave and say, "Oh, the hell you can't!"

IT WOULD REALLY be better for congress to arrange things so that the four billion eight hundred million dollars should be presented to the President two days later, that is on Feb. 14, which is St. Valentine's day. Then the bill as adopted by congress could have lovely red hearts and pretty golden cupids all over it with the simple little verse at the bottom.

From Congress this is,
With love and kisses;
We hope that you will think it fine,
And take us as your valentine.

A HOMELESS OLD SANDWICH MAN found a satchel full of bonds that had been stolen down in New York from a Wall street trust company. He took 'em back and got a job, seventy-five dollars and twenty bucks a week for ten weeks. I wish I'd gone down snooping around in Wall street before I bought those fifty shares of Glass Bath Mitts, Ltd. That old sandwich man got something out of Wall street, didn't he? It proves that it can be done.

THUNDER IN NOVEMBER.

It terrifies me as the steady rhythm of some strange noise whose source I cannot find.
It does not belong.
We are not accustomed to hearing thunder in this season.
It does not belong—
and yet it leads the way,
like a plumèd general,
for an unseen army to follow an unseen road
into battle.
We, the defenders, know not where the engagement will take place nor what will be the color of our foe.
We know only that fear and apprehension ride a sky
unfitted, in November, for the furious throbbing
of a lost summer storm.

AND SPEAKING of baffling questions that confront us in these times, there is none harder to answer, more difficult to solve than this: "I wonder if there's enough snow and ice on the road to make my car skid?" That's something nobody knows. The only way to find out is drive on the snow and ice. Then your auto skids. You've got the answer. R. H. L.

SPASTIC PARALYSIS IN CHILDREN.

IN early 18th century literature the word spastic was used to denote a condition of muscular "tightening" or "drawing," sometimes associated with pain. Later the term became more general and was used to describe involuntary contractions of muscles and their jerky, spasmodic movements. Some of the best descriptions of the disease were written nearly a hundred years ago by Edouard Henoch and William J. Little.

The symptoms are quite characteristic. There is a stiffness and irritability of the muscles and a lack of control. Sometimes the effort of reaching for an object with the hand or of taking a step will increase the spasm, with the result that the movement is awkward, jerky, and sometimes impossible of execution.

There are three forms of paralysis: one in which one side of the body is affected, one in which both arms or both legs are involved, and still another in which only one arm or one leg is paralyzed. Naturally the ability of the child to move and to care for himself will depend upon the extent of the paralysis and the degree of rigidity as well as irritability of the muscles.

The cause of the condition in a given case is often difficult to understand. There may be some failure in the development of the nervous system or—and this seems more probable—the brain or spinal cord may have been injured because of a prolonged and difficult labor. In its passage through the birth canal the infant's head is subjected to great pressure and in some cases hemorrhage into the brain may ensue. Present day obstetricians use particular care to avoid undue pressure on the infant's head and spine. Sometimes infections that occur early in childhood may be followed by brain or cord damage that gives rise to spastic paralysis.

On the whole these children form a group of unfortunates for whom surgery can offer only partial relief through the severing of certain nerves or the transplanting or lengthening of tendons.

Within the last few years much attention has been directed toward a type of treatment that bids fair to accomplish much good. It is clearly recognized that these youngsters require a type of management quite different from that of other crippled children. The child with a club foot, a deformed hip, or a badly curved spine is rarely handicapped mentally. The spastic child unfortunately has no compensating mental superiority. In fact, in probably one-half the cases there is some degree of mental deficiency, though in many the mentality is entirely normal.

The child with spastic paralysis feels physical discomfort and is in constant fear of falling and being injured. At the age of 5 or 6 these children have the greatest difficulty in adjusting themselves when their older and younger brothers and sisters seem so resourceful, so independent, and so happy. The best that they can do, as far as getting about is concerned, is a shuffling gait or an exceedingly awkward walk.

In the new school of treatment the child is taught to relax before muscle training or muscle reëducation is attempted. In this way an effort is made to secure control of muscular movements that otherwise render conscious activity so grotesque. If the element of fear can be removed the first step in relaxation will have been accomplished. Exercise must be enjoyable and the child encouraged in his every effort. Exercises begun at a fairly early age must be continued for many years.

Reëducation must also teach habits of sleep and rest and, slowly but surely, most children will learn to feed themselves, to swallow, to balance themselves, and to walk. Present day education plus physiotherapy has done more for these children than all the efforts of the preceding generation.

DANGER OF COMPLICATIONS.

A. D. M. writes: Nine months ago I developed encephalomyelitis. I was in the hospital six months and I was sent home three months ago much improved. For the last week I have felt a numbness returning in my left leg and hand and the lower part of my back. Will I return to normal health mentally and physically? Will this disease leave any afflictions?

REPLY.

There are certain complications that sometimes follow encephalitis. One of these is Parkinson's disease. Certain parts of the brain are sometimes involved. You should remain under the constant observation of your physician. Much can be done by certain types of serum treatment.

DRY TONGUE.

Mrs. H. W. writes: Upon awakening in the morning my tongue is very dry. Is this a symptom of some disease? I am 64 years old.

REPLY.

Your trouble may be due to a lack of water in the system. It may also be due to deficient excretion of saliva from the salivary glands. It is sometimes due to mouth breathing. Good mouth hygiene is important.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—With ten acres to cover and $15,000,000 to spend, the University of London is now engaged in the greatest scheme of building attempted in London since Sir Christopher Wren built St. Paul's cathedral in the 17th century.

The work has been under way for only a short time, but so much has been accomplished by the principal of the university, Sir Edwin Deller, that a knighthood was conferred on him in the most recent honors list. He has been principal for five years and the university's expansion is due chiefly to his energetic impulse, plus the generosity of individual or corporative donors, including the Rockefeller Foundation, which gave $2,000,000 to help purchase the site.

Three of the new buildings will be ready for use in the spring of 1936, Sir Edwin said. They will be the house of the senate, governing body of the university; the administrative headquarters, and the university library, which has 250,000 volumes but little space for them at present.

A year or two later other buildings will be started on the ten-acre site in Bloomsbury, in the center of London. First will come the Great Hall, for which the corporation of the City of London has given $500,000 and the old city guilds have given a large sum.

The Institute of Historical Research, whose work is known to thousands of professors in the United States, will be next to have a new building, and other institutes will be provided for later.

Such is public interest in London university that the London county council has granted $2,225,000 for general building and the Goldsmiths' company, one of the ancient guilds, has given $250,000 to help build the library. The dire need for a new library is shown by the fact that some of the 250,000 books are kept in attics or cellars and others have been placed in safe deposit.

London university has more students than Oxford and Cambridge combined. It has more than a quarter of the student population of Great Britain, its present enrollment being 13,000 in all branches, which include arts, sciences, librarianship, agriculture, engineering, economics and medicine.

To use the Bloomsbury site to best advantage it was decided to provide a campus on the American lines and to make the campus whole it was necessary to close off several streets. Permission for this was granted by the London county council when the university agreed to defray the expense of widening adjacent streets so the public would not be inconvenienced.

BONDS AND CAPITAL STOCK.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—When a [1] bond defaults and they reorganize and issue [2] capital stock, can you tell me what that means? 3. Will there be any dividends paid as on common stock? H. J. W.

1. A bond is a promise to pay secured by a pledge of assets.

2. Capital stock is not a promise to pay, but is in the nature of a part ownership in the enterprise. Ordinarily the bond provides for definite interest payments while dividends on the stock are declared only as they are earned.

3. Depends on how profitably the building can be operated.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SURETY BOND.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I foreclosed a mortgage and the master has appointed a receiver who is under bond. 1. Does the receiver's bond have to be renewed at the end of one year? 2. Does the complainant have to give bond? If so, why? I have had nothing to say about repairs and the bills are very high. A. H.

1. Depends on the wording of the present bond. If it is a surety company bond it seems likely that the pramium has been paid for only one year and that another premium would be payable at the end of this year if that is what you mean to ask.

2. We see no need for two bonds.

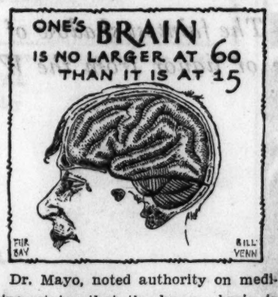
The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



Dr. Mayo, noted authority on medicine, states that the human brain is as large at fifteen years of age as it will ever get, in most cases. It does not continue to grow throughout life. In fact, after 60 the weight of the brain usually decreases, and about 8 per cent of the weight has been lost at 80 years of age.

FROM SENATOR LEWIS.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—Will you permit me, through your columns, to express an explanation that does a justice to my colleague, the Hon. William H. Dieterich, the junior senator from Illinois, and to ask for the publication of these expressions?

Comments and natural criticism of the vote of Senator Dieterich on the world court and that of mine are to be expected. These honest differences between our fellow citizens are both natural and justified. May I say that it is a good sign where the senators from the sovereign state of Illinois disclose the independence of view, followed by sincere conviction and then expressed in the courage of their vote?

The vote of Senator Dieterich for the world court and my own vote in opposition is a proof to our people that there are no rubber-stamp senators from Illinois, and that they have senators who give independent thought and courageous action according to their own sincere conviction. Each voted according to what he feels is for the best welfare of his nation and the interest of his state. It is in this light Senator Dieterich must be regarded and accepted.

He has shown himself so valiant and able a senator as to bring to his position the admiration of the senate and always their accommodation.

The observation he is said to have made, as published, that something or some one "could jump into the lake" was a mere quotation from a humorous incident which, being repeated by him, was treated with a seriousness by those who did not know of the experience which incited the mere repetition of that witticism.

The other observation intimating that the senator said that "four billion public money was too important for him to run the risk of losing any of it" was also one of those quotations expressed in humor by other senators—charging every vote that favored the administration on anything as having that "four billion appropriation as the motive." But these were in spirit of humor, in no wise serious, and it was in this equally humorous and amusing inflection that Senator Dieterich quoted these expressions, taking it for granted that they were so understood as what may be called the witticisms of the senate.

Senator Dieterich is too faithful a public servant and in all respects too complete a gentleman to have intentionally been curt in expression to the capable newspaper men who represented the press.

While Senator Dieterich and myself may have differences from time to time as to the propriety of measures, the rightfulness of them or as to their fitting application to Illinois the people may depend that the expression of these views in our votes would be the votes of independent thought, but as to the senators there is a unity of action ever and constant when it is a matter to the individual service of the state of Illinois.

May I add that this communication is written by me without suggestion or knowledge, so far as I know, of Senator Dieterich?

I have the honor to be your obedient servant, JAMES HAMILTON LEWIS,
United States Senator.

THE REJECTED.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—I have seen the Chicago artists' exhibition at the Art institute and also the one at the Davis store. But I forgot to find out which one they call the "Salon des Refuses."

VISITOR.

FOR LICENSED PEDESTRIANS.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Now that high speed vehicular traffic is here to stay, the only logical solution of the perilous problem is a new model, double jointed, high speed pedestrian. Therefore, running tracks, with trick crossings and slippery areas, should be installed at convenient points where foot travelers can be tested and trained for rapid action and the aged and infirm speeded up. Brass license tags authorizing a citizen to cross streets could be issued to those passing the test. Centenarians who could not make a seven foot flying leap on sharp signal would be disqualified until they had their joints attended to at a greasing parlor or fitted themselves with roller skates.

Baby carriages, of course, would have to be motorized, streamlined, and equipped with signal horns, which the baby could operate, thus early quickening his sense of a dangerous world. The employment furnished by the manufacture of 21,356,901 midget motors and horns, financed by Uncle Sam, would put a kink in the depression and place an electric washer and a 12 tube radio set in every home.

Wake up, Brain Trust; your country is calling! GEORGE H. CONE.

FLAX.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Mr. H. F. Goeters' letter on the new method of processing flax interests me greatly. Yet I have to differ with him considerably on the length of flax as compared to cotton. The long fiber of the flax plant consists of an infinite number of extremely fine "ultimate fibers" held together by a natural, varnishlike gum called pectose. When this is dissolved by chemical means the ultimate fibers fall apart and, not being any longer than cotton fibers, I see no good reason why they cannot be spun over cotton spinning frames.

Lee's process of degumming flax by chemical means was patented in 1815, and that of the Chevalier Claussen about 1851, but I have never heard of or seen them used in my experience.

Long life flax of fair quality can be successfully grown in quite a few parts of North America. It compares favorably with about medium quality Irish, but does not approach Courtrai [Belgian] in spinning qualities.

The principal reason for the lack of a linen industry in the United States is the high cost of labor. The only linen fabric made at the present time here is crash toweling, from the short refuse tow.

I am in hopes that Mr. Salins brings his process to a successful issue and that American made linen may soon be on the market. JAMES E. L. DOUGLAS.

LABORATORY DOGS.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—On behalf of the thirty-five hundred physicians, members of the Chicago Medical society, I write to express the appreciation of the society for the editorial, "Laboratory Dogs," in THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE of Jan. 26, 1935.

THOMAS P. FOLEY, M. D.,

EUCHRE.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—Why doesn't the W. G. N. start an old fashioned euchre tournament for Chicago, the United States, and the whole world, for that matter? It would do more to cement eternal friendship than all your chess, checkers, bridge, and pinochle fiends can ever hope to accomplish. Give us a euchre tournament and end the depression nonsense pronto. OLIVER M. COTTEN.

SCHEME TO BUILD ISLAM PARADISE ENDS IN SCANDAL

France Will Try Former Official for Bribery.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 8.—An Arabian Nights tale of how a dream establishing a Moslem paradise on earth with a full complement of houris in French Morocco brought a former vizier of the Third Republic to the prisoner's dock will be unfolded in court here next Wednesday.

Henri Falcoz, deputy and undersecretary of state for public works in the second Andre Tardieu government, is the fallen vizier who will be tried. He was indicted last summer for his alleged acceptance of a $1,300 bribe to further the scheme, but the whole story in all its picturesque detail was only revealed today.

Planned 6,000 Hostesses.

The tale dates back to 1931 when a certain Debachey, a Parisian contractor, obtained contracts from the Moroccan government to construct a magnificent new "reserved" quarter at a cost of more than $3,000,000 in Marrakesh. The quarter was to be reserved for bars and night clubs on the Saharan plan, with accommodations for 6,000 hostesses, all as beautiful as the legendary houris which the Koran assures will reward the faithful in paradise.

Debachey, the story goes, broached the project to El Glaoui, a native pasha of Marrakesh, who became enthusiastic over the enterprise, which would embellish the city and at the same time offer a new incentive to the faithful to observe the precepts of the prophet.

El Glaoui put up some money of his own and promised the support of the municipality of Marrakesh and the local chamber of commerce, but it was found necessary to raise more capital.

Debachey appealed to a French banker named Espitalier, a specialist in financing public works of this kind. The Moroccan Company for Urbanism and Public Works was formed. A bond issue for $4,000,000 was then floated.

Sought Aid of Government.

The next step was to get somebody to subscribe for the bonds. Since the object of the company was to establish urban improvements in the colonies, it seemed to Debachey and Espitalier that the French government should be interested in financing the project. Falcoz, a lawyer and an influential politician, was engaged at a retainer of $1,300 allegedly to use his influence to have the Moroccan company's bonds taken up by the state savings banks and sinking fund.

Falcoz was not able to swing the deal and "Bab el Khemis, or city of dreams," as promoters dubbed their scheme, remained just that. Espitalier went broke, was jailed for embezzlement and revealed Falcoz's alleged complicity, turning over to the state's attorney many incriminating letters from him.

SUPREME COURT DROPS CENSURE OF JUDGE GREEN

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday withdrew criticism of the conduct of Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green in a case involving the Checker Cab company. The censure was included in an opinion handed down last December. This opinion was modified by yesterday's action to expunge the references to Judge Green's personal actions in the case.

The modified ruling did not change the court's legal position in the case, and the justices reaffirmed their previous holding that the Municipal court is a court of limited jurisdiction similar to the justice of peace courts. Nor did the modified opinion affect the court's original writ of prohibition to prevent Judge Green from holding officials of the cab company in contempt for declining to appear in his court.

An effort by Judge Green to investigate the cab company in connection with the arrest of one of its chauffeurs, Iver Swedberg, on a charge of reckless driving led to the controversy.

BRITISH MINISTER IS HOWLED DOWN BY JOBLESS MOB

Police Eject Rioters from City Hall.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Oliver Stanley, minister of labor, was howled down by unemployed workers tonight while addressing a meeting at the Newcastle city hall. The minister was trying to explain the operation of the new unemployment insurance act, which reduces the dole.

Five hundred unemployed marched to the city hall and demanded that the minister receive a deputation. This was refused, so the crowd surged into the hall and subjected Stanley to a crossfire of noisy interruptions. Police restored order.

Earlier today Stanley introduced in the house of commons a bill legalizing the "standstill" arrangement in connection with the new unemployment scheme. The bill provides, pending a full inquiry, that the unemployed who have exhausted their normal benefits will not be transferred to the new unemployment assistance board on March 1, as intended, but will remain dependent on local authorities, as at present. Reductions in benefits will be fully restored.

Women Face Loss of Jobs.

Labor leaders and women are worried by the fear that British industrialists may imitate Premier Mussolini of Italy and Chancellor Hitler of Germany by reducing the number of women in their employ.

The suggestion was mentioned by Stanley as one measure to reduce unemployment, but he refrained from indicating in any way his own or the government's attitude. It is believed that the government would welcome suggestions from industrialists to cut down the number of women they employ.

It is certain that British women will raise a storm if any attempt is made to carry out the suggestions, for they have occupied since the war many jobs formerly called men's work and are determined to keep them. A government that openly encouraged a reduction would face a heavy loss of women voters, who are powerful in Great Britain.

Duce and Hitler Back Plan.

Mussolini already has limited the percentage of women who may be employed in industry, and one of Hitler's ideas is that women should busy themselves with the three Ks—cooking, children and church—and give up their jobs to men.

Expressing labor's attitude, the Daily Herald says that reducing the number of women in industrial employment would mean simply a masking of unemployment, instead of a cure, as new jobs would not be created.

FRENCH STOCKS CRASH AS 'NRA' PROVES FAILURE

Premier Faces Ouster as Business Slump Grows.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Failure of Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin's "Little NRA"—to-turn the business tide upward today, apparently was sapping the foundations of his government.

As government leaders tried to mend political fences, admitting the premier's position was weakening, the bourse took alarm at the cabinet's seeming instability and securities slumped sharply. Government paper alone lost 4,000,000,000 francs [about $262,000,000] in value.

Hostility Grows in Chamber.

Although none was ready to predict the government's immediate overthrow, Flandin's supporters were frankly alarmed at hostility developing in the parliament, where his majority yesterday shrank to 45 votes.

The government's foes seized upon the premier's presence at the Notre Dame mass Wednesday in honor of the victims of the rioting of Feb. 6, 1934, and the boos and hisses that greeted him in the streets, to administer several setbacks on the chamber floor and in committees.

Had he made yesterday's vote a flat question of confidence—the vote came over the question of examining the government's decrees, which parliament must ratify—party leaders doubtless could have delivered the premier a bigger majority. But they were frightened, nevertheless.

Business Fails to Back Plan.

On the bourse today only one stock out of 70 listed advanced. Government securities lost two points, Bank of France shares fell 500 francs and international bonds declined slightly. Suspension of quotations from the London exchange helped drag prices down.

The failure of business to respond to Flandin's proposal for controlling industry in Rooseveltian style through industrial codes was emphasized in the Bank of France's report for Jan. 31, which showed trade much worse, and the statement of Paul Jacquier, Flanding's minister of labor, before the chamber today that the number of unemployed had reached 487,000.

U.S. INVESTIGATES 1933 ABDUCTION OF LOUIS KAPLAN

Agents of the United States department of justice launched an investigation yesterday of the 21 month old kidnaping of Louis Kaplan, automobile dealer. The abduction was disclosed Thursday night when two men attempted to kidnap Kaplan again in an effort to collect the $10,000 ransom he promised when he was released in 1933.

The attempted abduction took place in the motor salesroom maintained by Kaplan and his brothers at 3152 Ogden avenue. Edward Dews, a Glenview constable who was waiting in the place, killed one of the would-be abductors and wounded the other. The dead man, Tony Penna, 24 years old, had a record as a robber.

Kaplan went yesterday to the Bridewell and identified Vito Messina, 28 years old, 2827 Polk street, as the second of the men who attempted to carry him away. Messina, a minor west side gangster, was arrested when he applied for treatment of two bullet wounds at Mount Sinai hospital a short time after the shooting.

In the 1933 kidnaping Kaplan was seized at Kenosha, Wis., and held in a house near there for six days, but was brought to Chicago and released at North and Milwaukee avenues after he promised to pay $10,000. It was his refusal to pay a second instalment on this ransom which led to the attempted kidnaping Thursday night.

Ceylon's Malaria Plague Knocks Out Hospital Staf

KURUNEGALA, Ceylon, Feb. 8.—(AP)—The malaria plague which has taken about 30,000 lives in the last three months overwhelmed the entire staf of this town's only hospital today. Every doctor and nurse, weakened by their fight to aid others, had contracted malaria. Volunteers tried their best to take care of them.

HUNDREDS CROWD AUCTION IN SAXON KINGS' CASTLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—One of the biggest castles in central Europe, Sibyllenort, the pride of Saxon royalty for a century, echoed to the hammer of an auctioneer today. Hundreds fought for a chance to buy some trinket of the family of Fredrick Augustus, the late king of Saxony. Fans of royalty paid ten and fifteen times the value of some small object.

Their interest concentrated on objects that might have been used by kings personally. Two "Hawaiian pipes" worth less than $1, sold for $90. A toy cart which belonged to Napoleon's son was auctioned off for $300. Old royal curtains filled with the dust of ages sold for six and seven times their value. Only a huge historical bed found no buyer at $1,000.

Sibyllenort is a yellowish copy of Windsor castle with gingerbread trimmings so popular in the sixties. It belongs to Prince Friedrick Wilhelm, second son of the late king. He bears the title of margrave of Meissen as chief of the house of Saxony.

UNREST GROWS IN LITHUANIA OVER MEMEL CONFLICT

German Trade War Hits Nation's Exports.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

KAUNAS, Lithuania, Feb. 8.—Lithuania's policy of attempting to assimilate the Memel [Klaipeda] territory to which Germany countered with a declaration of a trade war has undermined the popularity of the Kaunas dictatorship. This policy also has caused dissatisfaction throughout the country, according to local business men who are agitating for a change of government policy.

The Lithuanian press confirms the report of the merchants. It states that the purchasing power of the Lithuanian farmers has fallen so low that they can no longer purchase either kerosene or sugar.

Barred from selling their agricultural produce in the profitable German market and deprived of the opportunity of exporting it through Germany to other markets, Lithuania's exports have fallen considerably during the past year. The only available market remaining is England, and since Lithuania is still on the gold standard she must pay subsidies on all her exports to Great Britain. Because of this situation Kaunas is seriously discussing the advisability of abandoning the gold standard.

At one bacon receiving point not far from Kaunas peasants wait in subzero weather for three and four days to dispose of a single pig to the government coöperative. Before the Lithuanian-German trade war began this receiving point purchased 400 pigs a week. Today officials only buy forty and the temper of the peasants is growing ugly.

The problem of increasing the prices of agricultural products and decreasing the price of industrial goods and imported wares is now occupying the attention of the Lithuanian government.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Critic Lauds Lee Biography by Freeman

Third, Fourth Volumes Complete Work.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"R. E. Lee," Vols. III. and IV., by Douglas Southall Freeman. [Scribners.] Published yesterday.

WITH the publication of the concluding volumes of Douglas Southall Freeman's life of "R. E. Lee" one of the great American biographies reaches completion. The event is important not only as history but as literature, and the four stupendous volumes take their place among the great lives of the great of our history.

When the first two volumes were published in October they won immediate and resounding acclaim for their meticulousness, their infinitely detailed picture of a man whom tradition had treated with almost as much lavishness as it had treated Abraham Lincoln, but who, for unexplainable reasons, has not been the subject of great biographical and creative literature.

The biography as a whole is now before us and too much praise is not possible of it as record and as literature. From its pages there takes form the whole man, growing, emerging from himself and not from his biographer . . . and thus the rarest of biographies comes into being.

Mr. Freeman has worked nineteen years on his research. He says that he was "surprised to find that much the larger part of the source material had never been consulted." The result of his almost two decades of work makes of this biography almost source material in itself, for certainly no one ever writing about Lee can thoroughly know him without Mr. Freeman's help. There will be little reason for another biography of this type to be written about the confederacy's greatest general, for this is, if a life ever was, a definitive one.

The third volume opens with Gettysburg facing a confident general, eager to attack. The fourth closes with that general's last words, "Strike the Tent," spoken as confidently and with the same courage as he goes into the battle with the unknown. In the detailed pages between a great man goes down to defeat, rises again, taking with him a whole people. For one feels as Mr. Freeman's pages unfurl that Lee did as much to give Virginia [and the south] back its life and its place in the affairs of the states—united at last, even if by force—as he did to inspire it with a life of its own in the early days of the war.

The most impressive thing about Mr. Freeman's work is that, without losing for a moment the sense of the continuity, the inevitable rhythm of his hero's life, he has with the most infinite detail recorded every outside physical and spiritual force.

From whatever sources available, he has picked up infinitesimal details about weather, the kind of buttons that adorned uniforms, food, the hummoc on a hillside where a bivouac was made, the words a soldier shouted as Lee passed, even the characteristics of Traveller, Lee's horse, who on the way to Appomattox stopped for a drink and who tossed his head in salute to cheers.

Some biographers might have deducted details from the known characteristics of their hero or imagined them out of the blue. But Mr. Freeman has an infinitude of small figures adorning his narrative, with the source clearly stated at the bottom of each page. And, far from distracting the reader, those reference notes give one the most amazing feeling of confidence. Where there is controversy Mr. Freeman has stated all of the possibilities, with their authorities, and then, as becomes a fine and courageous biographer, stated his own conclusions.

"R. E. Lee" is one of the most painstaking pieces of literary work that has ever been done in this country, and yet it gives the reader no feeling of labored effort. It reads, even in the intricate descriptions of the military campaigns, so simply and stirringly that any one can and would enjoy it for the sheer impressive story that it tells.

Mr. Freeman analyzes the military failure so simply that any one can understand why Gettysburg, which seemed to Lee a certain southern victory, was so great a loss; why, with all of the zest in the world, an army which could not be provisioned and mobile must be the loser, why finally surrender was the only course open to a man who as a Christian and a gentleman could not allow his fellow men to pursue death longer even though they wanted to.

And when from the battle for the south's ideals as a separate commonwealth Lee turns to the battle of educating the youth of the south to take its place in the Union, Mr. Freeman sees in his hero merely the working out of the inevitable plan of character. He sums up that character in the last chapter, which is the only one in which he makes apparent the intense admiration, amounting almost to reverence, which his nineteen years of intimate living with the character of Lee inspired in him.

Throughout the rest of the book Mr. Freeman's attitude is all-knowing, all-understanding, but emotionally remote.

Mr. Freeman finds his hero sans peur et sans reproche, "a Christian and a gentleman" and a great soldier, but he tells his readers so only after four vast volumes of the most careful regimenting of authenticated facts have already convinced the reader.

"R. E. Lee" is unquestionably a great biography.

New Thorndike Dictionary Is Boon to Pupil

BY DR. E. W. SOLCH.

[Assistant Professor of Education, the University of Illinois.]

"The Thorndike-Century Dictionary," by Edward L. Thorndike. [Scott-Foresman.]

UNDER the sponsorship of the noted educational psychologist, E. L. Thorndike, there has just appeared a school dictionary that should go far to make the dictionary what it should be but has never yet been, a ready work of reference for children in their reading, writing, and speaking. Prof. Thorndike has propounded in the preface and followed in the book the very clear principle that definitions for children must be in children's language and especially adapted to the children's background of experience. The definitions have therefore a refreshing simplicity and directness. They sound like the explanations that a capable teacher would actually give children in the classroom, and follow the well known rule that definitions for young people must be longer than those for adults, rather than shorter.

Then, because formal definitions may still be somewhat foreign to the grade pupil's way of thinking, pictures and illustrative sentences are used freely. One wonders how a dictionary maker had the courage to give so much space to them, but Prof. Thorndike and his assistants have shown everywhere in this book the courage of their convictions. In the arrangement of meanings, for instance, they have abandoned the historical arrangement, the oldest meaning first, and instead declare that "for them [the children] the proper principles of arrangement are: Literal uses before figurative, general uses before special, common uses before rare, and easily understandable uses before difficult."

They even abandon the familiar arrangement according to parts of speech and give noun, verb, adjective, or other meaning, as the case may be, in the arrangement of the most used meanings first regardless of part of speech. This plan at first appears strange to the adult reader accustomed to the traditional method, but Prof. Thorndike is no doubt right in declaring it more in accord with the child's needs in his use of the book.

As would be expected, the word list of the dictionary includes most of the 20,000 words which appear in Prof. Thorndike's well known "Word Book." There are, however, about 5,000 additional words gleaned from other sources. Since the average adult vocabulary is considerably less than 25,000 words, this total should give an ample vocabulary for the use of grade schools, and the basis should be a sounder one than the usual arbitrary choice of dictionary makers.

Predicts Vogue for Houghton's Latest Novel

Swinnerton Declares It Is Highly Exciting.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—For some years now, critics have been proclaiming the excitingness of Claude Houghton's talent. His first book, "I Am Jonathan Scrivener," caused much talk, and he has long had an enthusiastic following among those to whom verve and ideas, in conjunction, make thrilling reading.

To a peculiarly vivid style he adds a vision of the future which gives everything he writes the air of prophecy; and while his characters are stabbed upon the page, their talk as staccato as back-chat [but much more amusing than back-chat], and their personalities emphasized by constant key repetitions, the development of a dramatic theme is kept progressively moving until the climax of the tale is reached.

Mr. Houghton's new book, "This Was Ivor Trent" [Heinemann], will probably be his most successful to date. It has been chosen by the Book society, and is extraordinarily exciting. The people in it talk as smashingly as ever, and nearly all of them are vehement and incalculable. One commits suicide; at least three of the others spend their days on the borders of hysteria, and all discuss with ferocity the character of Ivor Trent, novelist.

Trent's habit has for some time been to retire to a secret flat in Chelsea in order to write his books behind closed doors, and one foggy night he overhears the first of the discussions of himself. Immediately afterward he meets a mysterious figure in the fog which he recognizes as that of a new order of being, the man of the unknown future, who is as far above the man of today as the man of today is above the worm. He collapses.

What follows, for the reader, is the gradual disclosure of Trent's character by means of the talk and action of his intimates. The whole book is pitched upon a high note, and I doubt if any reader who begins it will be able to put down so exciting a tale. Nor is the tale all, for Trent adds a postscript of his own which contains his explanation of the past and a vision of the future.

As for the author, Mr. Houghton says he wants people to find in his novels [1] some aspect of themselves; [2] some aspect of this age; [3] a glimpse of the way in which he sees life; [4] characters who seem to be alive, and [5] the delights of collaboration with an author who strives to give of his best and begs them for a like effort.

Commander Stephen King-Hall, who has recently been visiting the United States, has nearly finished his big and important survey of the world since 1914 which is to be called "Our Own Times" [Nicholson & Watson]. This should be an unusually pungent and interesting book, for the author is a man willing to learn, who is also determined to be accurate.

He has a delightfully humane style, and is one of the most popular of all talkers on the British radio. This is shown by the fact that thousands of listeners here, in speaking of him, call him "Stephen," as if they were his friends. And he writes as cordially as he speaks. The book, in two volumes, will not be a word too long.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

Fanciers of the tough egg school of fiction have a treat in store for them in "The Hangover Murders" [Knopf], by Adam Hobhouse. Not that I like it so very much myself, but it certainly has its points. The tumult and the shouting develop on darkest Long Island, in the deep east, so to speak, where men are perpetually drunk and women decline to stay sober. The sadder element of this story is that they are all pretty decent sorts under their surface terribleness with strangely assorted accomplishments, such as reading Greek and playing international polo.

Quite a lot of people get murdered under the very pie-eyes of the maudlin assemblage, and the story scuttles along at a great rate, sinking deeper and deeper into the mire, a feat which sounds impossible, but in some circles apparently isn't. A pleasant young policeman from New York does his very best to keep his fashionable friends out of trouble, but since most of his experience to date has been acquired among bigamists, hijackers, and blackmailers, he's handicapped when it comes to dealing with the smart set.

And still there's something about the book that is straightforward, capable and original. Only don't get to reading it aloud. You'll embarrass yourself when you come to some of the words and phrases.

And by way of blacking Long Island's other eye, along comes Norman Klein with "Terror by Night" [Farrar & Rinehart]. In this, another young drunkard thinks maybe he's killed some one and has to be persuaded by an elderly detective that he hasn't. While so doing the usual little lot are murdered in a variety of mysterious manners which to the layman seem definitly preventable. But, shucks, if every smart detective got his man first off there wouldn't be one murder to a book and nobody would get his money's worth. Just the same, this isn't a bad story, either, and those who like a lot to happen will be very pleased with it.

From the foregoing it will be seen that I do not especially favor the rough and ready, but for all their savagery these two books are definitly civilized. Perhaps Long Island is like that, and if it is, it is safer to read about it than to live on it. Anyway, accurate or not, Messrs. Hobhouse and Klein know only too well how to paint a lurid picture.

Long Struggle to Subdue Sea Told by Experts

Record of Conquest Makes Thrilling Reading.

BY AL CHASE.

If you're fond of blue water, its craft and its lore, and would enjoy an unusual voyage over the seven seas from the earliest days of sail down the centuries to the present day liner, we suggest you buy a copy of "Sea Lanes—the Story of Man's Conquest of the Oceans" [Minton-Balch], by Martin D. Stevers and Capt. Jonas Pendlebury. Never have we sailed in such fascinating and informative waters as those through which these two well posted authors take the reader.

Mr. Stevers' ability to handle a technical subject without getting himself and his readers tied up in a square knot of technicalities, backed by Capt. Pendlebury's many years of actual sea experience, ranging from windjammers to liners, combine to make "Sea Lanes" the best thing of its kind we ever enjoyed.

"'Sea Lanes' is a combined narrative of man's age-long struggle to master the sea, and an explanation of the devices and methods used in doing so," says Mr. Stevers in a preface.

The narrative is vigorous, well written and packed with incident and adventure. From the dugout made by savages of ancient days down to the majestic Queen Mary is a long and interesting voyage, and as Mr. Stevers and Capt. Pendlebury are both good sailors and good writers the result can only be one of complete satisfaction to the reader-passenger.

The explanation of the devices and methods used throughout the ages is remarkable in its clarity and interest holding for the average reader who probably doesn't know a binnacle from a barnacle. There are numbers of diagrams on "How ships sail in various winds," "How men harnessed the wind to drive the noted square-rigged clipper ships," "Helm up and helm down," "How the stars and the sun aid mariners in finding their way," and others.

The first part of "Sea Lanes," devoted to the windjammer era, tells a well knit, interesting narrative based on Capt. Pendlebury's early days in sail. Into it Mr. Stevers weaves information that should make the reading of sea stories much more intelligible to the person who is fond of deep water fiction but who seldom understands the technical lingo the salty characters indulge in.

Then comes the steamship era and a stirring section of "Sea Lanes" it is, with a thrilling S O S rescue as a climax.

The part devoted to "man's struggle to master the sea" is a gorgeously colorful, picturesque and fast moving cross section of history, including dramatic stories of world exploration, piracy, and discovery.

In his chapter on "Seafaring in Modern Days" Mr. Stevers touches on a subject made timely by various recent ocean disasters—fire at sea.

"We hear the question often: 'Why don't they make the ships fireproof?' The sufficient answer is, they have—and the effort has been a flat financial failure.

". . . Marine architects are far from being puzzled over what to do. Build the ship of steel, with interior partitions of a light alloy, such as duralumin. Nothing now can burn except paint, bedding, and furniture.

"To state the theory is practically to state why it is impracticable. In cost such a ship would be unable to match its rivals in rates, and it is a sad fact but true—the public will not pay extra to travel in a fireproof ship. The one ship said to be completely fireproof—tried out on the Pacific coast—was a complete financial failure."

"Breathless Moment" Collection of 275 Photos of Big News

In "The Breathless Moment" [Knopf] are to be found 275 of the most sensational news photographs of fire, shipwreck, earthquake, murder, lynching, assassination, riot, records of horrors, and disaster unequaled except in the classic picture book "The First World War."

But just when you think that you've never SEEN such things you come upon a picture of crowded trafic held up by a smiling policeman while a cat walks across the street with her kitten in her mouth. It is briefly captioned "Mother's Day."

Most of the pictures have more fully descriptive texts written by Herbert Asbury, who also wrote the introduction. The pictures were assembled by Philip Van Doren Stern.

Mr. Asbury did another intriguing news volume in November called "All Around the Town" [Knopf] in which he retold forgotten scandal or thrill in New York.

GYPSY LIFE

Lady Eleanor Smith has written another flaming tale of gypsy life in "Romany," a tale which celebrates the folk lure of "The Ragle-Taggle Gypsies-O." Lady Eleanor Smith is the daughter of the earl of Birkenhead.

Asserts Japan Is Set on War with Russia

Upton Close Sees U. S. as Another Foe.

Upton Close has written a serious study of little, belligerent, chip-on-his-shoulder Nippon, in "Challenge: Behind the Face of Japan" [Farrar-Rinehart], which leaves the reader with the unpleasant feeling that the oriental variation of our old Anglo-Saxon standby is "there's nothing sure but death, taxes—and WAR."

The author has spent half his forty years in the far east—much of it in Japan. He pictures that country as ruthlessly ambitious to become a great military and naval power with apparently no limit to its national goal. Not only is Japan preparing for what it seems to consider inevitable war with Russia, but America looms ahead as another probable combatant.

"Japan is building the world's most efficient and up-to-date mechanized industry, as was Germany before the war," says Mr. Close. "In a position to buy as well as to sell, and to send ships laden both ways, she is building the world's premier merchant marine.

"She is determined to have, for its complement, the world's first navy. Her old motive of military conquest began to operate in the sixteenth century, became dormant until the nineteenth, fully awakened again in the twentieth, and now combines with commercial conquests.

"In the first two decades of this century Japan became militarily adult. In the third decade she became the west's diplomatic equal. The fourth decade sees her becoming industrially adult. With all due regard for Lenin's and Stalin's experiment, Japan's rise promises to be the key development of the twentieth century. It is doing more than communism to end our western capitalistic system and break up our empires."

The author says that the fundamental clash between America and Japan is psychological and ideological. A. C.

Lane Newberry Adds to Noted History Scenes

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An interesting exhibition has opened in the Lord Nelson room, Drake hotel, of recent paintings of historical spots in Illinois by Lane K. Newberry, under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts.

This is the fourth exhibit which Mr. Newberry has given us of similar pictures, but with each exhibit the interest attached to his show has increased. He registered 20,000 miles on his speedometer in 1934 to get the paintings that he has brought together in his current show.

There is no other artist in the country doing exactly what Mr. Newberry is undertaking. He is deliberately searching the state for its historical points and putting those upon canvas. His exhibits are eye openers to the beauty as well as the significance of Illinois.

In a superficial way most of us know that Illinois was important in the early years of American history and remained so because of its central position during the developments of the nation. Most great men and great women have passed through its boundaries at one time or another. The Indians and the British have fought over it. The French traders made their way to Chicago. The early explorers followed the rivers and lakes and discovered the flat lands of the state. Lincoln lived here. Those things, however, remain lost in a mist of myth until they are brought out and made visible either in print or picture.

Mr. Newberry is doing Illinois an inestimable favor by his passionate interest in her history and his skill and ability in putting his finds upon canvas. He makes a beautiful story of it. The dullest building, the courthouse at Princeton, for instance, is dressed in yellow and green and flushed with romance in his note: "At the edge of Princeton is located the Lovejoy home, a 'station' on the underground railway maintained to smuggle escaping slaves to Canada."

Nearly all of his paintings have a like power to arouse feelings of adventure and romance within the dullest breast. He puts life into drab facts. He enriches and colors the pattern of Illinois with every legitimate charm that history sponsors.

He brings Illinois up to date with the introduction of Jane Addams' home in Cedarville, a warm red house in a village, where the mistress of Hull house was born. The paintings are such that no one should miss them. They are well painted as well as being historically correct. The exhibit will continue through February.

Wins U. of C. Scholarship in Woman's Club Contest

Byron C. Miller, a pupil of the Sullivan High school, yesterday was announced as the winner of an essay contest on Abraham Lincoln. The contest was sponsored among high school students by the Chicago Woman's club. A scholarship to the University of Chicago is young Miller's prize. The subject was "The Teachings of Abraham Lincoln and the Social Problems of Today." Seven other students were given honorable mention.

Little Princess

Petite Emily Pope Hoffman [Mrs. Robert Hoffman Jr.] plays the part of charming little Princess Snow White in the Junior League Children's theater play, "Snow White and Seven Dwarfs," which is being presented Saturday mornings at the Grand Opera house. The play, which is considered a great success by the children who have witnessed it as well as by the Junior league members, will be given for the third time at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Next Saturday will be the last opportunity to bring your children to this entertainment which benefits Chicago charities, because the league each year contributes to several of them.

Lace Provides Trimming for New Costumes

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Lots of trimming ideas for the coming season! The newest excitement is over lace. Lace dyed to match the suit or dress, lace edging around cuffs, hemline, and sometimes both edges of a belt.

Lace veils for your hats are important bits of flattery, especially on the smaller models. Black lace dance dresses made with very full skirts that whirl and swirl when you walk or dance.

Long sleeved dinner dresses of black lace with tiny twinkling buttons going in a straight line up the front to a high round Buster Brown collar. [And they are just as good looking as they sound.]

The new famous lace coat worn by Joan Crawford in a recent film will give you some idea of how effectively laces can be worn and used. Stiffened lace or starched lace can be cut and tailored in surprisingly smart ensembles. Plaited lace ruffles go around picturesque evening gowns or race around the hem of a glamorous petticoat that will peek from under a dark colored gown.

Narrow lace edgings of Val outline tucks on both blouses and some of the newest lingerie. For instance, you can find flesh colored nightgowns made with very tailored, almost masculine, lines that go suddenly and quite perversely feminine with the tucked shirt front yoke and the cuffs edged with bister tinted lace. Later a lot of the highly decorative suit blouses will appear dripping with lace.

Very fragile and typically feminine neckwear, ravishing affairs of sheer white lawn, net, and organdie, all the big cat's whiskers bows and jabots are all foamy with delicate laces.

Even the 1935 spring handkerchiefs have gone romantic with deep lace edgings, while the new arrivals in the negligee collections boast yards and yards of lace used in rows, ruffles, flounces, yokes, cuffs, and collars.

If you have a weakness for lace, this is your season!

Dr. Dennett, President of Williams, Speaks Tonight

Dr. Tyler Dennett, president of Williams college, will speak at a meeting of the Williams Alumni association of Chicago at 6:30 o'clock tonight at the Blackstone hotel. Dr. Dennett, who is serving his first year as successor to Dr. Harry A. Garfield, is a graduate of Williams and served as head of the school of foreign affairs at Princeton university before accepting his present position.

Country Clubs Hope Ice Will Remain Today

Winter Sports on Program for Week-end.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Christmas card appearance of the country yesterday morning turned the thoughts of every one who enjoys winter sports toward skating, tobogganing and sleighing, but after a day's thawing it looked last night as if there would be nothing but slush by this afternoon. The snow was heavier and more lasting in the country than in the city, however, so there is a possibility that ponds and toboggans can be used.

No one is more anxious for suitable skating weather than the youngsters who skate at the Winter club in Lake Forest, for their fancy dress ice carnival had to be postponed last week and there will be several dozen sadly disappointed boys and girls if it has to be postponed again. The professional fancy skating exhibition scheduled for last Sunday afternoon had to be canceled, but there will be some excellent squash matches to entertain the adult members of the club tomorrow afternoon.

To take advantage of the busy week-end at the Winter club Miss Lucy Harrison is having a house party at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison Jr., in Lake Forest. Among her guests will be the junior George M. Silverthornes, Miss Beth Coleman, John Beadle, William B. Goltra, George Bent, Eugene S. Talbot III., and perhaps Miss Peggy Hixon.

Out in Geneva in the little yellow house which after March 1 will be occupied by Samuel Insull Jr. and his little son, Samuel III., Shepard Vogelgesang is having a house party this week-end. His guests will be the Alfred P. Shaws, the Arthur Bissells, the Noel Flints, Mrs. Tilt Bartlett, Miss Frieda Foltz, Walter Frazier, and Howard Raftery. Mr. Raftery's mother, Mrs. Edmond Raftery, is giving a dinner party tonight for Mr. Vogelgesang and his guests.

Gay Week-End Party at Dunham Woods.

Every week in Wayne, which is a bit northeast of Geneva, there is a gay week-end party at the Dunham Woods club, for its members keep the small clubhouse filled on Saturdays and Sundays. The Chicago Golf club in Wheaton, about ten miles nearer Chicago, also is a place in which its members spend week-ends in winter as well as in summer. Skating, skijoring, and sleighing are the popular winter sports at these two clubs, for neither has a toboggan slide.

On the north shore most of the clubs have toboggan slides as well as skating rinks, but the Onwentsia in Lake Forest hasn't either, for its members enjoy winter sports in the Winter club.

Skating and trapshooting are the favorite sports in winter among the Knollwood club members, who on the 23d of this month will have their monthly dinner-dance. The Exmoor club in Highland Park is having a dinner-dance tonight, and on Tuesday, Lincoln's birthday, there will be a trapshooting competition with teams from four clubs participating: Exmoor, Glen View, the South Shore Country club, and Onwentsia. The tournament will be in the afternoon following a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock.

The Glen View club, where members can enjoy skating and tobogganing, is having the first of a series of winter buffet luncheons tomorrow, following a morning at the traps. At the Onwentsia today and tomorrow the club skeet-shooting tournament will be held.

The Indian Hill club in Winnetka is having a dance and midnight supper tonight, and since the members may wear formal or informal clothes, it is probable that some of those who will skate or toboggan earlier in the evening will join the dancers later.

Mr. and Mrs. James G. McMillan are giving a cocktail party tonight at their residence in Winnetka preceding a dance at the Skokie Country club, which is a center of activity in Glencoe in winter as well as in summer.

Winter Carnival at Dartmouth.

While we in this part of the country are a bit in doubt as to whether we will have snow and ice enough this week-end for winter sports, some of our popular and attractive "young misses" are having "the time of their lives" at the 25th annual winter carnival at Dartmouth. The little town of Hanover, in New Hampshire, glistening with snow and ice sculpture, is filled with visitors, for over a thousand girls are there as guests of undergraduates.

A gay social program has been planned for today and tomorrow, but the silver anniversary is mainly an outdoor affair, with Dartmouth defending its winter sports supremacy against a dozen American and Canadian colleges.

Among the girls from Chicagoland who are in Hanover are Miss Josephine Templeton of Lake Forest; Miss Patricia Dobson of Highland Park; Miss Ruth Rilden, Miss Betty Wilson, Miss Nancy Knode, Miss Nancy Brown, Miss Katherine Korrady, and Miss Peggy Sargent of Winnetka; Miss Ruth Osterman of Kenilworth; Miss Wilma Harvey of Wilmette; the Misses Helen Pearson, Lorraine Eddy, Doris Lane, Nancy Merrick, Helene Stelle, Gretchen Walrath, Martha Purnell, Nina Bruce, and Jean Davidson of Evanston; and Miss Harriet Schwartz, Miss Beatrice Bamford, Miss Martha Worcester and Miss Gertrude Barrett of Chicago.

Chicagoan's Guest Is Carnival Queen.

Miss Pauline Webster of Detroit, the guest of Oliver T. Knode Jr. of Hubbard Woods, was chosen queen of the carnival last night. Mr. Knode, a senior, is a member of Sigma Chi where Miss Webster is staying. The carnival

Front Views and Profiles

PEOPLE interested in musical comedies may like to know that Oscar Hammerstein and Jerome Kern have bought the rights to Donn Byrne's "Messer Marco Polo," and that it may be produced by Max Gordon. "Messer Marco Polo" is Byrne's enchanting story of the young Marco Polo who threw down his quill in a Venetian counting house to set sail for China, his imagination captured by the tale a Chinese sea captain with gold earrings told him in a wine shop of Little Golden Bells, daughter of the Great Kubla Khan, and of her beauty. It certainly could make an enchanting musical comedy, a classic that could be revived occasionally.

Golden Bells—Present—Picture—Decision.

THE song motif probably would be the "Song of the Willow, the Saddest Love Song in the World," which Little Golden Bells sings as she sits in her garden by the Lake of Cranes playing her lute. And it would be interesting if Tamara, noted as a singer of sad songs, were chosen for the rôle of the Chinese princess. It happens that Tamara has long wanted to see a musical comedy made from the book, and has suggested it to Max Gordon, producer of "Roberta," in which she is now appearing. She even went so far as to send him a copy of the Byrne book. A letter she wrote him recently, asking if he had read it, crossed one from him telling of the purchase of the rights.

A LADY from La Porte, Ind., sends in a piece for the absent-minded husband department. A La Porte husband went to Indianapolis on business recently and when he returned threw a package into his wife's lap.

"I couldn't resist buying that material because it looked so like you," he said.

Delighted with his sentiment and his thoughtfulness, she eagerly tore open the package. As the lengths of material came to view she answered him.

"I should think it would have," she said. "I've been wearing a dress from that same piece for two years."

CANON DAVID E. GIBSON of the Cathedral shelter presented a steel engraving of Bishop Philander Chase, who founded the Episcopal church in Illinois 100 years ago this month, to Bishop George Craig Stewart, before the convention of the diocese of Chicago this week. The picture, probably the only one there is of Bishop Chase, showed him in his vestments, with full bishop sleeves and the Canterbury cap, much like an old fashioned hood. Canon Gibson said, showing a little levity, it seems to us, that a woman had seen the picture on his desk and commented about it.

"O, what a beautiful face," she exclaimed. "It looks like you. It must be your grandmother's picture."

A MAN after your own heart, certainly, is the one Byron Boone writes about from Indianapolis. He is—or was—the operator of one of that city's "one man" street cars. A few days ago he stopped his car near the intersection of Washington and Meridian streets, laid his money changer on the seat, said "To hell with this job," and left car, passengers and all in the middle of Washington street.

Abbey Players Give 'Spring' as Curtain Raiser

Good Example of Work by T. C. Murray.

"SPRING."

A play in one act by T. C. Murray, given by the Abbey Theater company of Dublin in the Harris theater, Feb 8, 1935.

THE CAST.

Nora	Aideen O'Connor

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The work of T. C. Murphy, an important contributor to the repertory of the Abbey theater of Dublin, is represented in its characteristic manner by "Spring," a one-act play which had its first acting in Chicago last night as curtain-raiser to "The Whiteheaded Boy." It is a grim study of peasant life in Ireland a quarter of a century ago—a solid piece of tragic realism with poetic feeling for the soil and its tillers in the background.

Here is a tragedy of poverty in old age. A father, enfeebled with the weight of years, a gentile, kindly octogenarian, is ordered out of the family home and into the poorhouse by his shrewish daughter-in-law. The news that the government has passed an old pension bill comes to bring a happy ending to the painful argument. But this shock of excitement is too much for the old fellow. He dies suddenly of a stroke, and the five shillings a week that would have eased the poverty of the house are whipped away. The irony of the tale is typical of Murray's full-length dramas, easily remembered by long-term Abbey patrons—"Birthright," "Maurice Harte," and "Autumn Fire."

"Spring" gives Michael J. Dolan an opportunity for one of the character studies of old age in which he excels. May Craig is excellent as the embittered wife; and P. J. Carolan is sound and true as the loyal son.

"The James Boys in Missouri" is now on exhibition aboard the showboat Dixiana for the instruction of folklorists and the amusement of scoffers at the theatrical tastes of the last generation. It is a curious specimen, more like a primitive chronicle play than an old-school melodrama; and it depicts the James brothers, Jesse and Frank, as fellows with hearts of gold, who took to train robbing only because they were persecuted by backwoods rapscallions.

This play had its origin in Chicago at the Bijou theater, on Halsted street, in 1902. Frank A. P. Gazzolo and George Klimt were its producers; the latter was the first actor of Jesse James. Six companies were sent on tour during its first season, and for a number of years it was a standard bill in the melodrama houses. Mr. Gazzolo, still thriving and unrepentant, confesses that he paid the anonymous author $50 for all rights to "The James Boys." He adds that he had to rewrite the manuscript with a pair of scissors.

WEDDING

The wedding of Mrs. Ada Whiteside Morton and Richard Prendergast took place last Wednesday in New York, where the bride has been for several months. She is the former wife of Wirt Morton and the mother of Carl Morton, who is in school at Lawrenceville.

Mr. Prendergast, who has been one of society's most popular bachelors for some years, is a brother of Mrs. Alois Frimmel and Edward Prendergast. Mrs. Frimmel, the former Margaret Prendergast, who is living in Chicago now, and Ed Prendergast, who is visiting in Palm Beach, were not in New York for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Prendergast plan to live in New York. They are at the St. Regis in New York now.

Good morning!

That beguiling Miss Sullavan [spell it with an "a"] is in our screen midst again! And don't let anything keep you from seeing her latest picture, "The Good Fairy."

The movie is an adaptation of Ferenc Molnar's stage play, in which Helen Hayes captivated her audiences. The cinema version is light, bright, and continuously entertaining. And again Miss Sullavan makes us grateful that she saw fit to disport herself under the Klieg lights.

The "good fairy" is a slim girl, reared in a Budapest orphanage, where her delight in, and knack of, telling fairy stories, has made her the joy of her associates.

She is released from the school to become an usherette in a showy movie theater, and leaves the encircling walls of the only home she has known, firmly resolved to, herself, be a good fairy and do good unto all men.

The determined advances of a masher bring a waiter [Reginald Owen] into her life.

Touched by the fact that she has never been to a party—excepting one, a picnic at the penitentiary—he smuggles her into a ball at his hotel. Here, the tremendously wealthy and decidedly peculiar Konrad [Frank Morgan] spies her. For all his money and position, he is a lonely soul and he pursues this so different specimen of naïve young womanhood with an ardor that makes her panickily assert she's married.

Undaunted, Konrad promises to give the damsel's husband all that he may desire if he, Konrad, may only have the pleasure of her company. . . . What is her husband's name? And what his occupation?

O dear! O dear! . . . Eeny, meeny, miney, MO! A chance to do good—and nobody to do it to! On the "Mo," the "good fairy" lays her hand on a name in the telephone book—which she has opened at random. . . .

Max Sporum [Herbert Marshall] a young and unsuccessful lawyer thus comes into the lady's life while, at the same time, the enthusiastic and jittery Konrad enters his, the lawyer's. . . .

And now our heroine is in a wild eddy of circumstance which she has stirred up with her unaccustomed wand. For she has become the heart's desire of three men, whom she keeps in a daze by her unprecedented behavior.

The plot is amusingly worked out.

Miss Sullavan brings a world of charm and appeal to her impersonation. Her three boy friends are portrayed with subtle humor by the aforementioned excellent actors. Beulah Bondi is clever in a "bit" part as the orphanage matron.

The picture moves with speed under the most intelligent of direction and the dialog never misses goal.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Sweetness and youth demand sweetness in scents. Some floral specialists in Chicago have introduced their own line of perfumes and colognes, with straight floral odors that are unusually true.

In our town, as you undoubtedly know if you've even a window box in which to coax a lone petunia into being, we have a house of floral specialists of national repute. And what do you think? Realizing that as specialists their selections would be worth something they've up and made some perfumes and some colognes in floral scents! Delightful ones, too.

Naturally this house hesitated before branching out into this highly specialized field; they wouldn't want to lend their name to products which wouldn't meet the high standards they had already set in their own field. So these, you may take it, are good products.

Two virtues in particular stand out. The scents are almost unbelievably true and the prices are almost unbelievably low.

Of the perfumes there are five. Their carnation is charming—gay and spicy; rather like it in that it is also spicy is the stock, which has a charming old fashioned garden aura. The wild rose and the sweet pea are such delightful scents that every one to whom we offered them was pleasantly astonished. We, personally, think that their sweet pea is something of a triumph. The fifth one, we must confess, we thought had missed the point, but that was, after all, that old nemesis of so many perfumers, gardenia.

And among the colognes, which they will obligingly sell in pints or quarts and, of course, in lesser amounts at astonishing prices—we will whoop it up for the wild rose, the violet, and the lilac. They have gotten the gardenia better in their cologne than in the perfume, to our way of thinking, and their fifth cologne, which they merely tab as an original formula, is on the lemony order. Men like it, we found, and women who like a scent that is fresh rather than romantic will be crazy about it for daytime use.

These, ladies, are lovely perfumes and colognes. And bargains! Be sure to look them over if you'd like some lovely floral fragrance in your life!

Mrs. Roosevelt Will Help Home Town in Rehabilitation Plan

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived late today enroute to her home at Hyde Park, N. Y., to attend a town meeting tomorrow night where an economic rehabilitation plan will be discussed.

Disclaiming any intention of bringing to Hyde Park any plan the town folk find alien to their desires, Mrs. Roosevelt said, "All I am doing is to make available to them information the government has for any community interested in improving its economic condition."

The President's wife said a rural planning expert of the department of agriculture and a Dutchess county representative of the state emergency relief administration would attend the meeting.

Irish Fellowship Club Will Entertain Abbey Players

Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court, and president of the Irish Fellowship club, announced yesterday that the club will act as host to the Abbey Theater company at a party in the Hotel Sherman tonight. Guests will include Mayor and Mrs. Kelly, Daniel McGrath, Irish consul, and Mrs. McGrath.

RED STEFAN

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

SYNOPSIS.

Stephen Enderby, an Englishman, had lived as a boy on the Russian estate of his stepfather, Paul Darensky. When his mother died he went to live with his guardian in England. After the revolution in Russia, as Stefan Ivanovitch, he became a "secret observer" for England, adopting various peasant rôles to hide his identity. Now Stephen has inherited the fortune of his guardian and wants to quit his hazardous work. He is escaping out of Tronsk when he meets and rescues Elizabeth Radin, the widow of an executed engineer. Though English, her husband was half Russian. She is flying from the advances of Commissar Petroff, who is also after a secret formula of her husband's. Stephen takes her with him and tells her his history. Though he has fallen in love with her he refrains from letting her know. They are pursued by Petroff and Irina, a beautiful communist, who wanted Stephen herself. Stephen secures a horse and sledge, in which he and Elizabeth travel toward the Polish border. Though they are both disguised, the suspicion of a schoolmaster in a village where they stop is aroused because of a police broadcast he has heard. They make a hurried getaway and reach the old Darensky house, from which a secret underground passage leads across the Polish border, half a mile away. They find part of the passage blocked by fallen earth, which they clear away. One entrance to the passage is behind a portrait of Stephen's mother, where Stephen finds hidden jewels which belonged to her. Elizabeth waits in the passage while Stephen searches in the house for a ring which he dropped. He is surprised by Glinka, the schoolmaster, and a group of Red Guards. They have brought Irina with them to identify Stephen. Thinking to save him for herself she denies knowing him. Elizabeth attempts to attract the attention of the guards to another part of the house.

INSTALMENT XLVIII.

RUSSIA BEHIND THEM.

And with that the top of the broken pillar overbalanced as Elizabeth thrust at it for the third time. The noise of its crashing fall filled all the house with clamoring echoes. Glinka, nearest the door, ran to it and shouted that the roof was falling in. Irina, the sergeant, and the guard who had been making up the fire followed him, but the men who sat on Stephen's either side held their ground.

Glinka had run out of the room and out of sight. Irina and the sergeant were a little beyond the doorway, still visible as shadows in the dusk. The guard came to a halt a yard or two beyond the threshold. Stephen had his moment, but he also had two guards to reckon with. As they both craned forward, intent upon what was happening in the hall, he slipped his hands free, took them by the scruff of the neck, and brought their heads together with a vigorous thud.

One stride took him clear. The slumped bodies had barely reached the floor before he had his foot in the niche. A second step and he had reached the mantelshelf, and, even as the guard beyond the threshold turned bewildered to see two men lying in a tumbled heap instead of three sitting quietly on a bench, the panel had swung out and back again and Stephen was fastening the catch on the inner side.

Elizabeth moved in the darkness of the passage with a beating heart. She had shot the bolt between her and the landing. Now her foot felt for the steps, now she went down them, one hand on the wall and one stretched out before her. She could not see anything at all. She could not hear anything either except the beating of her own heart.

And then suddenly in the dark her hand touched Stephen's face. She did not cry out, but she gave a very faint gasp, and in a moment his arms were round her and he was whispering in her ear, first her name and then:

"How clever of you! It did the trick all right! But I don't know whether any one saw the panel shut. They didn't see it open." He laughed a little, "Have you got the candle?"

"No—I don't know—I think I dropped it."

"It doesn't matter—they left me my torch. We'd better run for it."

Without more ado they ran—up the steps, past the door on the landing—down more steps, and through the lowest, narrowest part of the passage, with stone on one side and wooden paneling on the other. They came to the ruinous wooden stair which led to the cellar level.

Stephen stood still to listen for a moment. Then he said "Quick, Elizabeth!" and took her down the stair as he had brought her up, trying each tread before he put his weight on it and swinging her over the gaps.

As they ran down the incline beyond the first sound that was not of their own making reached them—the confused and hollow sound of following feet.

"All right," said Stephen, "we've got them beat." And with that their feet were on the earth they had dug out.

They came into the main passage and ran down it.

"Quick!" he said again, "you first! There's just room!" And Elizabeth found herself on her hands and knees crawling into a thick, clammy darkness.

It was the worst moment of all. Her body filled the hole, so that the light could not help her. The roof let down a continual shower of pebbles and earth upon her hair, her face, her neck. She did not know how long the tunnel might be. If it fell in upon her she would be buried alive. It might fall in and crush her in an instant. That would not be so bad. But if it were to pin her here alive—or came down ton upon ton between her and Stephen. . . . A terror such as she had never known swept over her at the thought.

Then as she crawled Stephen's hand touched her foot. The nightmare lifted a little. She blinked the earth out of her eyes and suddenly found her head and shoulders free. Next moment she was out of the tunnel and scrambling to her feet in the passage beyond. She leaned against the wall, pushing back her hair and drawing a long, sweet breath of relief

Stephen followed her.

"Lord—what a tight squeeze!" he said.

Then his torch went on and the ray swept to and fro overhead. She heard him give a whistle between his teeth and, looking up, she saw how the roof of the passage sagged and bulged. Great cracks showed black in the ray. She thought she saw them tremble. This all in one flash of fear. In another flash the fear had become a certainty of terror. The wall bulged and the cracks were widening. And then Stephen had her by the arm and they were running faster than she had ever run in her life. His arm came round her, sweeping her along. She stumbled on the uneven floor and he held her up. She gasped and strained for breath, but he urged her on.

And then it came—the shaking and heaving of the earth, the horrible dull boom, the rush of driven dusty air overtaking and half choking them. It came with its stunning noise, its merciless reverberations, its terror. It came and passed. The sound of it died away. The earth was steady under them again. The walls stood and the roof covered them.

Stephen stopped running and sent the ray exploring once again. There were no cracks here, no bowing of the arch, no horrible gradual slipping out of the true.

"That's all right," he said cheerfully. "A near shave—wasn't it? But nobody will follow us now. It's the west wing of the house coming down that's done it—too much weight on the roof of the passage. Well, there goes a very convenient back door."

They walked on in silence. Elizabeth felt dazed and weak. She walked on because Stephen expected her to walk on. If she had stopped she would not have been able to start again. The passage went on and on and on.

Then they stopped. The passage had come to an end. The torch showed old broken steps rising steeply upward. Elizabeth looked at them and roused a little from the daze that hung about her like a fog.

"Are we over the frontier?" she said.

Stephen nodded.

"Yes, we're in Poland. The steps come out in the ruin of the chapel I told you about. The opening's very well hidden."

Elizabeth put her hand against the wall to steady herself.

"And then?" she said.

"There's a farmhouse about a quarter of a mile away where the people know me. You won't find that too far to walk."

"And then?" said Elizabeth again. The words were so faint that he hardly caught them.

Russia was behind them. Their danger, their close companionship, the days and nights when he, and he alone, had stood between her and the nightmare that threatened—these, too, lay behind.

In front of them—what? Separations—a divided path. . . . The future looked as cold as ice and as barren as the snow. She saw these things, like two painted pictures, in a moment of time.

Country Clubs Hope Ice Will Remain Today

Winter Sports on Program for Week-end.

queen is 5 feet 5 inches tall, is blonde, and has blue eyes. She was dressed in a navy blue ski costume trimmed with white and red when presented at the ski pageant.

Miss Valeria Harris, daughter of the Hayden Harrises, has returned to the Mount Vernon seminary in Washington, D. C., after a house party at the Skytop club, smart winter sports and all year round resort in the Pocono mountains of Pennsylvania.

Miss Jane Morton is sure of a week of winter sports, for she is leaving Monday night for Desbarats where she has an island camp which she occupies all summer every year.

Arts Club to Hear New Carpenter Piece.

Reservations for the Arts club's Sunday evening affairs always are taken almost as soon as the announcement cards for each event are out, for the members know that the space is limited and that not all who always want to attend the affairs can be accommodated. Tomorrow night's dinner and musical should be certain to be one of the most popular of the season, for the first Chicago performance of John Alden Carpenter's new quintet for piano and strings is to be the feature of the program.

The Mischakoff string quartet and Mr. Carpenter will be the artists in this number and Emanuel Feuermann, cellist, also will contribute to the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter, who leave on Wednesday to sail on the 16th for China, are to be the guests of the John Paul Wellings at the dinner before the program. Dr. and Mrs. James Herbert Michell, Noble B. Judah, Mrs. Martin Schutze, Mrs. Hal C. Bangs, Mrs. Ernest Freund, Mrs. Tilt Bartlett, Miss Carrie Pam, and Mrs. Frederic d'Aix are among the other members who will have guests tomorow night.

Japanese Ambassador Will Speak Today.

In the President's suite of the Palmer house both the United States and Japan will be toasted between 12 and 12:30 this noon when a dozen official guests gather with his excellency Hiroshi Saito, Japanese ambassador in Washington, for a reception preceding the luncheon of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Because of the exceptionally large number of reservations for the luncheon and the necessity for beginning the address as promptly as possible, the council office announces that it will be unable to admit any one for luncheon later than 12:45. The ambassador, who is well known for his frankness, is going to speak on "Japan's Aim in the Far East."

Among those who are planning to be present are Graham Aldis, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. William H. Bush, Robert Ross, Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. Henry Dawes, Benjamin H. Affleck, Mrs. Ralph Greenlee, Stuart H. Otis, Mr. and Mrs. Quincy Wright, Russell Tyson, and Morton D. Hull.

The council has issued invitations for a lecture next Wednesday at the Palmer house by Prince Hubertus Lowenstein, who has just come to this country from Germany, where he was during all of the campaign that preceded the Saar plebiscite on Jan. 13. Prince Lowenstein is going to speak on "The Saar" following the luncheon at 12:30 o'clock.

Informal Dance at Winnetka Home.

A delightfully informal subscription dance will be given tonight in the Ayres Boals' Winnetka home. A group of their Winnetka friends will drop in to enjoy themselves at an "ex-hostess and ex-gigolo" party, as it was termed in the invitations. The invitations were limited to the older generation.

Williams alumni and their wives will dine tonight at the Blackstone hotel with the college president, Dr. Tyler Dennett, who is spending the week-end with one of Chicago's best known Williams alumni, Fletcher M. Durbin, and his wife, at their residence on Astor street.

The British consul general, Lewis Bernays, and Mrs. Bernays; the British consul, Robert Ross, and Mrs. Ross, and the vice consul, Malcolm Henderson, and Mrs. Henderson will receive at the ball to be held tonight in the ballroom of the Drake hotel for the benefit of the charity fund of the British consulate general. Dress is optional, and tickets, which may be secured at the door, are $1 each.

Two Concerts Will Be Given Tomorrow.

Two concerts of interest to society will be given tomorrow afternoon, one by the Woman's Symphony orchestra in the Studebaker theater and the other by Roland Hayes, internationally famous Negro tenor, who is appearing under the auspices of the Chicago Urban league in Orchestra hall.

A few of those who have taken boxes for the symphony concert are Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. Charles H. Hamill, Mrs. Clyde M. Carr, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, and Mrs. Charles H. Swift.

Harold F. McCormick, Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell, Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson and the Carroll H. Sudlers are some of those who have boxes or blocks of tickets for Hayes' recital.

Admiral and Mrs. Wat T. Cluverius are entertaining at luncheon for Gen. and Mrs. Frank R. McCoy on Sunday, the 24th of this month.

Miss Helen Jeffries on British Radio.

From London comes word that Miss Helen Jeffries, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Jeffries of Highland Park, made her debut with the British Broadcasting company at 8 Thursday evening, taking a part in the play, "Berkeley Square."

Miss Jeffries is going to spend the rest of the winter as the house guest of Lord and Lady Peacock in their apartment in the Albany club in Mayfair. Lord Peacock was secretary to the prince of Wales up until two years ago, having started his service when the prince was only seven years old. Lady Peacock's daughter, Jane, is a classmate of Miss Jeffries at the Royal academy.

BY MARY MEADE.

Still on yesterday's theme—canning marketing—we've sandwiched in the points of selection for the fresh winter fruits in today's question and answer column. They aren't as numerous as the fresh vegetables, but many of them are just as carelessly purchased.

First, though, let's take up the question of Mrs. J. G. V. in Indiana. It's a problem we greet with glee, for we've felt for a long time that a movement should be instigated to prevent soggy undercrusts in those grand hearty affairs—two crust meat pies.

In the interests of crisper crusts, Mrs. J. G. V., may we suggest that you try this: brush the top of your lower crust with a bit of ever so slightly beaten egg whites. Then pop it into a hot oven for a few seconds to completely congeal the protective layer, and finally put in your savory mixture of meat and vegetables and put on the top crust. That hardened film of egg white should refuse admittance of any stray juices into the bottom crust, and the meat pie will emerge from the oven triumphantly brown and crisp.

Now to go on from yesterday's stopping place. Here are some of the more common fruits of the season along with a few tips on what to look for and what to avoid in adding them to your grocery order.

APPLES should be selected, like potatoes, according to use. Good cooking apples may be too firm and too tart to be just right for eating. All varieties, however, should be fully mature, with fairly firm flesh and bright skin. Over-ripe ones may be soft, dull and wrinkled, and unripe ones a sad pale color. The average size is usually the best buy, for the large ones are not only more expensive, but subject to many defects, and the tiny ones often lack flavor.

BANANAS are not ripe enough to eat until their yellow or red skin is free from any greenish cast and is flecked with brown. If you're crafty, you'll buy them by the pound rather than by the dozen, for sizes vary so decidedly. As a rule, the medium or large sizes are better in flavor.

GRAPEFRUIT should be thin-skinned and heavy for their size. The color, whether bright, golden or russet, little affects the quality of the fruit.

LEMONS and ORANGES are selected on the same basis as the grapefruit. They, too, should be thin-skinned and heavy for their size. As freezing causes these citrus fruits to become pithy and dry, it's wise to ask the grocer to cut a slice from the end of one of the fruits to assure you of its juiciness and flavor.

GRAPES, in the final windup of their season, should cling firmly to the stem when the bunch is lifted and shaken gently. Don't waste your enthusiasm over those bunches which show a number of crushed, dried or soft grapes.

PINEAPPLES is now making its first appearance of the season. To be sure that your first treat is all it should be, choose the very ripest fruit that is available, with an orange-ish rather than a green color, and one center sporting spines which can be plucked out rather easily.

Walther League Sessions to Open in City Today

Nearly 1,000 delegates and visitors are expected to attend the 11th annual Northern Illinois district convention of the Walther League of the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod opening today at the Stevens hotel. The league is the official youth organization of the church. Paul Vetter of Addison, president of the district, will preside. Business sessions will be held this afternoon and Sunday afternoon. Tonight Dr. Erdman W. Frank of Joliet will address the fellowship dinner of the convention.

Dress for Your Wardrobe

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The bright collared neckline of decorative pin inverted tucks is a feature of this wearable spring frock. The small diagrams show the major parts of the pattern, and how easily it can be made. The original dress was fashioned of a rough silk crêpe in black, white, and mustard yellow. The collar and jabot were of plain mustard yellow crêpe. A navy blue sheer crêpe with the collar and jabot of white piqué makes a practical, springlike dress.

The pattern, No. 2876, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Oily Cream and Simple Massage Keep Eyelids Free from Lines

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There are those who pan the eye makeup artifices, but I'll say this for them. They've made women look after thei eyes better. I'm not speaking now in terms of opticians and oculists. I mean looking after the eyelid skin texture, combating the fine under eye lines, the crows' feet, etc.

On this subject I might relate an experience the other day with a woman fifty past who has an amazing freedom of line or skin shrivel around this upper face sector. I remember her telling me, a couple of years ago, of this formula of hers for keeping the area free from lines. It's simple enough, goodness knows. It takes a minute or two.

With the palms of her hands, and eyelids closed, this woman embraces that eye and forhead area in a smoothing out and up gesture. She does it frequently during the day without greased palms. But she does it nightly for a minute or two with the palms greased with cream. Lately she has found a tissue oil she likes a lot. But it is that smoothing up and out of the palm and the circulation stirring action that matters.

It's a common weakness with women that, although they may massage the face with a degree of conscientiousness, they do slop over the eyelid section and the area around the outer part of the eye, also immediately under the eye. The palms of the hand, used as described, take in the whole section in one sweep. You press in a bit with the palm as you do this.

Another little eye youthifying trick recommended for the conventional, older women, who leaves eye shadow and mascara to the young and reckless, is to use the tissue oil and leave just the tiniest film of it on the skin of the upper lid, wield a finger underneath the lower lid, lightly enough, just to give a suggestion of moistness, and you have a younger, fresher looking eye.

Child May Need to Have School Burden Eased

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Many 6 year olds who started school this term are by this time beginning to feel at home there, and are settling down into the routine which is so different from what they were accustomed to when at home all day. They are proud of being big enough to go to school and they like their work. And they may be in a class with little friends whom they know outside of school—which makes things even easier for them. In a word, the whole procedure fits many of them like a glove.

But this is not the case with all children—and it is of these we shall talk tomorrow. They need to be helped to adjust themselves to school. We shall suggest definite ways of preventing strain, and of safeguarding the nerves and health of these children by careful planning as to food, and leisureliness, and rest, and personal interviews with the teacher and the principal.

But all these things may be tried and fail. The child may continue to be unhappy or his health may continue to suffer. Presupposing that it is not possible to put the child in a different type of school, what then?

There are two alternatives. The first is—take the little boy or girl out of school for half a day for the remainder of the term. The second is take him out entirely, for as long as seems advisable.

All children at 6 years of age are not ready for school or for the particular type of school they have to attend. One term of half-day attendance may "break them in"—hateful expression—so that they can continue with ease the following term. This small child, in that event, could be taught at home with ease and kept even with the class.

If for a child's good, it should prove wise to take him out of school entirely, here again it would be simple to teach him at home.

But whether your small son or daughter masters the necessary subject matter of his grade is a minor consideration compared with his health.

A new angle on patience is treated of in our fully written booklet, "Make Patience Your Handmaiden," which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

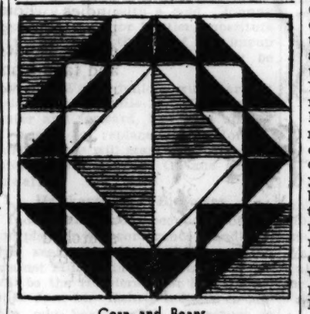
'Corn and Beans' Embodiment of Garden Design



Corn and Beans.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The garden is wholesomely represented in the quilt world with the popular old pieced block, "Corn and Beans." It is an exceedingly simple and most effective patch. The same inspiration, with slight variations, are found in several well known patterns, among them "Hen and Chickens," "Handy Andy," and "Ducks and Duckling."

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

THE CASE FOR THE OVERCALL.

The overcall still has its place in contract, according to my ideas, though greatly restricted as compared with its use in auction. I employ it when I AM PREPARED TO BID ONE IN MY SUIT, BUT NOT TO BID TWO until I know that my opponents are weak or that my partner has something to work with. For instance, if the opponent bids a heart and my suit spades, I ask myself this question: "Am I willing to play this hand at two spades doubled?" If so, I will double, because I am prepared to bid two spades over my partner's response of one no trump or two in a minor suit. If, however, I feel that I am not justified in playing the hand at more than one spade doubled, I will overcall, because I can do so at the level of one. It is a matter of suit ranking in conjunction with the strength of the hand. Your partner gains very definite knowledge from your choice. For instance, if you overcall a heart bid with a spade, or a club bid with a diamond, you are plainly saying, "I cannot afford to play this hand at two in my suit; otherwise I would have doubled." By preferring the overcall to the double you give him a distinct negative inference of your own opinion of your thirteen cards. He may raise you or not, or bid as his hand seems to suggest, but at least he knows the limitations of your hand from your own point of view. Again, if you first double a heart bid and then bid two spades over his response, he knows that your hand is much stronger in type, and the offense or defense of the partnership holdings are materially facilitated by the simple deduction drawn from the fact that, with both courses open to you, you selected the double rather than the overcall at the level of one.

My objection is to aimless overcalls, made without thought or foresight. This particular bid is not aimless when used as I suggest. It is very informative and has its rightful place in contract. The trouble comes when you enlist it for a task which is beyond its scope. It lacks strategy, but it conveys warning. Put it to work, therefore, only when safety is of more importance than strategy at the low bidding level at which the choice is offered.

Think Over the Strategic Uses of This Double.

In contract it is so very important to use strategy whenever you can do so with some safety. The double is not confined to one-suited hands, as you know. It is a two-edged sword. The adversaries do not know whether you are trying to barricade them out of a game or whether you are tempting them to overbid. Possibly you have a tremendous hand and are going to hurl a second forcing bid at your partner as soon as he has responded to your double. Or you may have an absolute psychic double, with safety in a seven or eight card suit headed by Q J. When you double, neither your partner nor your opponents can know the aim or type of your double unless one of them has such a rock-crusher himself that he can mark your double as a psychic. However, if the enemy overcome your attempted strategic interference and resume bidding and get to game, do not insist further unless you hold an out-and-out freak. You have hit; apparently, the hit did not register; so run. Do not give up hope on that account. They may still misplay the hand, either on account of your double or in spite of it. They do not necessarily know the type of your double even after subsequently bidding to game against it. So often the declarer will play the hand unnaturally because you doubled; he will read you for all the missing honors or for none; he will thus lose the hand where normal, natural technique of play would have fulfilled the contract. If your interference bidding has, apparently, failed to save the hand for you by stopping a game contract, do not assume that the hand is lost because, apparently, it had not been won in the bidding. Do not insist on assuming an unwaranted sacrifice. Try to play the defense for all it is worth. Your strategic double may, after all, turn the trick for you in the play of a close hand. It often does so for me.

Boy Desperate Because Girl Won't See Him

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"These are my problems. First, a certain young man has been pestering me with attentions. That may sound egotistical, but it is true. I tried gently at first to repel him. But he kept on phoning and turning up at all hours.

"Then, I had to tell him frankly I did not want to see him and to stop bothering me. Now a note comes warning me that if I will not see him he will do something desperate. He will take his own life."

Under the circumstances no one is responsible but the young man, himself, for whatever desperate act he proposes to commit. His mind must be warped to plan or even discuss such action, in which event you are blameless for whatever he does. However, such threats are cowardly and are rarely ever executed. There is always that execption, however, that does render such threat uncomfortable.

You might get some man he knows to talk to him. Or, if he becomes too much of a nuisance, you might call on the law to tell him he'd better be off and away.

About your other query, "Correspondent," we are as much perplexed as you. What a man means by telling you you are the most perfect and the most complex woman on earth only he may be able to tell. Only we wouldn't kid ourselves into believing everything an infatuated gentleman happens to tell us.

Edmund Lowe Uses Old Car as Pride Test

Two Big Autos Are Kept in Reserve

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Edmund Lowe maintains a rather the worse for wear coupe which he prefers to drive himself and which he uses as a "tester" for a girl friend. He will frequently drive up in it to convey the lady of his evening to one of the swank spots; if the lady does not like it, it's too bad, and that's that. Of a popular make, Eddie's car is five years old. If the lady hasn't too much pride she can ride in two big cars on later dates.

William Daniels, Metro cameraman, is photographing Greta Garbo for the nineteenth time in "Anna Karenina." Of her twenty American films, he missed holding the camera just once, that for the "Torrent."

Freddie Barthelmew, the 11 year old English boy of "David Copperfield," and Maureen O'Sullivan will play in the Garbo story. Alexis Davidoff has been named technical director to recreate the glamor of the czarist St. Petersburg.

Clarence Brown, who goes back to directing Garbo in "Anna Karenina" for M-G-M, has installed a gymnasium at his home. Brown also trots three miles every morning before breakfast.

Laurel and Hardy are to appear in kilts in their next, a sort of Scotch Foreign Legion story.

Dante's is going Garbo-Hollywood. Strict privacy is the rule, and to insure the secrecy of the technical processes to be used in filming the lakes of fire, the entrance of the souls into hell, and other marvels, all shooting will be done at night when the ordinary players and workmen are off the lot. Thousands of dollars have been spent experimenting with the processes to be used, and Director Harry Lachman intends to keep those processes secret.

Strange as it may seem, Lew Ayres blew up on his lines on a wedding scene with Clare Trevor at Fox's. He's had two real takes in real life, one of them quite recent, too.

Instead of "Caprice Espagnole," the title of Marlene Dietrich's new film will be "The Devil Is a Woman." Sounds as though it might be one of Director Joe Von Sternberg's last shafts toward the actress with whom his relations were cordial for several years until this final film chilled them.

JAIL 'HONEYMOON' DRAWS EX-SHERIF INTO U. S. COURT

Woodward Cites Tiffany and 4 for Contempt.

Lester Tiffany, former sherif of Lake county, and four others were named in a contempt citation issued yesterday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. All five were ordered to show cause on Feb. 13 why they should not be punished for contempt of court.

Named with Tiffany are Jacob Hoban and Olaf Pohlson, deputies under Tiffany; Charles Foster, 34 years old, and his wife, Caroline Tate Foster, 21 years old. The contempt citation grew out of Foster's marriage on Nov. 8 while he was serving a federal sentence of six months in the Lake county jail at Waukegan for violation of probation.

Charge Visits Cost $25.

Government investigators said they learned that Foster was let out of the jail shortly before midnight and given time to get married. The government also alleged that someone in charge of the jail had been paid $25 a visit for allowing Miss Tate to visit Foster in his cell on several occasions before the marriage.

The visits continued after the marriage, according to United States Attorney Dwight H. Green, with Foster paying the same rate for the privilege of having his wife spend the night with him.

"There is no truth in the charges," Tiffany said yesterday. "No government prisoner ever left the jail with my knowledge, and any one who says that I accepted money from prisoners in return for special favors is a liar. So far as I know the woman was never in Foster's cell. She made such a pest of herself during regular visiting hours that I ordered her out of the building on several occasions."

Sentenced on Narcotic Charge.

Foster was sentenced to six months in jail by Judge Woodward in May, 1933, for possession of narcotics, but the sentence was revoked and he was placed on probation. He was rearrested on a narcotic charge on Oct. 5 and sentenced to the Lake county jail for six months for violation of probation. Judge Woodward also sentenced him to 18 months in Leavenworth penitentiary on the narcotic charge.

When the government investigation of the Foster wedding was opened, Foster was moved to the Cook county jail.

Tiffany was succeeded as sherif by Lawrence A. Dolittle early in December. Under Illinois law a sherif may not succeed himself.

N. Y. SNOW FIASCO COSTS JUMP TO FOUR MILLIONS

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The board of estimate appropriated $1,750,000 in special revenue bonds today for snow removal, bringing the cost of the recent fiasco in snow fighting to four million dollars, with the city's streets still in a wretched condition.

Two millions were voted two weeks ago and the sum of $250,000 in the budget for snow removal was spent for equipment and repairs.

At the same time Borough President Samuel Levy of Manhattan declared that some of the delay in snow removal was caused by the failure of the La Guardia administration to call upon the trained men of the borough president's offices and pay them overtime.

President James J. Lyons of the Bronx chipped in with the information that even Mayor La Guardia's "toot" system—"one long and two shorts" on the police and fire sirens—couldn't have brought out all the emergency labor when no overtime was paid either the regular or extra employés of the department, he said.

It was voted to pay overtime in the new appropriation.

$100,000 ORDERED TO DRAIN FLOODS IN CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—An appropriation of $100,000 to be used immediately for drainage purposes in flooded areas of Long Beach, Cal., was ordered today by the state highway commission, it was announced by the county board of supervisors.

After five days of intermittent showers, an area of forty square blocks in Long Beach remained flooded today, as water from a near-cloudburst in the Signal Hill oil area drained slowly away from the lowlands.

In Mexico a rain of nearly five inches in the Tia Juana valley sent a flood down the river, which swelled to a two mile width at the mouth. Residents of the valley who were forced to leave their homes were being cared for in Tia Juana dance halls.

Total rainfall of the storm in Los Angeles was just over two inches, making the season's total more than 14 inches, within one inch of the normal rainfall for an entire year.

DEATH TAKES KRONE, WRESTLING PROMOTER

FIRPO FAINTS IN DRESSING ROOM; BOUT CANCELED

Investigate Doping of Sagilio's Foe.

The scheduled ten round bout between Young Joe Firpo, Philadelphia boxer, and Frankie Sagilio, Chicago welterweight, at the Cicero stadium was postponed indefinitly last night when Firpo became violently ill a few minutes before he was to enter the ring.

Following reports that Firpo had been drugged he was rushed to St. Anthony hospital, where physicians said his condition indicated that such was the case. The contents of his stomach will be analyzed today.

Firpo Recalls Water Bottle.

Firpo said after regaining his faculties that he had taken a drink from his water bottle 15 minutes before time for the bout to start and immediately felt dizzy. A search for the water bottle was unavailing and Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois athletic commission said that if the chemist's report indicated that drugs had been administered, Firpo's Chicago handlers, George Ade and Lou Gross, would be called before the commission Monday.

Ade expressed the opinion that the fighter had been weakened by training down from his normal weight of 147 pounds to 140½, the weight at which he agreed to fight Sagilio, and then had suffered an attack of acute indigestion by overeating in an effort to build up his strength.

Firpo Trains Down.

Firpo was overweight when he climbed on the scales at the commission's office at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and was ordered to work off some of the excess. He trained down by a drying out process and then, after weighing in the second time, ate a hearty meal, according to Ade.

He was in apparently good health as he sat in his dressing room awaiting his turn in the ring, but when he rose to have Harold Ryan, official glove man of the commission, put on his gloves, he toppled over. Dr. William Vopata, commission physician, was called, and after a conference with Triner and Commissioner Packy McFarland it was decided to postpone the bout.

Crowd Grows Impatient.

The crowd of 1,800 which packed the Cicero stadium grew impatient during the delay after the semi-final bout and when Triner announced the postponement, many began to boo and demand their money back. Promoter Billy Cepak announced that Firpo would appear on the stadium's card as soon as he is declared in condition to fight and spectators were told to retain their ticket stubs which will be good for admission at his next fight.

In the semi-final fight, Lou Jallos of Cleveland, former Golden Gloves star, beat Lou Vine of Chicago in six rounds. The four round preliminaries resulted as follows:

Jack Lazar beat Davey White; Mickey O'Shea beat Danny Mack, John Pacek and Sunny Jim Williams drew, and Milt Aron beat Frank Keevil.

RENAISSANCE IS BEATEN, 28 TO 20, BY CELTIC FIVE

The New York Celtics basketball team, national professional champions, defeated the New York Renaissance quintet, national colored champions, 28 to 20, last night at the 132d infantry armory, Madison and Rockwell streets. The Celtics led at the half, 14 to 9, and never were headed thereafter.

A capacity crowd of 5,000 saw the games.

Hickey led the Celtic attack with eight points, garnered on four baskets, closely followed by Banks with 7 points. Holt was high man for the Renaissance with 9 points, scored on one field goal and seven free throws.

In preliminary games the Spencer Coals girls' team defeated the Hart Motors, 25 to 11, and the Mary Queen of Heaven C. Y. O. team beat the Olde Tymers, 39 to 31.

519 PASS TEST FOR SOUTH SIDE GOLDEN GLOVES

Total Exceeds Last Year's by 150 Boys.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Five hundred and nineteen boys have passed their medical examinations for the south side Golden Gloves tournament which opens Monday night at White City. This is approximately 150 more than the number of boxers who qualified for the White City fights last year.

This list is approximately 50 per cent of the boxers who entered from the south side. It includes only those who were willing to report for a medical examination and, of course, does not include those who were rejected by the staf of physicians.

Not all of these boys will report on Monday night. Several novice weight classes have been ordered to report on Tuesday. Other boxers will appear for the first time on Wednesday night.

First Bouts at 7.

The greater percentage is due Monday. These boxers must report to the clerks between 4 and 6 p. m. in the White City basketball building. Here they will be examined again by the physicians. Next they will be weighed. This weight will determine the class in which they will box. At 6:30 the pairings will be made for the night's program and the first bouts will start in two rings at 7 o'clock.

Admission Monday night and for all sectionals is sixty cents plus tax. The South Side tournament will continue on Tuesday and Wednesday and then wait until Feb. 21 and 22 to determine the Novice and Open class qualifiers for the bouts at the Chicago Stadium.

No seats are reserved Monday night. The White City skating rink, where the tournament will be held, will accommodate 5,000. All spectators will have an excellent view of the rings. A program containing the names of all contestants will be distributed without charge.

Eleven States Represented.

There is more interest in the Open class this year than for several years. Not only is this due to the increase in general entry but to the graduation of boys from last year's Novice tournament to the Open division. The competition for qualifying positions in the Tournament of Champions promises to be most keen on the south side.

In 1934 Chicago qualified 64 boxers, eight in each weight, from all sectionals for the Stadium bouts. This year this group has been cut in half since the number of teams from outside Chicago is larger than ever before. Eleven states will be represented in addition to the Catholic Youth Organization champions and Chicago's qualifiers who equal four teams.

The National A. A. U. convention last December changed one of the rules with which the timers are concerned. Formerly when a boxer was knocked down, arose and then went down again without being hit, a technical knockout was called. Under the new rule the count is continued.

For instance, if a boxer is knocked down and gets up at the count of three, and then goes down again, the timer will resume the count with four. If the boxer gets up before ten he may continue; otherwise he is counted out and the match is ruled a knockout.

Timers for Golden Gloves.

The list of 12 timers who will handle all the sectional bouts and the Tournament of Champions follows:

J. J. Lipp, William Finn, William J. Dowling, W. W. Adams, S. E. Darwent, Herman Henning, Harry J. Normoyle, Charles Sidebotham, Al Krause, Theodore A. Gross, Walter Sonnenleiter, and Harry O'Hare.

This list includes many men licensed as timers by the Illinois athletic commission. All are licensed by the Central association of the A. A. U. Most of these men have been identified with Golden Gloves since the first tournament in 1928.

BIGGEST DAVENPORT MEET

Davenport, Ia., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—As the Davenport Daily Times Golden Gloves tournament moved into the second round tonight forty-one more boxers were eliminated. A large crowd

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MANAGER JACK ADAMS never has had a contract with the Detroit Red Wings. . . . He and James Norris Sr., owner of the hocky club, just talk it over and that's the way it stands. . . . Tonight's game at Patten gymnasium will be the 14th between Notre Dame and Northwestern at which Nick Kearns has officiated. . . . Leroy Mahaffey, Athletics' pitcher, throws and bats right-handed, but he does everything else, including writing, as a southpaw. . . . Barney Ross received approximately $10,000 for his junior welterweight championship bout with Frankie Klick at Miami, about twice as much as Klick. . . . The net receipts were $31,000. . . . Phil Fahrney, University of Georgia football player, who is making his first film appearance as a cowboy in Hoot Gibson's current picture in Hollywood, forgot to duck and was knocked off his mount by a limb of a tree during a screen chase his first day on the job. . . . Chicago Bears who have returned to school to complete their studies include Bernie Masterson to Nebraska, Beattie Feathers to Tennessee, Art Buss to Michigan State, Ted Rosequist to Ohio State, Gene Gonzani to Marquette, Ed Kawal to Illinois, and Ookie Miller to U. C. L. A. . . . Joe Kopcha, who played through the season as guard with the Bears, is now an interne in Harper hospital, Detroit. . . .

The Japanese are so enthusiastic about the possibilities of playing host to the 1940 Olympic games that they have dispatched a delegate to Italy to request Mussolini to withdraw from the running. . . . The Japanese are counting on the votes of Germany and the United States. . . . After learning that wrestlers appearing at the smaller clubs in Chicago sometimes are paid as low as 50 cents, Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois Athletic commission ruled that a minimum purse of $10 must be awarded them. . . . Clarence Tommerson, La Crosse, and Bob Null, Beloit, both sophomores on Wisconsin's football team last fall, have withdrawn from school because of financial difficulties. . . . Tug Wilson, Northwestern athletic director, keeps his waistline under control by working out daily with the basketball squad.

Eight jockies, one of them Albert Johnson, who rode two Kentucky Derby winners, are in the cast of Mae West's new picture. . . . They are Frankie Mundin, Dunice Dubbis, George Philpot, Noble Threewit, Frank Burke, Joe Frye, and Joe Heenan. . . . All except Johnson are riding at Santa Anita. . . . Max Baer will be 26 years old Monday. . . . Babe Ruth can get along without your sympathy. . . . Should he retire to the rocking chair now he will draw in excess of $15,000 annually the rest of his life from annuities. . . . Referees in New York will be paid $200 for championship fights and judges $100 each under the new wage scale. . . . Lou Gehrig of the Yankees does no reading during the summer, so that he will place no unnecessary strain on his batting eyes. . . . He goes in heavily for literature in the winter. . . . And for opera, too. . . .

George L. Magerkurth, National league umpire, is learning to play bridge at the Moline Elks club and he already has won a tin medal, awarded to the player who is set the greatest number of points. . . . Eight of the 19 players on the Southern California basketball squad, leader in the Coast conference, are from the middle west. . . . They are Ward Browning, Jack Thorpe, and Robert Muth, Sioux City, Ia.; Joe Kelly and Sheldon Loughborough, Madison, Wis.; Wayne Garrison, Martinsville, Ind.; Jerry Gracin, Gary, Ind., and Findlay Lawrence, Ottumwa, Ia. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Michigan's basketball team nosed out Northwestern, 17 to 16. . . . Carl Stockholm and Hy Kockler of Chicago were leading the Coliseum six day bike race. . . . Rumors were rife that Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns had split up. . . . Sammy Mandell, en route to his home in Rockford, stopped off in Washington and was received by President Coolidge. . . . Fielding Yost denied that Harry Kipke had been offered a coaching job at Michigan.

PITT HALTS 24 GAME STREAK OF DUQUESNE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Duquesne university had its 24 game winning streak snapped tonight by Pittsburgh, 35 to 34. Five times during the first half the score was tied and once each team held a five point lead. The half ended with Duquesne ahead, 20 to 19.

With the opening of the second half, Pitt, with Cribbs as the marksman, jumped into the lead, but Duquesne, with Birch and Serany carrying the load, led 30 to 25, with five minutes to play. The last five minutes drove the 5,000 crowd hysterial as Jesko and Roderick sank baskets which put Pitt ahead. Lineup:

CHAMPION WINS FOURTH GAME OF CUE TOURNEY

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Edward Lee of New York, the defending champion, beat Arthur Horwitz of Minneapolis, 50 to 32, in the national amateur three cushion billiard tournament tonight. In winning his fourth victory in five matches, Lee ran out in 75 innings.

The two afternoon matches produced victories for John Davenport of Philadelphia and Albert Primeau of Detroit. Davenport, who had dropped his first three matches, defeated Horwitz, 50 to 36 in 93 innings, while Primeau won over Leon Radler of New York, 50 to 36, in 75 innings for his second triumph in four matches.

MAROONS MEET ILLINI TONIGHT; IRISH VISIT N. U.

Iowa Invades Ohio State; Purdue at Fordham.

Games Tonight

Minnesota at Indiana.
Illinois at Chicago.
Iowa at Ohio State.
Notre Dame at Northwestern.
Michigan at Michigan State.
Purdue at Fordham.
DePauw at Wisconsin.

A heavy schedule will be played tonight by Big Ten conference basketball teams, which return to competition after examination recess. Three conference games are listed, while the four other quintets engage strong non-conference opponents.

In Chicago the trailing Maroons will oppose the sixth place Illinois quintet at the University of Chicago fieldhouse, while a capacity crowd is expected to watch Notre Dame play Northwestern at Patten gymnasium. Illinois will seek to stop the sharpshooting Bill Haarlow, Maroon star, who leads the conference individual scorers.

Coach Dutch Lonborg of the Wildcats will present a new lineup in an effort to win the 16th game of the Notre Dame series. Lonborg will use Guy Mercer, sophomore forward; Leo Grossberg, sophomore center, and Tug Blume and Duke Vance at guards, while the veteran Lyle Fisher will be at the other forward position.

Notre Dame Crippled.

With two regulars and two substitutes on the casualty list, Notre Dame also will send a revised lineup into the game.

George Ireland, who has not missed a game in 38 consecutive starts, has a charley horse and probably will be unable to play. Capt. Johnny Jordan, his running mate at guard, was in the infirmary today with a cold. Johnny Hopkins and Victor Mettler, substitute forwards, are both out of the lineup with injuries, but Hopkins may be able to play.

Frank Wade, junior, will start at Ireland's post, while Don Elser, giant center and forward, has been shifted to guard to replace Capt. Jordan. Marty Peters will start at center with Johnny Ford and Joe O'Kane at the forwards.

Hawkeyes Meet Buckeyes.

Indiana's Hoosiers, occupants of second place in the conference standings, will seek to retain their position against Minnesota at Bloomington. It will be the Hoosiers' first home game since Jan. 14. Kehrt, Indiana co-captain, who has been ill, will return to the lineup to help the team bid for its fourth victory, while the Gophers' attack will be led by Norman, tall center, who has 46 points in six conference games, and Baker, speedy forward.

In the only other conference contest Iow . will travel to Columbus to oppose Ohio State. The Hawkeyes now are tied with the Gophers and the Badgers for third place, with four victories and two defeats, while the Buckeyes have won four of their seven games.

Purdue, the defending champion and present leader of the conference race, meets Fordham university in the feature contest of a double header at Madison Square Garden in New York. Fordham displayed fast breaking and accurate shooting against Syracuse in its last game and looks for a victory over the conference champions.

Purdue Battles Fordham.

Michigan and Wisconsin play in other nonconference games. The Wolverines engage their state rival, Michigan State, before a crowd of 6,000 at East Lansing, while the Badgers face DePauw of Greencastle, Ind., at Madison. The Wolverines will be after their second victory of the season over Michigan State, having defeated the Spartans early this year.

Iowa Gymnasts Defeat Maroons for First Time

For the first time since the sport was inaugurated in the Big Ten, Iowa's gymnastics team defeated the University of Chicago Maroons, conference champions of the last five years, in a dual meet in Bartlett gymnasium last night. Iowa's score was 1,063.75, Chicago's score was 1,060. Three individual first, in the horizontal bar, side horse and parellel bars, went to Wettstein of Iowa.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 8.—Dear Wake: During the last day of the 1893 World's Fair Mayor Carter H. Harrison, walking with the mayor of Philadelphia, headed a procession of mayors marching from the city hall east in Washington street to the Illinois Central depot, where they boarded a train for the Fair to celebrate Mayors' day.

That was the last time Chicagoans ever saw the mayor alive. That night he was assassinated at his home at Ashland and Jackson boulevards by a crank named Prendergast who called him to the front door on some pretext.

Harry W. Maltzer.

Recent mention of Graceland cemetery in this column brings back old memories. It seemed a long distance in those days from the west side when the family carriage was brought into play. My recollection of our horse drawing the family conveyance through the sands of Clark street is extremely vivid. Often the sand was as high as the hubs.

From the west side we crossed the river by Division street or North avenue bridge and had to pass two toll gates. My impression is that the first toll was paid near Wrightwood avenue and the second at Addison street. I also recall the tolling of the bell as a funeral procession entered the cemetery.

South of Irving Park avenue on Clark were taverns where mourners stopped for refreshments on their way home while the horses were given a rest. Here we children came in for our part. Our treat was pop and pretzels. It was a long, long trip and quite an event.

A Former West Sider.

As late as 1882 present Jackson park had not been touched for park purposes. The Illinois Central had a small frame station at 63d street. There was a small greenhouse at 63d street and Stony Island avenue, the latter a narrow gravel road. The present lagoon then was a low swampy place under water. There were a few trees about, but one could see the Hyde Park pumping station off to the southeast at about 67th or 69th and the lake.

When It's Showtime.

Though some may dream of southern trips
When vivid days are spent;
Or western suns and salty dips,
My dreams are different.

They do not follow far away,
They melt like April snow;
"First Nights" are nights I dream about—
That's when I never go.

Meeting Old Friends.

While walking along Cahuenga boulevard here a dapper chap of easy middle age approached and said: "Aren't you Harvey Woodruff of old West Division High school?" We were. It was Dave Weil, two classes behind us at the old institution on whose assembly room walls was the quotation, "Beyond the Alps Lies Italy," or something to that effect. We had not seen him since school days, so recognition must be considered a tribute to our youthful appearance. Mr. Weil now is in the tailoring business.

Providing for Betters.

Handbooks taking bets on the races are under pretty strict control in this sector. That's one reason why volume of speculation is so high at Santa Anita. To provide for patrons who cannot attend the races every day, a commissioner in Pasadena solicits wagers which he takes to the track to place for you. If your wager loses, there is no charge. If you win, the charge is 10 per cent of your winnings. This commissioner has liberal patronage in bets of small denominations.

Trafic Rule Observance.

Motorists here, as a rule, are punctilious in observance of trafic laws, especially "Stop" signs. Instead of the mere hesitation at such signs, displayed at home, there is a full stop. Likewise, keeping in the proper lane is necessary to escape a ticket. Rights of pedestrians at crossings are strictly observed. At any rate, a pedestrian may raise his hand for a safe crossing

MADE AND LOST FORTUNE WITH FAVORITE SPORT

Funeral Services on Monday.

BY FRENCH LANE.

John Krone—Doc Krone to the thousands who knew him as one of the most picturesque sports promoters in the country—died at the American hospital on Irving Park boulevard yesterday. He was 61 years old. Funeral services will be held in the chapel at 5206 Broadway at 2 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

As a wrestling promoter in Chicago and in many other middle western centers for nearly thirty years Krone's earnings ran into thousands of dollars, but, to the surprise of many of his friends, it was revealed last night that he had died penniless.

"Wrestling's good will ambassador at large" was the title earned by Krone through his years of promotional endeavor. He promoted hundreds of matches, saw many of them terminate in strange fashion, heard some wrestlers make confessions that their matches were "not on the square," but to Krone it was always an honest, manly sport.

"Wrestling? It's a great factor in the upbuilding of the American youth," he would tell every acquaintance.

In Wrestling for Years.

His acquaintances numbered far into the thousands and he won many a friendly wager on his ability to walk any direction in the loop and be able to call more people by name and greet them in friendly fashion than any one ever matched against him.

While he engaged in many promotional ventures, it was in wrestling that he became a character known from one end of the country to the other. He entered the sport back in the days of Gotch and Hackenschmidt and since then there scarcely has been a wrestler of any consequence who has not worked for him in some match or another.

Krone's physique, the garb he adopted years ago, the style of which he never changed, his extra large black bowler hat, his white stiff collar, his black bow ties, starched shirt fronts, black or dark blue suits made of him a person never easy to forget. In summer and winter he was immaculate in his makeup.

Had His Own Diet.

At one time he weighed more than 300 pounds and then he became one of the most enthusiastic diet addicts in the country. On a dozen occasions he took off from 40 to 100 pounds by strict adherence to his diet which he preached to almost every fat man he ever met. He weighed 200 pounds at the time of his death, his last dieting efforts having taken off slightly more than 100 pounds.

He always carried at least one spare collar in the band of his large bowler hat. Frequently he jokingly told friends that when he traveled around from one wrestling activity to another that all the baggage he took along was plenty of fresh stiff collars hidden away in his hat band.

Krone came to Chicago in 1883 and gained the sobriquet of Doc soon after he became employed in a drug store at Clark and Randolph streets. For ten years, from 1887 to 1897, he served there and it marked the beginning of his wide acquaintance with persons who frequented the loop.

From 1897 to 1909 he owned a drug store at 73 South Clark street and it became the meeting place of many sports celebrities. It was at this time that he began his sports promotional ventures. He was among the first to exhibit moving pictures of championship sports events and made several trips to Europe to exhibit them.

Ran for Alderman.

About twenty years ago he ran for alderman of the Twenty-fifth ward and in his campaign lambasted "big business and silk stocking politicians" for, he charged, trying to corrupt the city government.

Back in November of 1907 he created a sensation by inserting the following add in Chicago newspapers:

Wanted—Housekeeper, chambermaid, cook, and night watchman to sail in an airship. Good wages.

To those who applied, Krone related a story that he was building an airship in Cleveland at a cost of $35,000 which would be ready for a flight in six or eight weeks. "We have not decided where we will fly, but we will not go to the north pole," he told them.

That was the end of the airship incident.

A little more than twenty-five years ago he teamed up with Joe Coffey and for twenty years they staged most of the important wrestling matches held in Chicago. There were fat years and some lean years, but Krone never admitted discouragement.

"Other people can think what they want about wrestling, but to me it is an honest sport and I owe it to the community to present it in its better light," he said hundreds of times.

Survived by Widow.

Where his fortune went his friends were unable to determine. He lived high and made a few unprofitable investments. He liked the races, but wagered modestly.

Many of his friends believe his spasmodic dieting hastened his death. He entered the American hospital to undergo an operation for strangulated hernia. He did not rally after the operation.

He was born in the coal mining district of Pennsylvania and remained a bachelor until two years ago. He is survived by the widow.

10 MORE BOXERS ARE SIGNED FOR CARNIVAL FRIDAY

Ten 6 Round Bouts Are on Program.

James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis, Chicago Stadium co-matchmakers, are covering a great amount of ground in their search for suitable talent for presentation at the Stadium next Friday in the boxing carnival, which will be composed of ten bouts at six rounds each. Ten boxers, representing seven states and a province in Canada were added to the card yesterday. They have been paired as follows:

Ken Overlin, Norfolk, Va., vs. Carmen Barth, Cleveland, O., middleweights.
Mike [Kid] Frattini, New York, vs. Nestor Brugman, Chicago, welterweights.
Harold [Dutch] Weimer, Tucson, Ariz., vs. Johnny Vorce, Detroit, Mich., light heavyweights.
Roy Lazar, New York, vs. Joe Jorden, Memphis, Tenn., heavyweights.
Eddie Carroll, Ottawa, Ont., vs. Geno Salvatore, La Salle, Ill., lightweights.

Thus thirteen states and the Canadian province will be represented because Thursday eight fighters carrying the colors of Indiana, Connecticut, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Colorado, and Kentucky were placed on the program. These boys were matched as follows:

Mike Belloise, New York, vs. Paul Lee, Indianapolis, Ind., featherweights.
Eddie Hogan, Waterbury, Conn., vs. John Pacek, Chicago, heavyweights.
Lou Halper, Newark, N. J., vs. Billy Miller, Milwaukee, Wis., welterweights.
Chuck Heffner, Denver, Colo., vs. Bobby Matthews, Paducah, Ky., middleweights.

Promoter Maurice Rivkin has arranged six supporting matches for his show which will be headed by a ten round encounter between Johnny Phagan, Chicago, and George Black, Milwaukee, at Marigold Gardens Monday. Bobby Hull, Manhattan, Kas., welterweight, will clash with Richard [Toots] Bernstein of Milwaukee in the six round semi-final. Bouts at four rounds match Bobby La Monte with Don Lamanski, Bill Reardon with George Van Der Hayden, and Willie Dudlack with Sammy Guidara. Buck O'Neil will wrestle Eddie Flynn in the opening match.

Barney Ross opened training yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium for his junior welterweight championship defense against Henry Woods at Seattle, Wash., Feb. 26. . . . Sammy and George Rasof, young brothers of the champion, worked out later for their debut as boxers in the west side Golden Gloves trials which open at Community recreation center next Wednesday. . . . Pep Kerwin, Peoria, Ill., promoter, is attempting to sign Bobby La Monte for a contest Feb. 25. . . . Reports that Champion Ross is liable to suspension by the state athletic commission if he fails to sign to defend the lightweight crown against Tony Canzoneri within thirty days were refuted yesterday by Chairman Joe Triner. . . . "Ross has been signed to defend the title for Promoter Joe Foley," the chairman said, "and if Canzoneri does not wish to box for Foley I don't see anything we can do about it."

Jim Londos will oppose Tom Marvin in a wrestling bout on the program being arranged by the Capital Athletic club for presentation at the Coliseum Feb. 21. Boxing matches will be between Davey Day and Bobby Pacho at ten rounds, Everett Rightmire and Jackie Sharkey at ten, Orville Drouillard and Paul Lee at eight, and Eddie Carroll and Fred Chynoweth at six rounds.

A net gain of $3,060 has been derived from boxing and wrestling shows in November, December and January in this state over a corresponding period in 1933-'34. . . . The next show offered by the Mastro Boxing club at Community Recreation center will be held Feb. 27. . . . Mike [Little Pal] Primitch, Indiana Harbor junior lightweight, has gone to California for combats. . . . Sam Abruscato, Western stadium promoter, plans to offer his first outdoor show in May. F. M.

Arcaro Rides 3 Winners at Hialeah Park

Miami, Fla., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Jocky Eddie Arcaro scored a triple today at Hialeah Park, including in his sweep Mrs. A. M. Creech's Band Wagon, winner of the featured Naples claiming handicap. Arcaro's other winners were Fairisk in the first and Stallman in the nightcap.

Band Wagon scored by a length at the good price of $21 over Miney Myerson, 6 to 5 favorite. It was a driving finish, with the winner being clocked in the sparkling time of 1:23 4-5 for the seven furlongs. Two lengths back of the public choice Gentle Knight crossed the line to get third money.

In two of the races it was a duel between Arcaro and Silvio Coucci, the latter probably the most popular rider of the session. Coucci came off second best in the rousing finish in the Naples after once having had the lead with Miney Myerson.

Miney Myerson seemed to have things his own way until the stretch was reached, when Band Wagon came on with a great show of power. He showed not the slightest sign of weakening as he drove for the line under the hardest kind of urging from Arcaro.

Coucci also threw all he had into the finish, but Miney Myerson was not good enough and had to be content with second honors. In the nightcap Arcaro again had the better of Coucci, as the latter was up on Big Red, the favorite, which finished second. Stallman won by a length

New York Hears Babe Ruth Cuts His London Visit

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Something has happened to hasten Babe Ruth's steaming from England for New York. In London today, Ruth announced that he would embark on the Olympic on Feb. 14, arriving here on Feb. 20, just before the various major league clubs head for the southland. Only two days ago the Yankee offices were informed, on inquiry at Ruth's apartment here, that the Babe had postponed his quitting Europe until Feb. 28.

Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, said he would not discuss Ruth's status until he had had a talk with the Babe. As a result the proposal of the Boston Braves to offer Ruth a place as assistant manager will be held in abeyance at least until the 20th.

In the meantime, Col. Ruppert is making every effort to put through a trade for an outfielder to replace the Babe—some man with power and experience. When Col. Ruppert was in Chicago the other day he thought he had landed the man—and it wasn't one of the White Sox, either. But the other club owner thought it over and ended negotiations somewhat abruptly.

Barrow has been holding off printing the Yankee roster. But by tomorrow he'll go to press and very likely without the addition he has been seeking.

Ohio State Track Team to Meet Indiana Today

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Ohio State and Indiana track teams will meet tomorrow morning in the fieldhouse. The Buckeyes, headed by the colored sprinting star, Jesse Owens, holder and co-holder of three world's records, are favorites over Coach E. C. Hayes' squad of newcomers. Owens will compete in the 60 yard dash, broad jump, and 70 yard low hurdles.

Baer Boxes to Aid Campbell's Widow Friday

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Five years after his crushing fists battered Frankie Campbell into insensibility and later death, Max Baer is coming back to a San Francisco ring to box for the unfortunate fighter's widow.

Through his manager, Ancil Hoffman, the heavyweight champion agreed today to meet Stanley Poreda of Jersey City, in a four round bout next Friday. Six ounce gloves will be used. It will not be an exhibition. Proceeds of the program, except for bare expenses to cover preliminary bouts and Poreda's purse, will be turned over to Mrs. Campbell.

While no one concerned expects Poreda to accomplish what no other fighter has done—flatten Baer—he can win the title by laying out the latter for the count.

Donn Shields, chief inspector for the state athletic commission, interprets conditions of the bout to mean Baer's crown will be at stake. "They've agreed to a fight, not an exhibition," Shields said.

Poreda, from Jersey City, was rated an outstanding prospect in 1932 when he beat both Primo Carnera and Tommy Loughran. He has slipped since then.

Baer fought Campbell Aug. 25, 1930, winning by a knockout in the fifth round. Campbell had floored his bulkier rival, the only time in Baer's career he has been knocked down by a punch. Baer jumped up and rushed Campbell into a corner where he rained punches on the San Franciscan. Campbell was wedged in the ropes and could not fall to the canvas. He was "out on his feet" when Referee Toby Irwin stopped the fight. Campbell died the following day from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Goldthwait of Dartmouth Breaks Skating Record

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 8.—(AP)—A new world skating record for the 440 yard dash was set by Lawrence Goldthwait of Dartmouth today in one of the special events on the opening program of the two day carnival winter sports meet. Goldthwait skated the distance in 35.4 seconds, a fifth of a second under the mark set by Charles Gorman of Canada in 1927.

5 Candidates for $100,000 Race in Test

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Clearing skies and the prospect of a dry although slow track gave impetus tonight to speculation on tomorrow's San Antonio handicap, preparatory race for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap Feb. 23.

With Calvacade, champion of the American turf, definitly out of the San Antonio because of a hoof injury, chief interest centered in Good Goods, stablemate of Cavalcade, and Azucar, the converted steeplechase star.

Of the seven horses slated to start, five are nominated for the Santa Anita handicap. In addition to Good Goods and Azucar the Santa Anita candidates entered are Sarada, carying an impost of 128 pounds; Fleam, with low weight of 121, and Head Play, with 128.

Gallant Sir, twice winner of the Agua Caliente handicap, and Big Beau, stablemate of Twenty Grand, also will be running, but they are not entered in the Santa Anita handicap.

Good Goods will carry 126 pounds, and Azucar will pack 128 pounds. The distance will be a mile and one eighth.

Equipoise, one of the big favorites for the Feb. 23 handicap, is to be started in a race next week.

CHICAGO RIDING CLUB TO BATTLE DETROIT TONIGHT

Black Horse Troop Will Meet Lincolnshire.

The Detroit Eagles and Chicago Riding club polo trios will meet tonight at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, in what promises to be one of the standout games of the Metropolitan Polo league season.

In no game played at the Washington Park armory this year have both teams been so well supplied with good horses. The Eagles and the Riding club have twelve ponies apiece, making a fresh horse available for each chukker.

Capt. Maxwell Corpening and his Riding club teammates, Jim Hannah and Prentice Porter, have been pointing all season to tonight's game with the Eagles. They are confident that if they can beat Detroit they can also dispose of Cleveland, the senior division leader.

Troop to Meet Lincolnshire.

The winner of tonight's encounter will be a strong contender for the championship, but the losers will be virtually out of the race, in fifth place.

The Riding club team is rated at 11 goals and the Eagles at 10.

The Chicago Black Horse Troop, far out in front in the junior division, will take on the Lincolnshire Country club in the first game. A victory for the Troop will mean at least a tie for first in the final standings.

ARTILLERY VS. BEES

The 122d Field Artillery and the Riding Club Bees, clash tonight at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street.

In the opener, the University of Chicago polo ists will meet up with an old rival, Ohio State. In last season's skirmish, the Buckeyes handed the Maroons a one goal defeat that cost them their chance to retain the Big Ten championship. As a result of this upset, title honors were divided equally between Illinois, Ohio and Chicago.

During the intermission, eight members of the Black Horse Troop, will compete for the Troop jumping championship. Gordon Orbesen, present claimant for the honors, and Gilbert Kliest and Edwin Ward, runners-up, will be among the contestants.

PAIR OF 25 LAP RACES ON AUTO CARD TOMORROW

Two 25 lap races will feature the indoor automobile race card tomorrow night at the 124th Field Artillery armory. These events will be for class A and class B drivers. Each class also will have three 10 lap heat races and a helmet dash.

New drivers who will line up this week include: Tudy Marchese of Milwaukee, Ed Malcolm of Chicago, and Eddie Conroyd of Milwaukee.

MOSTLY about DOGS
By Bob Becker

The Question Box

I will appreciate it if you can give me answers to the following questions: I have a chow puppy 3 months old. I want to know how to take care of him, especially with regard to feeding. Do you advise raw meat? Or is boiled meat better? What kind? Can he chew on raw bones? Do you advise cod liver oil? [I have given him cod liver oil and it did not agree with him.] How old should he be before I worm him? So far my puppy has had no meat at all. I was told not to allow him on the cold walks, so I have always carried him and kept him covered.

Miss Marguerite P.

Answer: To be very frank with you, you are doing just about everything that can be done to spoil your dog. Space will not permit me to answer all your questions in detail, but here are a few tips on the care of your pup. For further details on care of dogs [especially the chow] and recommendations on books you should read, please send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

First, your dog should have been fed meat before this. Dogs need meat as a staple article of their diet. Both cooked and raw meat are good. For the puppy it should be scraped or cut in very small pieces. I feed beef to my dogs—sometimes cooked, sometimes raw. A reliable canned dog food, made of wholesome meat combined with other nourishing ingredients, is good. Lamb is all right for the dog. In addition to meat every day, the dog should get a small portion of cooked mashed vegetables, cereals, and milk.

By all means, smooth raw bones for the pup to chew on. Cod liver oil is excellent, but start by giving the dog a very small amount every other day. If you pour a tablespoonful of cod liver oil into a puppy at the start, very likely it will disagree with him.

As for worming your dog, better take him to a veterinarian, let him examine the pup and, if necessary, administer the medicine.

As for carrying your pup outdoors and wrapping him up, that's an injustice to a healthy, hardy chow. You don't have to coddle a chow. Let him run around and get some healthful exercise.

I would like very much to get some advice on a beagle hound. We have acquired a beagle recently and we do not know how they hunt. When one of these dogs starts game will it run it around to the guns?

T. Burton, 3138 South Wells street.

Answer: I suggest that you do two things to get a complete picture of the work of the beagle, because it would take several columns to tell you adequately about the sport these hounds give one and how smart they are in handling the cottontails so that the guns get plenty of shots.

First, get in touch with some member of the Western Beagle club, that organization of beagle fanciers here in Chicago. R. B. Falkiner, 180 North Michigan avenue, Chicago, is president. He will be glad to advise you on how to get started with your hound. Second, read a good book on the beagle, its history, and its method of hunting. Am mailing you suggestions on the book to read.

DETROIT TEAM ARRIVES TODAY FOR RUTH GAME

The Holzbaugh team of Detroit, leader of the Michigan-Ontario Hocky league, will arrive this afternoon and will take a light workout at the Stadium for the game with the Baby Ruths tomorrow afternoon. In a preliminary game the Boston Store and Postis will meet in a Chicago Hocky league contest starting at 2 o'clock.

The winner of the Holzbaugh-Ruth clash will have the inside track in the fight to represent the midwest in the Olympic tryouts.

ROOSEVELT FIVE TRIUMPHS, 31-30; SIXTH STRAIGHT

Lane Misses Chance to Tie in Final Minute.

Roosevelt High school's heavyweight basketball team scored its sixth consecutive victory yesterday to remain on top in the north section of the Chicago Public High School league. It defeated Lane Tech, 31 to 30, at Roosevelt gymnasium in one of the most closely contested games of the league season

Roosevelt led at the end of the third period, 29 to 26. Shortly after the start of the last quarter Wimmer of Roosevelt sank a basket and Roosevelt led, 31 to 26. Annel of Lane Tech scored a basket and a minute later Schmidt scored for Lane.

Schmidt Misses Chance.

Schmidt, with a minute to play, was fouled by Wimmer and he missed the chance to tie the score when he failed to make good on the free throw.

Senn rolled up the highest team score of the season when it swamped the weak Von Steuben quintet, 64 to 19, at Senn. Senn held a 32 to 6 advantage at the half and 42 to 14 at the end of the third period. Read, center, was Senn's high scorer, collecting 13 field goals and four free throws.

Lake View Wins.

Lake View rallied in the final period to defeat Sullivan, 27 to 26, on Sullivan's court. It was Lake View's second victory and Sullivan's third defeat. Krueger starred for Lake View, making two long shots in the final minutes to bring the team victory. The lineups:

HINSDALE WINS, 23-18

Hinsdale High school took another step toward the heavyweight basketball championship of the West Suburban conference last night when it defeated Downers Grove, 23 to 18, at Hinsdale. Cassels and Meyer led Hinsdale to victory, the former scoring two field goals and two free throws and Meyer collecting three baskets and two free throws.

In the Suburban league Oak Park suffered its second defeat of the season, losing to New Trier, 36 to 29, at Winnetka. New Trier led at the end of the first half, 16 to 12. Wilson starred for New Trier with nine points. It was New Trier's second victory in two games.

The third place Evanston quintet triumphed over Waukegan, 30 to 27, in another heavyweight contest. Led by Gilson and Legg, Evanston held a 15 to 11 advantage at the half. McNamara and Shea starred for Waukegan. It was Waukegan's four conference setback and Evanston's sixth victory.

Glenbard and Riverside were victors in other Western Suburban conference heavyweight games. Glenbard won from West Chicago, 33 to 11, at West Chicago, and Riverside, with Price and Grear leading the attack, triumphed over York, 31 to 21.

ROY HENSHAW DEFENDANT IN DIVORCE SUIT

Temperament is the main marital shortcoming of Roy Henshaw, 23 year old southpaw pitcher for the Chicago Cubs, according to the bill for divorce filed in the Circuit court yesterday by his wife, Dorothy. She is the former Dorothy L. McGraw, is 21 years old, and was married to the baseball player in Yuma, Ariz., last May 28.

Roads Icy; Illini Fencers Cancel Notre Dame Trip

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The fencing match between Notre Dame and Illinois scheduled for tonight was postponed when the Illini were unable to make the trip because of ice covered roads. No date has been set for the playoff.

Weber Lights Beat De Paul in Overtime

Weber's lightweights achieved their first victory in the north division of the Chicago Catholic High School league last night when they defeated De Paul academy, 30 to 28, after four overtime periods. It was De Paul's second defeat of the league season.

The De Paul heavyweights, however, continued their way to the sectional title by scoring their fourth consecutive triumph, defeating Weber, 45 to 28. Rowland, O'Malley, and Tonelli led De Paul to victory. Weber scored only two points in the first period and one in the second. De Paul led at the half, 25 to 3.

Other heavyweight victors were Leo in the south section and St. Mel in the west division. Leo triumphed over St. Rita for its third victory on the home court, while St. Mel remained in second place in the west division with a 40 to 22 victory over St. Ignatius.

In the lightweight division St. Mel retained first place in the west section, triumphing over St. Ignatius, 23 to 21. It was St. Mel's fourth straight victory. Leo lightweights, in second place in the south division, won from St. Rita, 37 to 34.

BOWLERS ROLL IN ELIMINATION MEET TONIGHT

The twelve women left in the Chicago district bowling eliminations will roll tonight at the Woodlawn alleys and the six survivors in the men's competition will shoot at the Gold Coast Recreation.

After the week-end round of 12 games which will be concluded tomorrow afternoon with the women at Samuelson's Arcade and the men at the Logan Square Recreation, the respective lists of survivors will be reduced to eight and four.

Agnes Crocombe, 101 pound south side star, who topped the women in last week's trials, is a favorite to continue in the running. Other women survivors are: E. Kirg, A. Pietelka, M. Ebert, C. Immel, F. Trettin, B. Fender, T. Morris, C. Grob, B. Kleine, B. Ramsey and V. Pozdel.

CARNERA'S SUIT FOR $125,000 IS KILLED BY COURT

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Primo Carnera's $125,000 breach of contract suit against Max Schmeling today was thrown out of court when Supreme Court Justice Edgar L. Lauer granted the motion of Louis Stillman, Schmeling's counsel, to dismiss the suit.

Carnera, who lost the world's heavyweight boxing title to Max Baer last June, charged that Schmeling failed to go through with a contract in 1931 when the German was ruler of the heavyweights.

Justice Lauer said the giant Italian failed to prove a cause of action.

Wisconsin Fencers Beat N. U., 14-1; Lose 1 Duel

Wisconsin's strong fencing team defeated the Northwestern swordsmen, 14 to 1 last night at Patten gymnasium. It was the Wildcats' third loss in Big Ten competition. The Badgers took all of the saber and epee duels and eight of the nine foils.

519 Qualify for South Side Golden Gloves

witnessed the program at the Moline fieldhouse.

The program tonight broke all records for number of bouts. Wednesday night, when the first show was held, thirty-five bouts were staged, a new high for Golden Gloves in this vicinity. To cut the eight divisions to eight boxers each for the quarter finals it was necessary for eighty-two boxers to enter the ring tonight.

Competition in the 126, 135, and 147 pound divisions was keen. These divisions had the biggest entry. Three former champions competed tonight for the first time. Shorty Burkhart, winner of the 112 pound title last year, battled in the 118 pound class; Eddie Dempsey, the 118 pound title holder, fought in defense of his crown, and Steve Borota of Kewanee was back again seeking the 175 pound title.

Cliff Bourdeau, Sam Karben, and Joey Rozina, all former champions, who won their opening bouts Wednesday night, also competed on tonight's program.

EAU CLAIRE STARTS

Eau Claire, Wis., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The first preliminaries of the Eau Claire Leader-Telegram Golden Gloves tournament were held at the Elks club last night before an overflow crowd. Tonight additional preliminary bouts were fought. Finals are scheduled next Friday night at the City auditorium. Results:

118 pounds—Tommy Marcott, Eau Claire, beat Jimmy Vakelick, West Allis.

126 pounds—Roy Stooldryer, Rice Lake, beat Bob Gullickson, River Falls.

147 pounds—Ray Chisholm, Glidden, beat Ed Strand, Poskin; Woody Bergner, River Falls, beat Steve Wigcsork, Ojibway.

160 pounds—Jack Maloney, Wheeler, stopped Orrin Olson, River Falls [1]; James Davis, Chetek, beat Eddie Lyone, River Falls; Tony Lauer, Stanley, beat Adolph Zarocx, Chippewa Falls; Verne Stevens, Maiden Rock, beat Joe Zankowski, Sheldon; Henry Strand, Poskin, beat Gregory Skroch, Ashland.

175 pounds—Hollis Hayes, knocked out Wade Veness, Exeland [3].

Heavyweight—Verne Woodward, River Falls, knocked out Thad Migawa, Fairchild [2].

Stars of Track Race Tonight in Boston A. A. Meet

Boston, Mass., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Lured by the possibility of a world record breaking performance, one of the largest track crowds in Boston's history will gather at the Garden tomorrow night for the 46th renewal of the Boston Athletic association meet.

The thrill of the meet is expected when Charles Hornbostel, the great Indiana runner, starts in the 1,000 meter event against a fast field that includes Elton Brown of Kansas, his erstwhile conqueror; Waldo Sweet of the New York A. C., and Glen Dawson of Tulsa, Okla.

Hornbostel cut the world's mark for the 600 meter event to 1:11.3 and then came within a second of Hal Cutbill's 2:12 record for the 1,000, while registering his double in last week's Millrose games.

The Hunter has in its international field Gene Venzke, who pushed Cunningham last week; Eric Ny of Sweden, Leslie Wade of Montreal, and several capable collegians. Venzke is counted upon to wipe out the Boston record of 4:15.2, set by Joie Ray, who won seven of the previous twenty-four Hunter races, in 1925.

The 600 should be another great race, for Ivan Fuqua, winner of the Prout event here two weeks ago, will start against Milton Sandler, the speedy New York German, Harry Hoffman of the New York Curb exchange, and Timmy Ring of Holy Cross.

LAKE FOREST DEFEATED BY NORTH CENTRAL

North Central college of Naperville continued its drive on the Little Nineteen championship by whipping Lake Forest, 48 to 30, last night at Naperville, for its fifth conference victory. The Cardinals are undefeated in conference competition.

Led by Jim Thumley, who scored 20 points, North Central came back in the second period with a fast breaking offense to overcome Lake Forest's lead. Lake Forest led at the half, 18 to 17. Lineup:

Three Tie for Golf Lead at Agua Caliente

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Wiffy Cox of Brooklyn took another step toward the successful defense of his Agua Caliente golf sweepstakes title today by adding another par 71 to his total for 142 strokes. He was tied for top position with Ky Laffoon and Harry Cooper, Chicago players, who cracked par to move up to the front rank.

Laffoon came home with a 69, 2 under par, the best round of the tournament. Cooper, with two others, turned in 70. These were Mortie Dutra, Detroit, who shot his way into a tie for fourth with Byron Nelson, Texarkana, Tex., at 143, and Craig Wood, Deal, N. J. Wood had a two round total of 145 to tie for sixth with Ben Loving, Petersburg, Va.

Mutuels Pay $52.

Laffoon's first place was worth $52 for $2 pari-mutuel tickets, none of which was his own.

Two besides Cox and Nelson were able to match par today—Ray Mangrum, Los Angeles, and Emil Mashie, Fitchburg, Mass. The latter two were five and six strokes back of the leading trio, respectively.

Those who yesterday had held the lead with Cox could not stand the pace. Clarence Clark, Bloomfield, N. J., pro, needed 76 strokes to get through the quagmire today, while Dr. Cliff Baker, Vancouver, Wash., shot a 77. Macdonald Smith, veteran Carnoustie Scot, shot 74 for a 151 for the thirty-six holes.

Six Tie at 146.

A six way tie resulted at 146, four strokes back of the leaders. These were Henry Picard, north-south champion from Hershey, Pa.; and Walter Hagen, veteran Detroit campaigner, with two 73s each; Jim Demaret, Galveston, Tex.; Ren Smith, Oak Park, Ill.; Ralph Guldahl, Los Angeles, and Willie Goggin, San Francisco.

Harold McSpaden, Kansas City, Kas., leading money winner of the winter golfing tours, shot a 76 today for 148, and Olin Dutra, national open champion, had 150, eight strokes behind the leaders.

Two former champions here fared even worse. George Von Elm stood ten strokes back with 152 and Fred Morrison had 154 strokes chalked up against himself.

The third round will be played tomorrow and the final eighteen holes Sunday.

Michigan Loses Jablonski; Fear More May Flunk

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Information relative to the eligibility of Michigan athletes trickled down to Ferry field slowly today and coaches were loath to discuss the question, although four Michigan teams will be in action Saturday.

The day's returns showed definitly that John Jablonski, who had just about made his way back to the first basketball team and who is regarded as the only good catching prospect for the baseball team, is ineligible. He will not be taken to East Lansing for the basketball game with Michigan State tomorrow.

All the men picked to wrestle against Michigan State here tomorrow apparently are on the approved list, but information on trackmen is still far from complete. It appears now that at least one good man will be lost to the track team.

The hocky team will play Monday without Capt. Johnny Sherf. Sherf lacks several credits by reason of not having taken his examinations. Sending the team against the Ontario Aggies without Sherf Monday is about the same as sending out a baseball team without a pitcher.

ARMOUR TECH FIVE DEFEATS DE PAUW, 37 TO 31

Armour Tech's basketball team defeated DePauw university of Greencastle, Ind., 37 to 31, at the 108th Engineers armory yesterday. Armour led at the end of the first half, 17 to 15. Heike, star Armour forward, led the attack.

Malkov, Smith Wrestle to Draw in Midway Show

Zach Malkov and Clarence Smith wrestled 60 minutes to a draw in the main event of a show at the Midway arena last night. Al Williams pinned Fred King in 40 minutes in the semi-windup. Other results:

Charles Peterson pinned Eddie Flynn in 26 minutes.

Buck O'Neill pinned Iron Man Ward in 17 minutes.

GOALIE KERR TO BLOCK HAWKS IN GAME TOMORROW

Ranger Star to Perform at Stadium.

The Blackhawks returned from St. Louis yesterday stunned by the loss of their final game against the Eagles Thursday, but grateful to a kind fate that guided the New York Americans to victory over the Rangers on the same night.

The Americans' 6 to 4 triumph, as totally unexpected by the Hawks as their own 1 to 0 overtime defeat by the lowly Eagles, makes it certain that the Chicagoans can retain a lead over the Rangers no matter what the result of their game at the Stadium tomorrow night, although the Hawks may have to share their division lead in the National league with the Boston Bruins. The Bruins strengthened their hold on second place by playing a tie game Thursday and are only one game behind the Hawks now.

Manager Clem Loughlin has called a short practice for the Blackhawks this afternoon in preparation for tomorrow's Ranger invasion, which is expected to attract the largest crowd of the season. Advance sales indicate 16,000 will see the contest. The fact that the Rangers' string of 13 consecutive games was broken by the Americans at the same time that the Hawks blew their own stretch of seven contests without a setback, is not expected to reduce the attendance.

Cripples to Limber Up.

Practice this afternoon will be devoted to limbering up Howie Morenz, Donnie McFadyen, Doc Romnes, and Mush March, the only ailing members of the squad, and drilling on shot making, a task Loughlin expects to be none too easy against the Rangers' new goalie, Davie Kerr.

The four cripples are not sufficiently incapacitated to cause worry in the Hawk camp and all are expected to take part in tomorrow's game. Romnes, who has been out with a boil on his arm, which developed after he recovered from a shoulder injury, has been named to start at center. Morenz and McFadyen have bruises sustained against the Canadiens Tuesday night and March has a sprained wrist. The Kerr matter, however, is something else again.

Kerr is known as the rescuer. He joined the Rangers to replace Andy Aitkenhead and played his first game with the New Yorkers on Dec. 16. The Rangers lost that one, but immediately began a drive toward the division lead which carried through 13 games without a defeat. Since Kerr joined them, the Rangers have lost only four of 21 games.

Rangers Borrow Kerr.

He played with the Maroons in 1930-'31 and alternated between the Windsor International league team and the Maroons the following year. He started the 1932-'33 season with the Philadelphia Arrows in the Canadian American league, where his play earned him another chance with the Maroons in midseason. He replaced the veteran Flat Walsh.

The Rangers borrowed him just before Christmas. Kerr, who stands 5 feet 10 inches and weighs 160 pounds, thinks Lorne Chabot is the greatest goalie in the game and models his play after the Blackhawks' star.

DEAD MAN COMES TO LIFE; SAYS HE SAW OLD FRIENDS

ims All Are Happy in World to Come.

ARLEY, England, Feb. 8.—(AP)—ngland tonight had the word of John uckering, who liked being dead so well he's sorry they brought him back to life, that everybody is "supremely happy" in the world to come.

Puckering's picture of the hereafter, as he saw it during four and one-half minutes his heart was stopped while he lay on an operating table, was painted in these words:

"During those five minutes or so I was worried and disturbed. Suddenly everything cleared and I was filled with great content.

Claims He Saw Villages.

"I knew I was dead because I saw many villagers of Arley I knew before they died. They were all happy, and I was happy, too. They nodded and smiled so happily that I was overjoyed to be dead. There were hundreds of smiling faces in a bank of hazy, shining clouds."

"The grave has no terrors for me now. I realize that earthly life, sorrowful as it can be, is just a training ground for something fuller and better."

Immediately after his revival Puckering called his daughter, a nurse, and told her he had seen her mother, who died a year ago.

Doctor Is Modest.

Dr. G. Perceval Mills, whose massage of Puckering's heart gave the gardener his unusual opportunity to bear witness to the life after death, insisted "There was nothing out of the ordinary" about the matter.

He added, reluctantly:

"Yes, it is unusual for a man's heart to stop and for the man to come back to life."

If Dr. Mills had had his way, his name would not have been mentioned in the affair at all. The British Medical Journal, however, printed an account of the matter.

Assured by his physician that he is "doing well," Puckering today was going about his market gardening just as he did before the three-quarter hour operation that resulted in his temporary death.

BELA KUN'S AID GETS LIFE; TROOPS GUARD BUDAPEST

BUDAPEST, Feb. 8.—(AP) — Hungary's 16 year old grievance against communism was aired in court today and Matthias Rakosi, people's commissar in the brief but bloody Red régime of 1919 was sentenced to life imprisonment. Tonight the capital, in virtual state of siege, was apprehensive of communist demonstrations threatened in protest.

From communist sympathizers in many nations, even the United States, Judge Szemak, who presided, had received threats of murder and torture if he pronounced sentence on Rakosi. Hence police and soldiers took extraordinary precautions to prevent demonstrations or attacks on court officials.

Rakosi, who broke his stoic calm only to assert that he had no active part in Bela Kun's communist government of 1919, was tried for high treason, 41 murders or homicides and 489 other offenses. To Hungary, however, he was more than Bela Kun's erstwhile people's commissar. He was the symbol of the bloody post-war period and of communism itself.

JAPAN TO FIGHT PHILIPPINE BAN ON LAND LEASES

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Official notice was served tonight that the Japanese will contest the cancelation of many leases of lands in Davao province which the Philippine government asserts were illegally acquired.

The Japanese consul, Toyoji Kaneko, formally notified Eulogio Rodriguez, Philippine secretary of agriculture and commerce, of such impending action.

Furthermore, Kaneko is privately reported to have warned Rodriguez that drastic action directed against the Japanese would be likely to have international repercussions. Neither Kaneko nor Rodriguez would confirm this report.

Kaneko's notification followed the action of Rodriguez in halting further grants to public lands and forests of Davao province, where he estimated Japanese already own or lease more than 100,000 acres, exclusive of timber concessions.

Uruguay Smashes Revolt; Rebels Fleeing to Brazil

[Copyright; 1935: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 8.—The Uruguayan revolution appears to have collapsed except for unimportant operations of small rebel detachments in several provinces. Basilio Munoz, military chieftain of the uprising, has been located in Brazil, whence he escaped after receiving a slight wound during an aerial bombardment of the rebel general staf headquarters. Rebels are fleeing across the frontier into the Brazilian state of Rio Grande do Sul.

Rites to Be Held Today for Walter H. Simpson

Funeral services for Walter Harper Simpson, Chicago business executive, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Joseph Bond chapel on the University of Chicago campus. Mr. Simpson, who was 47 years old, died of heart disease Wednesday. He was a grandson of Dr. George W. Northrup, a founder of the University of Chicago Divinity school. Simpson had lived at the Quadrangle club on the university campus for more than 15 years.

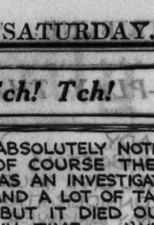
C. H. TOUZALIN DEAD; VETERAN OF ADVERTISING

Charles Hayden Touzalin, head of the Charles H. Touzalin Advertising agency, 7 South Dearborn street, for the last eleven years, died yesterday in his home at 10416 South Seeley avenue. He was 72 years old.



CHARLES H. TOUZALIN.

Mr. Touzalin was born in Columbus, Ill., but came to Chicago at an early age. He was educated at the Kenwood High school. He was employed by the Lord & Thomas advertising agency in Chicago for more than 24 years, before he organized his own firm.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Mary V. Touzalin, and one daughter, Mrs. Helen T. Seefurth of Chicago. Funeral services will be held Monday in the home. Burial will be at Mount Greenwood cemetery.

1,000 AT BURIAL OF MALOY, SLAIN CZAR OF UNION

Thomas E. Maloy, slain czar of the Moving Picture Machine Operators' union, was buried yesterday in Calvary cemetery. More than 1,000 friends and curiosity seekers followed the body to the grave.

Brief funeral services were held in the Maloy apartment at 6806 Chappel avenue, where the body lay beneath a neon lighted crucifix. The widow, Mrs. Effie Maloy, was attended by Ralph O'Hara, organizer of the union, and by her adopted son, Edward.

As Maloy was buried police sought Miss Bobette [Bobby] Clark, alias Gloria Dysett, night club entertainer, to question her concerning her friendship with Maloy. Miss Clark fled from her apartment at the Piccadilly hotel shortly after Maloy was shot to death last Monday as he rode in his automobile at 24th street and the outer drive.

It was reported yesterday that the union members plan to call a special meeting within the next few weeks to elect a successor to Maloy. O'Hara yesterday reiterated statements that he would not "accept the job if it was given to me."

EMMA TWITTY, ONCE CHICAGO RESIDENT, DIES

Mrs. Emma Wynn Twitty, 79 years old, widow of Walter G. Twitty, board of trade member who died in 1931, died of pneumonia in Milwaukee yesterday.

Mrs. Twitty was born in Chicago and had lived here until 1932, when she took up residence in Milwaukee with her daughter, Mrs. Florence Rugee. She was married in 1875, the year Mr. Twitty joined the board of trade. Besides Mrs. Rugee, Mrs. Twitty is survived by another daughter, Mrs. W. W. Holmes of Los Angeles, and a son, Edward L., who is a member of the Chicago Board of Trade.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon in the chapel at 929 Belmont avenue. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery.

Max Liebermann, Famous Jewish Painter, Dies at 87

BERLIN, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Max Liebermann, 87, celebrated painter and dean of German artists, died today. Liebermann was an exponent of "sanity in art." A Jew, he was one of those who coöperated in the formation recently of the Jewish "Kulturbund Deutscher Juden," to develop a cultural medium strictly for Jews in Germany. At the age of 80 Liebermann painted a portrait of the late Paul von Hindenburg, president of Germany.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If there is any busier men in radio than Bob Andrews we have not heard of him. Andrews is the author of ten radio serials each requiring 2,000 words or so for every episode. All are heard five times a week so his weekly output invariably runs beyond 100,000 words, considerably more than the average novel contains.

Andrews hopped out from New York on business one day this week but started back before nightfall. On the way out he wrote ten episodes for "The Romance of Helen Trent," heard ovr W-G-N and CBS, and on the way back he intended to take care of NBC's "Betty and Bob" for two weeks. Other Andrew's sketches are "Just Plain Bill," "The Shadow," "Five Star Jones," "Skippy," and "Back Stage Wife." Three others he is writing are slated for eastern appearances shortly.

Andrews maintains that he writes all the lines that go into his programs and for several of them he also turns out commercial continuity. He pounds them out on a portable typewriter. A former newspaper reporter, he has never become accustomed to dictation. His radio writing is said to net him more than $1,500 a week. And it keeps him busy often 18 hours a day. When he finds any spare moments he turns his attention to movie scenarios. He has just sold one titled "Drum Beats." Two successful movies were made from his novels, "If I Had a Million" and "Three Girls Lost."

Miss Herma Clark, author of the "When Chicago Was Young" letters in THE TRIBUNE will appear on the Northerners' program on WMAQ Monday evening with a short narrative on "First Ladies of the Land." . . . Dorothy Page, radio beauty, will leave Monday for New York to take a screen test at the invitation of Warner Brothers. She plans to return to the Gold Coasters orchestra at the Drake Saturday. . . . Earl Burtnett, former W-G-N and Drake hotel maestro, is on the air from WLW nightly.

Fifty members of Evanston's Lights Out club got more than they bargained or the other midnight when they came to NBC studios to view Bill Cooper's macabre "Lights Out" broadcast. This week's episode concerned a honeymooning couple lost in the Roman catacombs. Studio lights are doused during the broadcast, only two narrow beams playing on the actors themselves. The studio sound experts gave Evanstonians a nice case of jitters.

Tony Wons got a letter the other day from a fan who asked for a mere $10,000. He turned it over to the Voice of Experience. . . . Mme. Schumann-Heink wants to say thank you to the annoymous Ames, Ia., fan who sent her the pickled pigs feet. . . . WBBM is starting a new after midnight show at 1 a. m. Tuesday, titled "The Voice of Love."

JACOB LEDERER'S WIDOW IS DEAD AT 69; LONG ILL

Mrs. Frances Lederer, 69 years old, 2756 Pine Grove avenue, widow of Jacob Lederer, Chicago store fixture merchant for many years, died in St. Luke's hospital yesterday after a long illness.

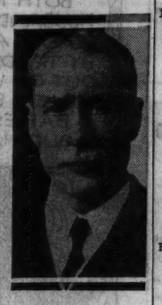
She is survived by three sons, Dr. Francis Lederer, 2920 Commonwealth avenue; Arnold Lederer, 652 Buena avenue, now head of the store fixture concern; and Samuel Lederer of Winnetka. Funeral services will be held Monday in the undertaking rooms at 2701 North Clark street. Burial will be in Waldheim cemetery.

Frederick Warde, 84, Actor and Author, Dies in N. Y.

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Frederick Warde, 84, actor and author, who played with Edwin Booth and John McCullough, and who was for three years the leading man at the old Booth's theater in New York, died last night.

DR. CHAS. EVANS, BIBLIOGRAPHER, DIES HERE AT 84

Dr. Charles Evans, 84 years old, 1413 Pratt boulevard, widely known bibliographer and author, died in his home yesterday after a long illness.



DR. CHARLES EVANS.

Born in Boston, Dr. Evans became assistant librarian of the Athaneum there when he was 16 years old. He devoted most of his life to library work, organizing large book collections in Indianapolis, Omaha and Baltimore. He organized the Virginia library of the McCormick Theological seminary here, and classified the Newberry library.

He retired several years ago from active work, but at the time of his death was working to complete his bibliography of all books, pamphlets, periodicals and publications printed in America from 1639 to 1820. He was a member of numerous literary, historical and antiquarian societies.

Dr. Evans was the father of Charles [Chick] Evans Jr., the golfer, and Attorney Elliot Howland Evans. A daughter, Mrs. Donald Jones, also survives. Private funeral services will be held this afternoon in the Graceland cemetery chapel.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

ALDRICH—In memory of my devoted friend, Charles H. Aldrich, who departed this life April 14, 1929.

"I waited in the evening twilight
For your approaching step,
When suddenly I realized
That you had gone to rest.

"I watched, I waited, I listened
For your voice, soft and low,
When from my dream I wakened
To find you had gone before."

FREIGHT TRAFIC IS HIGHEST FOR WEEK SINCE '31

Miscellaneous Goods Gain Most.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Rising sharply to 598,164 cars, freight trafic last week was at the highest level for the corresponding week since 1931. The larger than seasonal gain of 42,396 cars over the preceding week was the sharpest increase for the period since 1918, according to figures released today by the Association of American Railroads.

Heavier movements in miscellaneous freight were largely responsible for the improved showing over the preceding week, when the total was 555,768 cars.

The total movement last week was also the highest for any week since early last November and compared with 565,401 cars in the corresponding period of last year, a gain of 32,763 cars, or 5.8 per cent, and 486,059 cars in 1933, an increase of 112,105 cars, or 23 per cent.

All Classes Show Gain.

All classifications of freight shewed gains over the preceding week with coal and miscellaneous freight totals rising most over a year ago. Loadings for the year to date amounted to 2,768,635 cars, compared with 2,748,482 in the corresponding period of 1934 and 2,410,267 in 1933.

Miscellaneous freight loadings took 210,718 cars, an increase of 21,270 over the preceding week, 20,922 above 1934, and 57,053 above 1933.

Less than carlot merchandise totaled 154,366, an increase of 7,578 over the preceding week, but a decrease of 7,924 from 1934 and 7,596 from 1933.

Coal required 155,434, an increase of 1,931 over the preceding week, 20,786 above 1934, and 48,052 above 1933.

Grain and grain products totaled 25,959, an increase of 3,356 over the preceding week, 5,402 below 1934, and 435 above 1933. In the western districts loadings totaled 16,126, a decrease of 4,767 from last year.

Live Stock Total Higher.

Live stock amounted to 14,147, an increase of 338 over the preceding week, but a decrease of 1,480 from 1934 and 1,890 below 1933. In the western districts loadings totaled 10,779 cars, a decrease of 1,403 from last year.

Forest products amounted to 24,361, an increase of 6,439 over the preceding week, 4,115 above 1934, and 9,911 above 1933.

Coke took 9,733 cars, an increase of 601 over the preceding week, 711 above 1934, and 4,114 above 1933.

Increases were reported in all districts with the exception of the southern, which showed a small decrease as compared with the same week in 1934. All districts reported increases over 1933.

WESTINGHOUSE AGENTS DISCUSS PLANS FOR YEAR

More than 750 dealers and salesmen of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company gathered at the Stevens hotel yesterday to discuss sales promotion plans and a $2,000,000 advertising campaign for 1935. Sales last year were 73 per cent above 1933, and a gain of 40 per cent this year is expected, R. C. Cosgrove, sales manager of the household refrigerator department, reported.

"We are anticipating an upward trend in general business conditions and are preparing to institute an offensive in the way of advertising and sales promotion," said J. C. Schmidtbouer, manager of the northwest division. "Approximately 1,500,000 refrigerators were sold last year, and greater sales are expected this year. Production of models at lower prices has opened the market to a new stratum which should do much to boost sales."

Half of the amount to be spent in the advertising campaign, he said, will be used on a national campaign through eight magazines and on billboards, and the other half will consist of a metropolitan campaign carried on through newspapers. In Chicago the company will spend twice as much for newspaper advertising as in 1934.

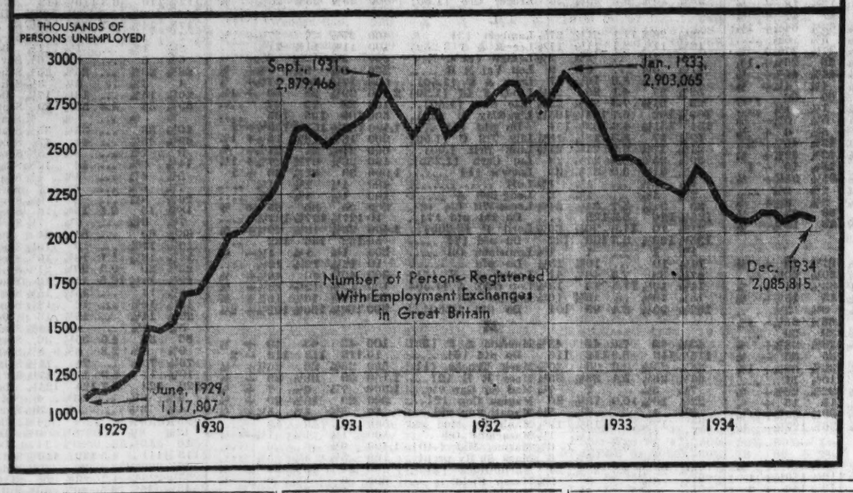
Century of Progress Rents Michigan Avenue Space

A Century of Progress yesterday rented 5,000 square feet on the seventh floor of the Blum building, 624 South Michigan avenue, for a term of years, according to W. G. Sanderson, manager. The exposition records and office equipment will be moved from the World's Fair Administration building on Feb. 15, it was stated. That structure is to be turned over to the south park board.

House Grants More Funds for Real Estate Bond Quiz

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—Further investigation of real estate bondholders' organizations was assured today when the house voted $50,000 for expenses of a special committee of inquiry.

Unemployment in Great Britain Again Declined in December After Slight Upturn



Life Insurance Chief Indicted as Embezzler

Indictments charging embezzlement of $22,000 from the Pacific States Life Insurance, Illinois Mutual Life, and General Life Insurance companies were returned yesterday against Frank S. Heilmann of Evanston, Ill., manager of Pacific States Life's eastern division, and Attorney John L. Robinson, 134 North La Salle street, by the grand jury at the Criminal Court building. Detectives from the state's attorney's office have been unable to find either man.

Heilmann was president of the Illinois Mutual Life Insurance company and the New Deal Life Insurance company, which were placed in receivership yesterday, and also president of Chicago National Life Insurance company, according to Assistant State's Attorney Dodd Healy, who presented the material to the grand jury.

Misuse of Funds Charged.

The indictments are the outgrowth of the Pacific States Life Insurance company's handling of the Chicago National Life Insurance company's funds. When the latter company failed in June, 1932, it was reinsured by Pacific States.

Examiners of the insurance department of Illinois after going over the company's books reported that the Chicago National Life's records had been falsified, its affairs mismanaged and some of its funds converted to the personal use of interests connected with the company.

"Accounts of funds of the company have been intermingled with those of other insurance companies, namely, General Life, Illinois Mutual Life, and New Deal," the report said. "In an attempt to avoid revealing the actual circumstances incidental to transactions relative to the aforementioned companies, the books and records have been falsified. No consideration whatever appears upon the books for the disposal of such assets."

Charges Attorney Borrowed Bonds.

E. R. Elliott, Chicago attorney, the report stated, borrowed $4,000 of Federal Farm Mortgage company bonds from Chicago National's fund. This he used as collateral to secure a personal bank loan.

The license of Pacific States Life Insurance company, Denver, to solicit new business in Illinois was terminated in 1933. The company is now licensed to solicit business only in Colorado.

Illinois Mutual Life, of which E. S. Heilmann is president, was formerly known as General Life of Chicago, an assessment company. It was reported to be controled by E. R. Elliott and Heilmann, both of whom were instrumental in drawing up the contract whereby Pacific States reinsured Chicago National Life.

On Sept. 18, 1934, the Illinois insurance department instituted proceedings to enjoin Illinois Mutual Life from assuming the reinsured Chicago National Life contracts on the grounds that such action would be unlawful.

TRADE REVIEW PREDICTS BIG GAIN IN SPRING BUYING

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Spring trade volume will be 10 to 25 per cent above the corresponding period a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., estimated today in its weekly trade survey. Continued expansion in all branches of business was reported.

While retail distribution had a less auspicious start than at the beginning of January, sales for February as a whole are expected to show a larger percentage of gain over 1934 than last month, when the extremely cold weather made shopping difficult.

Gains last week for the whole country were estimated as 6 to 25 per cent over a year ago.

The survey reported that sharp attention to the rising trend in food prices is being paid by manufacturers, who fear that should clothes and rent join the upward movement a sudden renewal of concerted action for higher wage scales would result.

The improvement in the industrial group is illustrated by the gains in the operating rate ranging from 20 to 35 per cent above a year ago, with schedules in some branches now equal to the rate shown in the like 1930 period, and a corresponding rise in employment and pay rolls, the survey said.

Chrysler Cuts Prices of All Airflow 8 Models

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Reductions in the price of all Chrysler Airflow eight models and all Chrysler Airflow Imperial eights, amounting to as much as $200, were announced today by the Chrysler Sales corporation. The reduction in price will not result in any change in design or appointments, it was said.

GOVERNMENT REVEALS ALLEGED $1,500,000 TIPSTER SHEET FRAUD

Boston, Mass., Feb. 8.—(AP)—An alleged $1,500,000 stock market "tipster" sheet fraud was disclosed tonight when the federal grand jury returned an indictment against 25 men from Boston, New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles.

United States Attorney Frances J. W. Ford alleged two tipster sheets, operated during 1932 in Boston with a circulation of 5,000 throughout the country, had netted their operators $1,500,000 during that year. The indictment charged the defendants with using the mails in a conspiracy to defraud.

The allegations concerned the activities of the Boston Financial News and Anglin's Forecast, both weekly financial advisory publications purported, Ford said, to have boosted the sale of 90,000 shares of class A common stock of the Curtis Manufacturing company, a Delaware corporation doing business at Downey, Cal.

The company, the indictment set forth, misleadingly represented it was engaged in manufacturing buses and had an order from the government for 3,000 machines for use on the Boulder dam development.

Ford named William L. Jarvis of Boston and Samuel L. Gaines, alias Ginsberg, of New York City, as principals in the operations. William A. Murphy and J. C. Sommers, alias Somers, of Chicago were also named in the indictment.

SOME BANKERS DELAY CASHING OF GOLD BONDS

Faced with the monetary uncertainty involved in the pending gold clause decision some of the big Chicago banks are holding up the cashing of gold clause securities which matured Feb. 1, it was learned last night. Not all the banks are following the same procedure regarding bonds which they hold themselves, but nearly all are delaying the surrender of gold bonds held in trust for customers, a canvass of the principal banks showed.

William S. Miller, vice president of the Northern Trust company, said that the bank has not cashed any Feb. 1 maturities so far, but that interest coupons on gold clause bonds have been turned in an usual.

The First National bank, it was learned, has cashed gold bonds held for its own account but has consulted with clients before cashing bonds held in trust accounts.

All the bankers queried were emphatic in stating that they do not believe there is any chance of holders of the gold bonds collecting more than present dollar equivalent of the principal amount of the securities regardless of the way the court decides.

E. A. Srill Becomes Finance Officer of Hall Printing

Directors of the W. F. Hall Printing company at a meeting in New York yesterday, elected E. A. Srill vice president in charge of finance, Hadar Ortman, president, announced. Srill has resigned the presidency of General Box company to take over the new post. L. A. Smith and R. M. Dailey, vice president and controler, respectively, resigned to reassume their private practice of consulting accountants.

Auto Output in January 306,000 Units

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Output of American automobiles soared to 306,000 units in January, according to a preliminary estimate by the Automobile Manufacturers' association. This compares with 185,919 units in December and 163,811 in January last year.

On this basis January production was 65 per cent over the preceding month and 87 per cent above the corresponding period last year. The association said that only in 1926 and 1929 has January production exceeded this year's total.

General Motors Sales Up.

At the same time individual concerns disclosed sharp gains in sales for the month. Chief of these was General Motors, whose sales of cars and trucks to consumers in the United States amounted to 54,105 units.

This total compares with 41,530 in December and 23,438 in January, 1934. Dealer sales for the month amounted to 75,727 units, against 28,344 in December and 46,190 in the same 1934 period.

Total sales to dealers in the United States, Canada and overseas aggregated 98,268 cars, compared with 41,594 and 62,506 respectively.

Sales to consumers, dealers and overseas each were two to three times better than in 1934 and indicated the best January business in several years. Consumer sales for the initial month of the year have not exceeded this year's figures since 1931.

Others Report Gains.

Shipments of the Plymouth Motor company for January totaled 48,636 cars a gain of nearly 109 per cent over January last year. Sales for the period amounted to 24,000 units, compared with 8,000 in 1934.

Retail deliveries of the De Soto Motor corporation in the first five weeks of 1935 totaled 1,336 units, an increase of 354 per cent over last year. Combined sales of De Soto and Plymouth cars in the period aggregated 9,879 units, an increase of 190 per cent, the company said yesterday.

Meanwhile, a survey issued in Washington by the National Recovery administration and the bureau of labor statistics disclosed that automobile production is becoming increasingly concentrated in three companies—Ford, Chrysler, and General Motors. In 1929 these three manufactured 77 per cent of the nation's total and in 1934 88 per cent, according to the study.

The report said Packard Motor company has one of the best records of stable employment in the industry.

BANKS, MARKETS CLOSE TUESDAY; HONOR LINCOLN

The principal commodity and security markets in this country will be closed next Tuesday, Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday. The Chicago live stock exchange and the New Orleans Cotton exchange are expected to operate as usual in accordance with their usual custom. Banks will be closed.

Another exchange holiday, Washington's birthday, occurs the following week, Feb. 22.

Rep. Bacon Calls Income Tax Publicity a 'Criminal's Guide'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Outright repeal of the income publicity provisions of the revenue act of 1934, which he called "an innovation of snoopery," was sought today in a bill introduced by Representative Bacon of New York.

Bacon declared that the section involved "bludgeons the private citizens, fortunate enough in these days to have a reportable income, to disclose his personal relationship to the government to the curious eyes of gossips, business competitors and a host of other people who cannot justifiably demand the sort of information required."

Repeal of the provision has been demanded by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and other organizations, but Bacon's measure is the first legislative attack in this session.

"Tormenting" Taxpayers.

"This section of the law providing for full publicity of income reported to the government is not only an asinine requirement but one that is now tormenting thousands of income tax payers all over the country," Bacon asserted. "Unless congress takes immediate action, every income tax payer will have to fill out this pink slip, which later will be posted for public scrutiny in public buildings throughout the United States.

"Then the curious, the mendicants, the blackmailers, the sharpers and the criminally ingenious will have the opportunity of getting their fill of information which in a free country like this is owed to the government alone.

"So far as the criminal element is concerned, the government, in effect, is furnishing a 'who's who' and a list of prospects for every gangster, racketeer and kidnaper in the country. Why not furnish the lists direct and be done with it?

Innovation in Snoopery.

"This is an innovation in snoopery that we can do without. The bureau of internal revenue, government officials, and committees of congress now have full and ample right and opportunity to study every individual income tax return that is made. That has been provided by law for a long time and is right and proper.

"But to 'dish' out this sort of information to the idly curious, to a man's competitor in business, or to the criminal element, has the effect, substantially, of government relaxing its protection of the private rights of every private individual in the country."

VAN SWERINGEN SUBMITS PLAN FOR MO. PACIFIC

First Big Rail Move Under New Law.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—O. P. Van Sweringen, president of the Alleghany corporation and chairman of its controled Missouri Pacific railroad, has submitted to important "MOP" bondholders a plan of reorganization for the line, which has been in bankruptcy since June, 1933. The proposal is the most important to have materialized since the bankruptcy law was amended to include railroads.

The plan reduces but does not eliminate the Alleghany corporation's control of the railway and thus has a favorable effect on the status of a $48,260,565 bank loan secured by the deposit of the controling interest in the Alleghany corporation. The loan was originally for $40,000,000, but has been increased to its present total by interest accretions. It matures in May.

Alleghany Corporation Holdings.

The Alleghany corporation holds 65.8 per cent of Missouri Pacific common and 32.4 per cent of the preferred stock outstanding.

The plan, which is in preliminary form, provides for Missouri Pacific securities substantially as follows:

Holders of the company's $224,040,000 of first and refunding 5 per cent bonds would receive a new bond with the same coupon rate but of which only 1 per cent would be a fixed charge, the remainder to be paid only when earned.

In general, holders of other senior bond issues would receive new bonds of the same coupon rates, but with interest payments conditioned entirely on earnings.

Holders of the $12,140,000 of secured 5¼ per cent bonds would receive income bonds with the same coupon, and, in addition, a bonus of preferred stock. These bonds are secured by the Missouri Pacific in the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico Gulf Coast lines.

Preferred to Get Common.

Holders of the $71,800,000 of $5 cumulative Missouri Pacific preferred stock would receive common stock of the new company.

Holders of the $82,839,000 of Missouri Pacific common stock would receive new common stock in a ratio which would reduce but not wipe out their holdings. An assessment of common stock is held to be impracticable by interested bankers. They said no syndicate could be formed to underwrite an assessment.

The new mortgages would be "left open" to provide securities to be issued the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other creditors.

The consideration which the RFC would receive in settlement of its $23,134,800 of loans to the railway has not been decided. Bankers pointed out that the RFC had good collateral for this loan. Included in this collateral is stock which gives the owner 29 per cent control of the Texas and Pacific, a profitable Missouri Pacific subsidiary which is not in bankruptcy.

Object to Fixed Charge Plan.

John W. Stedman, vice president of the Prudential Insurance company and chairman of the committee for the first and refunding Missouri Pacific bonds, distributed an outline of Van Sweringen's plan to members of the committee today. Stedman said he did not wish to comment on the plan at this time. In the past, he has had differences of opinion with Van Sweringen on the treatment Van Sweringen proposes for the senior Missouri Pacific security holders.

One member of Stedman's committee expressed the opinion that to follow Van Sweringen's proposals would place too large a percentage of the Missouri Pacific's fixed charges on a conditional basis and virtually relieve the management of responsibility for meeting its interest obligations.

To this argument Van Sweringen has replied that his plan is in harmony with current opinion held at Washington on railroad reorganizations. He asserts that it conforms with the views of Joseph B. Eastman, federal coordinator.

WAGE INCREASES GIVEN WORKERS OF 3 COMPANIES

Toledo, O., Feb. 8.—(AP)—An increase of wages ranging from 5 to approximately 14 per cent was announced for 550 employés of the Moto Meter Gauge and Equipment corporaton, auto parts concern, today. All hourly rates were increased a minimum of 5 per cent, Clark M. Adams, vice-president, announced.

Machinists at the Libbey Glass Manufacturing company have been granted an increase of 7½ cents an hour, bringing their scale to 83½ cents an hour.

The Spicer Manufacturing company granted a general wage increase of 5 cents an hour and an additional 5 per cent to all workers receiving less than 54 cents per hour.

Now Chicago Meat Packers Say 'Since the Depression'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—(AP)—It's "since the depression" as far as Illinois packers are concerned. Myrick Harding, spokesman for the packers in opposition to the 30 hour week bill, used the expression "since the depression" several times today in comparing wage and working schedules before a senate committee. "I like that expression, 'since the depression,'" said Senator Hatch [Dem., N. M.]. "Say it again."

New York Telephone Co. Income Higher in 1934

The New York Telephone company yesterday reported that net operating income for 1934 amounted to $34,291,257, compared with $33,782,621 in the preceding year.

The "Lowdown" on the SEC

Business Sees Ray of Hope in SEC Attitude

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Chicago business and security men who jammed the main dining room of the Union League club yesterday were greatly cheered by the tone of the address of Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the securities and exchange commission, who told them that his policy would be to avoid the "crackdown" method of obtaining compliance with the administration's program.

The gist of Mr. Kennedy's remarks was that the SEC would follow the policy of encouraging the financing of legitimate business and concentrate its fire upon security racketeers.

This was so much in contrast with the attitude of the politicians at the time the securities legislation was being passed and for a long time thereafter that Chicagoans were greatly heartened by what they regarded as a change in attitude in Washington.

Reopening of the capital markets is the big job of the SEC, in the opinion of Mr. Kennedy, and he now regards that task as at least as important as the scotching of racketeers. Not only are investors to be protected against being sold questionable securities but they are to be given the opportunity to buy legitimate securities.

At a press conference after the Union League club luncheon Mr. Kennedy was asked whether the mere making available of sound bonds would revive the bond market if it were not accompanied by assurance of stable money.

"Our job," he replied, "consists in clearing up the market for capital issues. If some other economic development outside the control of the securities and exchange commission causes investors to hold back and not buy the securities that are offered it is something over which we have no control."

Impending Gold Decision Still Center of Attention.

The "gold clause" cases now being pondered by the Supreme court continue to monopolize attention in the financial district. Everybody from bank presidents and heads of investment houses down to the lowliest stenographer talk of nothing else.

The conviction is growing that even an adverse decision by the court will not greatly alter the picture. Although startled at first by the thought that the court might hold unconstitutional the action of congress in abrogating the "gold clause" in contracts, most of the wiseacres along La Salle street have come to the conclusion that the administration has an answer to any problem that might be precipitated by the court.

Despite the fact that banks are cautioning their clients as a precautionary measure not to cash coupons on the so-called "gold clause" bonds until the question is settled even the bankers themselves admit that the possibility of any debtor being called upon to pay $1.69 for $1 worth of interest or principal is so remote that it can safely be disregarded.

In the event of an adverse decision the government could declare a moratorium until new legislation—or even an amendment to the constitution—could be obtained.

Among the financial experts the attitude of the administration toward the inflationary provisions of the proposed banking bill is regarded as more significant than the outcome of the litigation regarding the "gold clause."

Food Prices Show Rise in the Cost of Living.

Meanwhile the cost of living, as measured by the prices of food necessities continues to rise. The upturn has been going on for so long that the daily new high prices in the butter and egg and live stock markets have become almost a commonplace.

Beef, pork, eggs and butter—principal items in the ordinary citizen's daily menu—are now at the highest prices since early in the depression. And the prospect for relief is remote.

When pastures turn green this spring the cost to the farmer of producing these necessities will be reduced but the consumer is expected to benefit little because of reduced supplies.

This situation is partly due to the drouth last summer, which greatly reduced supplies of feedstuffs. But it is also partly due to the fact that in a year of great scarcity the Agricultural Adjustment administration pursued its program of reducing crops and killing meat and dairy animals.

Treasury Sells 182 Day Bills to Yield 0.11 Pct.

A total of $75,112,000 for the treasury's latest offering of 182 day bills, dated Feb. 13 and maturing Aug. 14, was accepted, it was announced yesterday. Applications aggregated $196,583,000. The average price was 99.944 and the average rate .11 per cent annually on a bank discount basis.

LONDON'S PEPPER POT STILL BOILING; THREE FIRMS NOW 'IN SOUP'

LONDON, Feb. 8.—(AP)—An enveloping cloud of speculative white pepper blew away from Mincing Lane today, leaving brokers' pocket books smarting and three firms of the old market district hors de combat.

A worse debacle this "Black Friday"—the day of reckoning for commitments in the commodity—was averted only because bankers and brokers marshaled resources to save firms unwittingly drawn into the wild dealings in pepper.

It was officially announced that all except three firms which were acting as brokers for an attempted pool in pepper will be able to meet their commitments when the "pepper moratorium," called to save the situation facing brokers as settlement day neared, ends Monday.

One of the three firms which failed is the Metal Brokerage concern of James & Shakespeare, Ltd., which went into receivership yesterday. On its board of directors is Garabed Birshirgian, short, stout, round faced Armenian "pepper king," who is said to have conceived the pool that has jammed London's warehouses with 23,500 tons of white pepper—enough for at least three years.

DOLLAR IS LITTLE CHANGED AGAINST FOREIGN MONEYS

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—The dollar was nearly steady against leading foreign moneys today. The British pound eased ⅛ cent to close at $4.88 while French francs were ⅛ point higher at 6.57 cents.

Based on the closing quotation of the franc the American dollar was worth $1.0097, compared with $1.0099 yesterday. The gold value of the dollar, based on the franc, was 59.63 cents, compared with 59.64 yesterday and par of 59.06.

Holland guilders dipped 1 point at 67.30 cents and Italian lire were ½ point higher at 8.46 cents, but belgas and Swiss francs were unchanged.

Bar gold in London was advanced a halfpenny to 142 shillings 1½ pence and, with the opening sterling rate at $4.88 1-16 to the pound, equivalent of $34.68 per fine ounce.

Scattered engagements of gold in Canada, France, England, and India, aggregating about $7,000,000, have been made for import here, according to reports received today by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. These brought the total of gold purchases abroad for American account since Nov. 5 last to $396,000,000.

The reserve bank today reported the arrival of $7,800,300 of gold imports and a net increase of $3,400 in the amount of gold earmarked for foreign account.

PACKARD TOOL MAKERS ACCEPT 35 HOUR WEEK

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—A thirty-five hour week for tool and die makers at the Packard Motor Car company has been accepted by the Mechanics' Educational Society of America members working in the plant by a 6 to 1 vote, Matthew Smith, general secretary of the M. E. S. A., announced today.

The union's committee, which met with Packard officials, reported the company said the twenty-one hour week asked by the union would not be workable. Smith said the company also agreed that any tool and die maker discharged for alleged inefficiency could appeal to the higher officials of the company, bringing witnesses as to his ability to handle the job.

Smith said the company had been operating on a forty-eight hour maximum provided by the automobile code.

English Market May Drop U. S. Cotton as Standard

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The Liverpool Cotton exchange is considering ending its long established custom of listing American cotton as the sole standard in contracts. No action has yet been taken, however, and discussion of the change is still going on. The question has been under consideration many months as a result of the control of the cotton crop in the United States.

SEC WON'T HURT NEW FINANCING, KENNEDY SAYS

Urges Chicago Firms to Go Ahead.

Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the federal securities and exchange commission, yesterday made a plea to business men of Chicago and the middle west to put aside any and all fears they may have of harsh and unreasonable regulation of the investment field. It was his third speech since taking the post.

"No promulgation by the commission, I pledge you, will involve any undue risk of embarrassment, expense, or liability to business," Mr. Kennedy promised in his address before 900 members of the financial community at the Union League club. He reiterated this view later in a press conference.

Earlier in the day, in his mission to build confidence in the Chicago area, the SEC chief had told a group of brokers to get over a lot of wrong ideas and do something to pep up business. That talk led Michael J. O'Brien, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, to declare that "if they all talked like Kennedy we'd be all right."

Brands Fears Unfounded.

Hesitancy to undertake new financing was the chief target of the SEC chairman. This hesitancy, he said over and over again, is born of false ideas.

"We seek to create confidence, not to instill fear," he stated. "The aim of the securities and exchange commission is to exert its every effort in behalf of the restoration and preservation of sanity in the securities business. We hope to interpret . . . so that no one will be asked to assume unreasonable burdens when issuing new securities, and no one will be hampered by unreasonable regulations when trading in those securities, once issued.

"Paralyzing regulations are thoroughly un-American. No important rule or regulation will be adopted without consultation with representatives of any class that might be affected.

Sees Corporations Protected.

At the press conference Mr. Kennedy said flatly that the commission is not trying to "get" anybody—that directors and officers of corporations have a lot of foolish ideas as to liabilities imposed. He urged the registration of securities rather as protection for corporations from subsequent law suits by troublemakers.

In his luncheon address, Mr. Kennedy called particular attention to stagnation in financing in the Chicago area.

"In the entire Chicago Federal Reserve district since the act has been in existence a total of $19,950,054 in new securities has been registered," he said. "This compares with $1,037,000,000 for the country as a whole. This is less than 2 per cent of the country's total. Yet the Chicago district's total volume of business represents 6½ per cent of the country's total.

Urges Chicago Show Courage.

"Imagine the significance of these things. Just as they stand they would mean that the courage, resourcefulness, and enterprise of this greatest industrial center in the world have become paralyzed. But we know that this is not so; other figures prove it. Chicago's business activity in 1934 was 22 per cent greater than that of 1933, a better ratio of improvement than was shown by any other section of the country. No, gentlemen, business enterprise in Chicago isn't dead."

One of the factors in drying up sources of new financing, he said, has been "an unwaranted apprehension of the securities legislation, "its costs, burdens, and liabilities.

"I ask you now to disregard those warnings and to forget that bogie, he urged. "Do your business as usual. Come down to Washington in person and present your problems to us, and I am confident that we can show you how to do new financing legally, pleasantly, and inexpensively.

Cites Need for Regulation.

"The statutes we administer are the expression of a long-standing deep-rooted conviction of the American people that a business as socially expensive as the security business needed regulation. I believe that the securities act of 1933 will prove to be the most serviceable legislation enacted in the public interest in years."

He called it the result of philosophy first expressed by men like the late Melvin A. Traylor, then president of the First National bank, "whose insistent indictments of senseless and excessive stock market speculation gave shape and substance to an enlightened public opinion."

The tentative program of the SEC includes registration, or licensing, of all dealers and brokers engaged in interstate commerce; reasonable rules for floor trading on exchange, and regulation and control of issues traded "over the counter" on the same basis as those listed on exchanges.

"Business is better than confidence," Mr. Kennedy asserted, but expressed the opinion that the latter

STOCKS FORGE AHEAD, PULLED BY RAIL ISSUES

Sizable Gains Are Shown Over Wide List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 8.—Technical conditions propelled the stock market a little further forward today. A group of favorites, including such issues as Union Pacific, American Can, Atchison, U. S. Smelting, du Pont, and Columbian Carbon gained as much as 2 points, and smaller advances were the rule over a fairly wide area of the active list. Volume totaled 587,260 shares.

Outside of a substantial increase in railroad car loadings there was nothing of particular importance in the news of the day to stimulate buying. Brokers thought the improvement was largely due to long protracted talk that the market was due to a rally after its decline. The carrier shares made the most of the revenue freight figures and as a group made the best showing of the list.

Rails Meet Good Demand.

A good demand appeared for Union Pacific, Atchison, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Delaware and Hudson, and other shares of the group, most of them rising from a major fraction to a point or more. Norfolk and Western advanced more than $3 a share on one sale.

In the automobile sector, Chrysler and General Motors attracted impressive patronage, due in some measure to their production and sales figures for last month and the rosy predictions made in their behalf for the next several months.

Public utilities almost alone of the active groups were sulky. Government competition, proceedings against holding companies and threats aimed at existing rate structures in the industry were mulled over in the boardroom talk against the shares.

Farm Issues Follow Commodities.

Farm shares reflected the harder tone in commodities.

Wet goods bottlers were talked up and so were the soft drinks. Owens Glass advanced $2 a share on nominal turnover.

The metal group generally looked a little better. Homestake advanced 9 points on the first sale, but there was little inclination to interpret its spurt as meaning anything one way or another with respect to guessing on the Supreme court's impending gold clause decision.

A number of specialties added 1 to 2 points to their official ratings. Tobacco issues fared well.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE

Money rates are quoted by Chicago banks as follows: Customers' commercial loans, 4 to 5%; collateral loans, 4 to 5%; brokers' loans, 2 to 3%; commercial paper, 1 to 2%; bankers' acceptances [nominal], 30-90 days, ½ to ⅝%; 120 days, ⅝ to ¾%; 150-180 days, ½ to ⅝%.

GRAINS ADVANCE ANEW AS GOLD SCARE SUBSIDES

Wheat and Corn Add Cent to Recent Gains.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

A further advance yesterday on the Board of Trade lifted prices of May wheat and corn 3 cents a bushel above the low figures at which they were quoted earlier this week. The net gain for the day in these two grain futures amounted to a cent a bushel, matching the advance of the preceding session.

Dissipation of the worst fears that have been entertained over the potentialities of a gold clause decision adverse to the government cleared the way for the advance in prices. The reiterated assurance by administration leaders that they will be prepared to step into the breach with plans to soften the blow of a possible upset in the gold cases has apparently restored confidence to traders. Speculative buying and demand from shorts provided the demand for grains yesterday.

Commercial Users Buy Corn.

In the cash grain market commercial users of corn showed more aggressiveness and handlers reported total sales of 163,000 bushels. Cash prices were firm.

The buoyancy of the whole market was due in a large measure to absence of any heavy selling pressure. The moderate volume of buying brought about a quick upturn without any material expansion in trading. Closing prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .96⅜	$ .95⅝	$ .96⅛
Corn	.84⅝	.83½	.84
Oats	.49⅞	.49½	.49⅝
Rye	.64½	.63⅜	.66¼

Last Tuesday May wheat sold at 99¾ cents a bushel, a quarter cent above its low price of the season. Yesterday's final quotations represented an advance of approximately 3 cents a bushel. On the same day May corn sold at 81⅛ cents a bushel, or slightly more than 3 cents below yesterday's last price.

Traders Still Expect Inflation.

If concern over the gold cases has not been liquidated it has certainly receded into the background. The general impression of traders today is that even if the government loses the cases it will move to effectively protect its inflationary monetary program.

An advance in wheat prices in the Liverpool market yesterday and slight upturn in Buenos Aires contributed to the price strength here. The market in Winnipeg also moved up a little but the significance of the movement is trifling because of the strangle hold which the government has on the market there.

A conspicuous feature of the trend in wheat yesterday was the greater strength again shown by the May future as compared with July and September deliveries.

CHICAGO FIRM AND UNION CLASH OVER BLUE EAGLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Lawyers for the S. Dresner & Sons company, Chicago, and for the United Lether Workers International union clashed before the national labor relations board today over whether the company should lose its Blue Eagle for alleged violations of the NIRA.

David Silbert, counsel for the company, told the board that, in accordance with a decision handed down by the board on Jan. 30, 1934, the company had reëmployed all workers then on strike. Charlton Ogburn and William E. Bryan, representatives of the union, insisted that 40 union employés had not been rehired.

The company and the union disagreed also over whether the election among the workers to determine who shall represent them in collective bargaining is valid. The union wanted the existing election voided and a new one ordered. The company defended the election as regular and valid. Arguments on both points were taken under advisement by the board.

MUNICIPAL BOND NOTES

A new issue of $2,752,000 Bayonne, N. J., bonds, consisting of $1,952,000 of general refunding bonds and $800,000 tax revenue bonds, dated Dec. 15, 1934, and due variously from 1936 to 1951, was awarded yesterday to a syndicate composed of the Chemical Bank and Trust company, E. H. Rollins & Sons, Dick & Merle-Smith, Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust company, St. Louis, Eldredge & Co., Manufacturers and Traders Trust company, Buffalo, H. L. Allen & Co., and M. F. Slater & Co. The bankers bid 101.029 for the refunding bonds as 4¼s, and par plus a premium of $11 for the tax revenue bonds as 3.40s. The bonds will be reoffered at prices to yield 3.50 to 4.05 per cent.

Offering of a new issue of $2,080,000 state of New Mexico 3.40 per cent refunding bonds, due March 1, 1937 to 1952, was made yesterday at prices to yield 1.50 to 3 per cent. The offering group consists of Blyth & Co., R. W. Pressprich & Co., Stranahan, Harris & Co., and Stern Brothers & Co., of Kansas City, Mo.

Award of a new issue of $2,000,000 Davidson county, Tenn., public building and courthouse bonds, was made to a syndicate comprising the Chemical Bank and Trust company, Equitable Securities corporation, Nashville, First National bank, Memphis, Eldredge & Co., W. N. Estes & Co., Trust Company of Georgia, Atlanta, and the Robinson-Humphrey company, Atlanta. Dated Jan. 1, 1935, and due from 1936 to 1962, the bonds fetched a price of 100.27 as 3s.

Award of a new issue of $725,000 state of Minnesota rural credit certificates of indebtedness, dated Feb. 11, 1935, and due Feb. 11, 1936, was made to Halsey, Stuart & Co., Chicago, and Justus F. Lowe company, Minneapolis. The bankers jointly bid par, plus a premium of $50 for the notes to bear interest at ⅝ of 1 per cent.

New York, Feb. 8.—[Special.]—Bonds of all grades displayed a firmer tone today. Railroad issues and quite a number of industrials and utilities rose one to two points.

The increased volume of trading for the market as a whole was due mainly to the greater turnover in treasury issues, particularly the guaranteed obligations. Home Owners' 2¾s at one time were more than a quarter point above yesterday's closing and were within easy reach of their record high. There was an active market also in treasury 3½s of 1952 and 3s of 1955.

Best Gain Slightly.

Gilt-edged corporate issues were only moderately active, but on the whole their price level was improved slightly by the day's dealings.

The major part of the activity centered in the rail group, where best advances were recorded. Secondary rail obligations accounted for most of the upturns although utility and industrial loans of domestic corporations also improved. Trading in this division was more restricted.

The volume of trading in second grade and speculative bonds was small, considering the extent of their improvement.

Some of Strong Issues.

Gains of fractions to 3 points were seen in obligations of Erie, Postal Telegraph, Southern Pacific, Chicago & North Western, "Katy," Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, New York Central, Studebaker, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Kansas City Southern, International, Great Northern, Consolidation Coal, American Ice, and Alleghany corporation.

Argentines improved following receipt of assurances that disturbances in the province of Buenos Aires had been quelled. Germains were firm. Higher prices generally prevailed in the foreign section of the market.

RUBBER.

New York, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Crude rubber futures closed quiet, 35 to 42 points higher. March, 13.12c per lb.; May, 13.32c bid; July, 3.41c to 13.42c; September, 13.54c to 13.56c.

Electric Auto-Lite.

Investors' Guide: Will you please give me information as to Electric Auto-Lite?—B. C. R.

Answer: Electric Auto-Lite company is one of the leading manufacturers of starting, light, and ignition equipment for automobiles and trucks. Its products are used primarily as original equipment, but sale of storage batteries [U. S. L. and Prest-O-Lite] for replacement purposes provides a steady source of income during periods when automobile production is low.

In May, 1934, the company acquired Moto Meter Gauge and Equipment corporation, manufacturer of automotive parts and accessories, liquid measuring devices, heat indicators, etc., for 300,000 shares of common stock. A minor source of diversification is provided by sale of miscellaneous electric products, such as clocks, flash lights, arc welders, etc.

Important customers are Hudson, Nash, Auburn, Studebaker, Packard and Hupmobile. Ford was formerly an important customer, but in July, 1934, the company announced that it was not furnishing Ford with any original equipment. On Sept. 6, 1934, however, it was announced that a long term contract to furnish all ignition, starting, and lighting equipment on Chrysler built cars was closed.

For the first nine months of 1934 net income was $1,421,000, or $1.02 per common share. For the corresponding 1933 period net income was $850,000, or 71 cents per common share. Figures for 1934 include Moto Meter earnings and reflect increased shares outstanding.

	Net sales.	Net income	Inc. per com. shr.
1933	$11,473,000	$ 884,000	$0.44
1932	13,107,000	1,364,000	1.31
1931	21,961,000	3,914,000	4.03
1930	38,409,000	5,043,000	5.32

Current assets on June 30, 1934, totaled $6,774,000, and current liabilities were $1,101,000.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 41,977 shares of 7 per cent $100 par cumulative preferred and 1,008,121 shares of $5 par common [including shares exchanged for Moto Meter]. Preferred dividends have been paid regularly, but nothing has been paid on the common since Jan. 2, 1933.

The preferred merits a fairly high rating. The common is speculative at present.

Remington Arms.

Investors' Guide: I am informed that the entire issue of Remington Arms 6 per cent bonds has been called for payment. Is this true?—Mrs. C. P. L.

Answer: Yes, all Remington Arms company, Inc., first mortgage 6 per cent bonds, series A, due May 1, 1937, were called for redemption on Jan. 2, 1935, at 101 and interest.

At DeLEE You Learn

BEAUTY CULTURE

Quickly—Easily—Thoroughly

QUICKLY—because you receive individual instruction under the personal direction of Madame Louise, internationally famous stylist and beauty expert.

EASILY—because DeLEE "University type" of training simplifies learning. You learn by practicing on living models. Classrooms are colorful, light and roomy. Equipment is 100% new and up-to-the-minute.

THOROUGHLY—because DeLEE does not graduate a student until she has attained genuine proficiency. At DeLEE you receive unlimited instruction at no extra cost. In fact, there are no "extra charges" for anything at DeLEE—one reasonable tuition fee covers everything.

Come in today and talk with the DeLEE Dean, Miss Ruby Lorrain Stevens, or write for interesting book. Convenient terms can be arranged.
